PREFACE

THE note book, or occasional journal, from which the extracts here given are taken, was kept, with the exception mentioned in the next sentence, by Sir Roger Wilbraham during the years 1593-1616, in a 12mo volume, bound in vellum, of about 300 pages, closely written in a small hand, and described by him as a 'book of observations for my age or children' (p. 57). At the end, however, there are a few entries, in another hand, beginning with the year 1642 and ending in 1649. The book itself is in the possession of the Earl of Lathom, who traces his descent through Sir Roger's father, Richard Wilbraham of Nantwich, and it is due to his kindness that the contents are now available for transcription and publication.

About half of the manuscript is here printed. The other part has been, with some regret, omitted, because the space at command does not permit of its insertion. Moreover the passages thus left out deal with legal and literary matters, lying, perhaps, rather outside the province of the Society's publications. In the table of contents, however, a short description of all the entries contained in the original book is included, wherein the passages not here printed are summarised within square brackets.

Roger Wilbraham, the second son of Richard Wilbraham of Nantwich (p. 110), of the ancient family of the Wilbrahams of Woodhey (p. 111), by his first wife, Eliza, daughter to Thomas Maisterson, also of Nantwich, was born on November 4, 1553, and died July 31, 1616.¹ Roger was a somewhat important personage under Queen Elizabeth and James I. For a brief record of his career we have an inscription on his monument in Hadley Church, near London, printed by Ormerod in his 'History of Cheshire.'²

This monument, standing on the south wall, is of veined marble, supported by Corinthian columns, and is ornamented with good busts of Sir Roger and his wife.³ The inscription runs as follows: 'Sir Roger Wilbraham knt. descended of y^e aunient familie of y^e Wilbrahams of Woodhey in y^e countye of Chester. Was Sol^r Gen^l in Ireland to Q. Eliz for 14 y^{rs} and in 1600 M^r of Requestes to H. M. in Ordinary & Surveyor of y^e Liveries to K^s James in H. M. C^t of Wards and L. & Chauncellor to Q. Ann. Marr^d Marye y^e daũ of Ed^d Baber esquier serjeant at lawe.'

But apart from 'lapidary inscriptions' much information concerning Wilbraham may be gleaned from the contemporary records. From them and the present manuscript the following chief events of his life have been collected:—

He was admitted to Gray's Inn at a Pension held on June 27, 1576, at the same time as Francis Bacon and his brother Antony.⁴ June 27, 1583, is the date of his admission as an 'utter barrister,' again with Francis Bacon.⁵ On January 31, 1586, his Inn elected him an *Ancient*⁶ on his appointment to the office of Solicitor-General in Ireland.⁷ As Solicitor-General his name constantly appears in the Acts of the Privy Council (N.S. 1587–1593), and in the Calendar of State Papers, both Irish and 'Domestic,' where many letters of his to Burghley are to be found. On June 27, 1595, he was called to the Bench by his Inn,¹ and in 1598 was Reader.² From this date Wilbraham seems to have spent most of his time away from Ireland, though his patent was not revoked until 1603.³ This may be inferred from the constant mention of him as present at Pensions in Gray's Inn, and the references to him in State Papers, 'Domestic,' while he is not mentioned in the Irish State Papers of the years 1599 and 1600. Moreover we gather that he settled down to practice at the English Bar, as he mentions in this journal that he attended circuit at Norwich in September 1598 (p. 20), and was retained in February 1599 as counsel, with Bacon, in the Abergavenny Barony case, on behalf of one of the claimants, Lady Fane, the daughter of Henry Nevill, the last baron ('Table of Contents,' Pt. I. No. 25). Earlier, in 1593, we learn that he was over in England;⁴ and so was in London when Parliament was dissolved on April 10, 1593, a report of the Dissolution being one of the earliest entries in the book. The first mention of him in the present journal as Master of Requests is on August 16, 1600 (p. 35); and it was in this year that he obtained the appointment. In the early part of 1601 he was employed in unravelling the Essex conspiracy, taking part, for instance, on February 16 with Lord Chief Justice Popham and Mr. Attorney Coke in the examinations of Sir Charles Danvers and William, Lord Sandys.⁵ In 1602 we find him Keeper of the Records in the Tower (p. 80 and note), an office which he surrendered in 1603 for an annuity of 100*l.*, as his tenure infringed on the rights of the Master of the Rolls.⁶ On May 20, 1603, he was knighted by James I. at Greenwich, together with his colleague at the Requests, Sir Julius Cæsar.⁷ He was returned to the first

Parliament of James I. as one of the members of the Cornish borough of Kellington,¹ one of those boroughs to which the privilege of sending representatives to Parliament was granted or restored by Queen Elizabeth with a view to establishing the Queen's control over the House of Commons and providing seats for ministers and officials.² In June 1604 he is mentioned as the Queen's Chancellor.³ Three years later a grant of the Surveyorship of the King's Liveries and the Court of Wards and Liveries was conferred on him for life.⁴ In the spring of 1609 he was in a commission with Sir Robert Gardiner and Sir James Ley for the examination of all suitors to the Council on matters relating to the Plantation of Ulster,⁵ and again in 1613 he was sent over to Dublin with other Commissioners to investigate the charges brought against the Irish Government (p. 113).⁶ On March 8, 1614, he obtained a grant in reversion of the office of constable of Chester Castle for life.⁷

By his wife, Mary, the daughter of Edward Baber, Esq., serjeant-at-law, he had three daughters, who on his death on July 31, 1617, became 'heirs to 4,000*l.* a year.'⁸ On February 4, 1618, his second daughter, Elizabeth, was married to her cousin, Thomas Wilbraham, son and heir apparent of Sir Richard Wilbraham of Woodhey, knight, 'chief of his name.' In the marriage licence Roger Wilbraham is described as of St. John's, Clerkenwell (p. 111, note). The presence of Roger Wilbraham's monument in Hadley Church may be explained by the fact that in 1609 one Cornelius Fyssh and others aliened the manor of Ludgraves and twenty acres of land, forty of meadow, ninety of pasture, and ten of wood in Hadley and Edmonton to Sir Roger Wilbraham and his heirs. In 1795, when Lysons published his 'Environs of London,' this estate was called Blue House Farm, and was the property of the widow or a Lieutenant-Colonel West.¹

There is some interesting information concerning Wilbraham's tenure of office in Ireland in certain 'charges' brought against him and endorsed by Burghley in 1597,² charges which, whether true or false, are certainly of the usual kind advanced against English officials in Ireland, and are somewhat explanatory of the great wealth whereof he died possessed. His fees of office are stated at 200*l.* a year; but though he was to give 'his utmost attendance in the Court of Exchequer,' yet, 'for any fees he will be hired to go to any court and leaves the Exchequer,' and 'by reason of his absence many suits are wonderfully delayed, to the great charges of Her Majesty's subjects.' With the connivance of the barons in the Exchequer who will not 'deal against their cousins and friends, but rather take part against the Queen . . . he doth get daily sums of money for making purchases in Cheshire,' and 'he may praise God for coming into Ireland, for that hath been better to him than Gray's Inn would have been in many years.' Moreover 'every man complaineth of him for taking excessive fees: of some he taketh silver, of some gold, of some horses, of some armour of proof, or anything else: nothing cometh amiss.' In spite, however, of his 'extraordinary fees and exactions,' his encroachments into other men's offices, the licences which he begged only to sell, and 'more gifts and wardships than any Solicitor has had,' he 'yet keeps no house, nor spends a penny, which the country expects in all those that have Her Majesty's fees.' The paper concludes, 'The country wish him away, for he wringeth them too much, and the people are poor, whereof he hath no consideration, but to serve his own turn.'

Dorford Hall and the manor of Acton and Hurleston, which Wilbraham purchased from the Bromleys and passed over to his younger brother, Ralph, would seem to be one of these 'purchases in Cheshire ;'¹ and in 1590 a purchase was made by him of houses in Nantwich.²

Wilbraham was evidently a careful student, as is shown by the long analysis he makes of such law books as Lambard's 'Eirenarchia' (see 'Table of Contents,' Pt. III. 2), while the list of books entered for his future reading in 1600, and the extracts, verses, and phrases noted down by him in his journal prove him to have had a taste for history, theology, and the classics.

The manuscript is in Sir Roger Wilbraham's handwriting, with the exception, as has been said before, of a few pages written in another hand at the time of the Civil War. This latter portion chiefly consists of a long passage entitled the 'Expressions of Mr. Arthur Wodenoth as to the Present Distractions and Divisions of Church and State, 1645.' The Wodenoths were a Cheshire family, and the name appears among the inscriptions in Nantwich Church. This Mr. Arthur Wodenoth would seem to be George Herbert's great friend, mentioned often by Isaac Walton in his 'Life of Herbert' (vide post. p. 118, note).

The entries begin at both ends of the book. At one end we have notes on the books which Roger Wilbraham read. In the case of one or two law books—as, for instance, Lambard's 'Eirenarchia'—there is a careful and lengthy abstract. These notes are not here printed for the reason stated above, but are summarised in the 'Table of Contents.' At the other end is to be found considerably the largest and most interesting portion of the book, a journal, not kept from day to day, but one in which were noted down events which interested him, or notes on books and conversations. Thus we have accounts of the prorogations and dissolutions of Parliament with the Sovereign's speeches and those of ministers, and notes on Parliamentary debates and discussions in the Privy Council. Of the speeches that of Queen Elizabeth to her last Parliament on December 19, 1601, reported here by Roger Wilbraham (pp. 44-47), so far as I can discover, is not found elsewhere, though there is an allusion to it in one of Carleton's letters.¹ Mr. Spedding evidently had no knowledge of it, as he describes the Queen's 'Golden Speech' to the Speaker and the Commons at Whitehall on November 30, 1601, as her last meeting with her people.² He has a full account of the death of the Queen, and the events immediately before and after the coming of the King, wherein, with a few words, he gives a graphic description of his last interview with Elizabeth, winding up with a long and striking comparison drawn between the characters of James and Elizabeth (pp. 53-60). There is a brief description also, interesting on account of the rarity of such reports, of the coronation of James I., and there is, as might have been expected, an entry concerning the Gunpowder Plot (p. 70). There are also conversations held with important personages on political questions of great moment, such as the views on the state of Ireland, expressed to him by Lord Chief Justice Popham and the Archbishop of Cashel, wherein a very clear account is given of the alarming condition of the country in the autumn of 1599 (p. 24), only a few months after Essex had landed at Dublin in the April of that year. As a lawyer he gives a long report of the Abergavenny Barony case before the Earl Marshal's Court, a case wherein he was retained as counsel; and also of the lengthy dispute between the King's Bench and the President of Wales as to jurisdiction. These reports have, however, been, with some regret, omitted for want of space, although, as in every case, a brief description will be found in the 'Table of Contents.' We find entries chronicling other matters of public interest, though of less moment; conversations with Bacon, the Earl of Salisbury, Lord Chief Justice Popham, and others; stories of the lawyers of his time and sayings by them ; legal gossip and notes ; notes on history and books ; quotations from Latin authors ; aphorisms, sentences, and phrases which seem to have struck his fancy, and often bear the influence of the euphuism of the day. Here again many entries appear only in the 'Table of Contents.' But perhaps the most interesting portions are the reports noted down by Wilbraham of Privy Council proceedings, at which he was often present in person. Very possibly his presence in the Star Chamber, when Irish affairs were under discussion, was due to the knowledge which he must have obtained in his long tenure of the office of Solicitor-General of Ireland. On other occasions, after 1600, his attendance may probably be sometimes ascribed to his position as a Master of Requests in ordinary, which would bring him into very close relations with the Sovereign. In order to understand this it will be necessary to describe briefly the nature of this office.

The origin and early history of the Court of Requests are well treated by Mr. I. S. Leadam in the interesting introduction to his selection of cases in this court.¹ It is enough to say here that the Court of Requests was an offshoot of the King's Council, and originally served the purpose of a poor man's tribunal, representing the King's Justice, in mitigation of the rigour of proceedings at law. It formed, in fact, a court of conscience or equity, whose process was of a summary nature, framed largely on the principles of the civil law. By Elizabeth's time, however, the simpler and cheaper procedure it administered had come to be abused by wealthy and influential plaintiffs ; and in consequence constant collisions arose between it and the common law courts (p. 95). In regard to the relation of the Masters of Requests to the Privy Council, whatever may have been their position in the earlier days of the Court's existence, certain it is that by Wilbraham's time the distinct existence of the Privy Council as the acting committee of the King's Council was firmly assured ; and the masters, though sworn in as counsellors to the King, and in spite of their claim, as set forth by Sir Julius Cæsar, to be regarded as Privy Councillors, were not entitled to this distinction. Thus Sir Julius Cæsar, though appointed by James I. as an ordinary Master of Requests in 1603, was only made a Privy Councillor in 1607. Sir Harris Nicolas, in his preface to 'Proceedings of the Privy Council,'¹ in discussing the difference between the King's ordinary counsellors, like the Masters of Requests and the members of the Privy Council, points out that the former never sign documents. Yet probably the King's ordinary counsellors were invited to attend on certain occasions when they possessed special knowledge, and it is to this, possibly, that Wilbraham's presence at Privy Council meetings is due. Moreover, in addition to their judicial duties, the Masters of Requests were members of the King's household, and thus closely attached to his person. Thus, though there was a permanent court fixed at Whitehall, yet, in virtue of the close connection with the Sovereign which his office gave him, Wilbraham not only attended the Royal Progresses (pp. 62-65), but seems to have been frequently employed both by Elizabeth and James as an instrument for State business and a messenger of the Sovereign's instructions. Whatever the explanation may be, certain it is, from this journal, that Wilbraham was sometimes present at the Council meetings (pp. 37-50). Some of the most interesting portions are these reports of discussions in the Privy Council on matters of State, such as the Rebellion in Ireland and the conduct of Essex, or the perpetual emptiness of James's Exchequer.

A considerable portion of the journal is in law French, interspersed with Latin words and sentences. Of the more important passages a translation is given. Throughout abbreviations are expanded, but as far as is possible the original manuscript has been followed and the spelling and punctuation preserved.

THE JOURNAL OF SIR ROGER WILBRAHAM

[Wilbraham was over in England in the spring of 1593, in attendance on the Privy Council ('Cal. of State Papers, Irish Series,' 1592-6, pp. 77, 89). In September 1593 he was back again in Dublin, as is shown by his writing to Burghley therefrom (ibid. 144).]

10 Aprilis 1593: At th'ending of parliament,¹ Cook² solicitor, speaker; Puckering³ l. chauncelor; before the coming of the Queen, two of the privi counsell delivered the act of general pardon to the l. chauncelor. After the Speaker & Commons brought in: & then her maiestie came in her robes & coronett, & having well placed & settled her self, the Speaker & 2 or 3 & most at barre after 3 low congeas, made an oration: 1^o of the antiquitie of parliament used in king Ebe's⁴ tyme: secondlie of her maiestie's favor in calling her people to consult for the state: & 3^o desired leave to compare her maiestie to a bee: which governs with such pollicie that all thother obey: et rex sine aculeis—the master bee without stinge: and so her mercy such as never punisheth without remorse: then her people are valient as bees to drive away the drones: so they put Spaniards to flight: & said the bees brought honey to Plato an infant: which fortold his eloquence & wished the same hap had befallne himself to utter his; 4^o he shewed the nobles & commons had made lawes to which her maiestie must give lief or els they now determined: viz: lawes & statuts continued: other lawes capable of lief if her maiestie by her voice gave them lief as laws newlie established: first for repressing inward disturbers as papists & scismatikes: secondlie a provision against invasion: offering in the name of all a treble subserie & 6 fiftenths according to ther habilities not answerable to ther myndes, who were willing to loose ther hartes in the enimies bosome for her safetie: 5^o rendred her maiestie humble thanks for her gracious & ample pardon: & because it extended to facts done before the parliament, therfor craved a special pardon for his defects or offences done of ignorance & so ended.

The l. keper having kneeled before her maiestie returned to his place & said, ' Mr. speker her maiestie hath hard your eloquent & wise spech & geven me expresse commaundment to answere to some partes thereof: & 1^o to the antiquitie of parliament an allowed thing: & King Canute used it: 3^o aproved the comparizon of the bees, & extolled her clemencie & allowed the subiects valure & dutie, onlie charged some of oversight that in the lower house gave not due reverence to some of her privi counsell: 4^o the lawes she allowed: and persuaded the iudges & magistrates to see them executed—magistratus est lex loquens: accepting most thankfullie the subserie, as a provision against invasion: and persuaded that the musters & armer might be well regarded: '

Then her maiestie stood up saying to this effect: in golden wordes. She thought meete the Lords & Commons should understand out of her owne hart & mouth those thinges the l. keper had spoken by her direction: 1^o touching the subserie she thanked them assuring them that it was for their own defence a provision & not for her expenses: for her endeavors were spent altogether either in service of god: or in government of her people or for the flourishing estate of her kingdomes: her care was as great as any kings had been (her father excepted in reverence of a child) to preserve her people: that she was now groen in yeres & therefore not like now to bestow her treasure but for the safetie of her people: that since the beggininge she hathe refused good occasion to amplifie her kingdom: but that she feared it wold be more charge to her people then honor: she never gave occasion of offence, wherfore her neighbors should so annoy her: she made warre abroad to kepe it farther of: she required none to feare: her hart never stood so much at peace: she knew no cause to doubt victorie but persuaded provident provision & so ended with hartie thaunkes.

29 April 1593 : before her maiestie at Whitehall : the recorder of London¹ & aldermen presented the L. maior² : the recorder's speech was that the armor of peace was the due administracion of the sword & of lawes : for as treasure is called the sinewes of peace : so the administracion of lawes are : in both which he extolled her maiestie's most happy government as well with her power against foes as Justice towards her subiects : then he discended to shew that king John, 16 of his raign, incorporated London & endowed them with manifold liberties, that the maior chosen should be presented to the l. keper : then to the barons of eschequer or lieutenant of the tower : after to her maiestie : by whose graciouse raigne and benignitie the citie had florished above all the rest of the realme : wherefore in humble acknowledgement thereof ther service goods & lives were redie to sacrifice to her gracious pleasure : prainge that her maiestie wold vouchsafe to geve allowance to ther choice, for that the l. keper & lieutenant had allowed him : being chosen according to ther charter's limitations : beseching pardon if in this or his last spech he had committed any error :

The l. keper after her maiestie by whispering had intimated her pleasure said, 'Mr W^m Roe the Q^s most excellent maiestie hath hard and effectually perceaved your spech and geven me in charge (albeit an unworthie interpreter of so divine an oracle) to lett you understand her gracious pleasure touching some parts thereof : 1^o touching your discourse of lawes she aproveh them true, requiring at your handes due administracion, within your liberties : for that in the rest of the realme the same is committed to careful and sufficient men : 2^o wher you advaunce your citie before others, tanquam inter viburna cupressi, her maiestie taketh not your charters to bind her prerogative, but that by abuses the same are to be resumed : but if you speak it to record the great benifites you have receaved, then know your service and diligent preservation of her maiestie's people & lawes are the more exacted at your hands : 3^o your choice of a maior being according to usage her maiestie graciously alloweth : & commendeth your wisdom to elect such a man : & her maiestie requireth you my L. maior (for so I may call you being so allowed by her maiestie) to have a Hibernia, 31 Sept. 1593. This day before the barons of eschequer the maior of Dublin¹ newlie elected was presented by the recorder with an oration that H 2 gave their liberties by name of a portryve: H 3 augmented them to a maire & sherives & to have the same liberties that the citie of Bristol had: & ther maire to be sworne before the chief governour: & because of his absence King E 3 granted power to take ther oath in absence of the deputie before the barons of eschequer at Dublin: & if thes-chequer were not ther, then the new maire to be presented & sworne before the old: & shewed ther elecion of Mr. Ryans maior: & in the entrance into his speches, how the people by nature rude & disorderlie were taught obedience by lawes: & lawes deade without magistrates, wherupon the first charter of H 2 was granted to Dublin:

Sir Robert Napper chief baron answered that he liked well the thankful remembrance to the Queene and her progenitors, & that the prince's favors had ben great & the citizens' desertes worthi all commendacions: he compared this politike bodie to a natural bodie. by a large resemblance: that the maior was the head & hart that guided & governed all the bodie: the hart was the lief of all the rest: for if that were not sound it yelded contagious bloud to infect the bodie: but being pure, it being the vital spirite, to all the rest gave good norishment: the armes were the shiriefs: the sides the aldermen: legges the commonaltie: and said the maior was like the anker that held the ship: he persuaded the maior verie ampleie to attend divine service & have all his bodie with him: that the cause whie people of late came not to church was for that Pius Quintus the pope, 20² of the Q^s raigne, by his bull excommunicated the Queen: & discharged the people of ther obedience: which bull was after revived by pope Gregorie the 13: doctor Saunders³ & Allene⁴ were the pope's nuntios in Ireland: what calamity ensued Irishe cronicles declared: he compared the Jesuits to vultures who as Plinie writeth were so suttel of smell, that the smell bloud three daies before the bataille & would be 3 daies before at the place of bataille: he also compared them to the Harpies in Virgil, that were paynted like Virgins but devourers of men: & so Jesuites under simplicities bring men to perdition: he said the sword borne before the maior signified justice & fortitude: the white rod temperance and innocency: & amplified that: & exhorted them to looke to the streetes & markets.

29 Sept. 1596: the recorder presented Chamberlain¹ maior before the barons of eschequer, saing in effect the came to deliver the sword & receve it ther as from the Quene.

He said manie held opinion that it was fatal to cities to have a certen begynning & a certen end, as the nativities of men were certen: told of divers histories that varie in the begynning of Dublin cite: & for the end it was as incerten: for Rome was conquered, Athens and Carthage distroied: & recited manie other cities and countreyes:

He showed this cite before the conquest, how it came by the conquest; that king H 2 conqueror first endowed them with Bristow liberties: and shewed that ech king hath enlarged somewhat: in specialti, and declared ther services in specialtie.

D'Ewes (Journal of Parliaments of Elizabeth, pp. 546-7) has a somewhat fuller account, but both in substance and in detail, so far as the speeches, at any rate are concerned, is inferior to the report which Wilbraham has given. In the Lord Keeper's speech for instance the complaint concerning the Judges and Justices of the Peace is omitted.

common welthe wilbe ruined unlesse ther be prevencion of dangerous enormities by the helpe of good lawes: which in course of tyme are to be abrogated altered and renewed as occasion is: & amplified this with some few sentences of histories: & said such yet was the condicion of these petitions wherupon the commons had assembled, consulted & resolved, that lik as the picture of Pigmalion with the painter himself for the rareness of the work was but a dead image until it pleased Jupiter to instill lief, so these petitions shalbe fruitelesse, unlesse it please your royall maiestie to inspire lief unto them.

Then he further presented in all humilitie a small subsidie, as an assured token of ther bodies lands & liefs to be entierlie devoted to princelie pleasure of so sacred & sovereign quene:

Hereupon he entered into discourse of her maiestie's manifold vertues: science of languages: especial favour towards her subiects, to dispend for ther defence her private treasure, which he accompted as peculiar to her private as the possessions of subiects: that her maiestie in regard to kepe her treasure for defence, had not bestowed it on private: that her maiestie did not delite in sumptuous buildings, too great a fault in manie subiects: saying builders wold undoe themselves if enimies did not restraine them from ther owne destruction: 2^o that she had ben princelie temperate in apparell: adding some sentence in the praise of moderation therein. So 3^o likewise in banquetting praised her temperance with a sentence or twoe: he also spak of the execution of lawes: and Licurgus the best lawe giver, because his lawes were executed: Then he proceded to compare lawe for government & armie against force: & amplified that both were the parties of a prince: & that subsidies were to be geven for defence of kingedome: & provision made for withstanding raging enemies: by sentences: & her maiestie had a greater potentate her enemye then any her progenitors: namely Spaine, who sought the effusion of all English blood: the exaltation of superstition &c. & invasion.

Then he in the name of the howse rendred thanks for that her maiestie had reformed noisome licenses, & priviledges called monopolies: he praised her maiesties justice, but especiallie her mercy which had eternized manie, with severitie seldom any: he craved pardon if the howse had transgressed ther dutie: and sithence none could speke for himself but he, craved upon his knees pardon for himself: this spech was full of elegancies, swetlie delivered; but thought too full of flatterie to curious & tedious :

Sir Thomas Egerton L. keper : said her maiestie had given him expresse charge to answere to the learned & eloquent oration, commending his treatie of lawes : reproving the negligence in justices of peace & of assise in not providing for the pore : not punishing forstallers, regrators, ingrossing : not executing the statute of Winchester : that sturdie vagabonds & such pretended gents as wanted living, which as it was death in som common welths, so he wished it to be punished in ours : that justices of peace were lik dogges in the Capitoll, that being sett to barke at rebels, sett themselves to anoy the good subiects : so ther gredines was the grevance of the people :

That tho her maiestie provided this subsidie for safetie of her people she yet accepted it thankfullie & graciouslie as a gift to her self : amplified the rancorous malice of Spain : that all provision & redines was for withstanding him :

Amplified that of his knowledge living and dying he must acknowledge her maiestie never desired the wealth of her people nor annoyance, with hard extremities or without aparent right : he complayned that witt of man ill employed had invented enormous & pestilent perpetuities : which might have been converted to better purposes to the service of god & contrey : advised the Justices of lawe in her maiestie's name to make pleine & sincere expositions of the lawe, not to plauge themselves with curious interpretations, wherby any enormities might arise :

He cited some sentences of Jerome &c. of the blessings of a iust prince : prayed for her sentenciouslie & brieflie, & craved pardon for himself :

The acts read : and thassent royal notified : the L. keper declared her maiestie's pleasure to dissolve the Parliament.

Within 3 daies after the day after terme¹ the L. keper in full assemblie said he was commanded by her maiestie to deliver such things as herself if tyme had permitted meant to have uttered in parliament : that all should repaire to ther howses & not dwell like battelors in London : that the should kepe hospitalitie for releaf of pore : that the lawes he spok of in Parliament & now againe renewed might be executed : that manie Justices of peace were baskett

Justices, to gather hens & capons colore officii, but not to distribute justice to the releaf of the subiects : that Justices of assize should not look to the clositt of rich princes &c. but the peace of the countrie : & as bishops had triennial visitations, so she sent them as visitors twice a yere : if they neglected the publick service she wold correct them, & they should be acompted as collectors not correctors : that principallie her maiestie's pleasure was ech should gard his owne quarter : look to musters and armor for provision : not upon any event shune from his howse for fear, for then her maiestie would sese his livings & correct him for cowardize by her royal prerogative : & as preparation was wisdom, so her hart feared nothing, but assured of victorie by gods hand. Under whose protection she erected safetie by her polesies : posui Deum adiutorem meum ; scutum fidei protegit me : & so with an eloquent & pithie speche ended :

The l. Treasurer commended the Justice of England now above former tymes : advised to Justices : complayed of numbers of Just[ices] of peace : & that lettres of musters should issue : that recusants increasing be looked to : &c.

On the death of Dr. Croke, several preachers seem to have been tried at Gray's Inn ; and finally, about July 1599, Dr. Richard Fenton was elected (Pension Book of Gray's Inn, p. 141). Possibly 'Bancroft' should be read, and then it may be John Bancroft, nephew of Richard, the then Bishop of London. John Bancroft, afterwards Bishop of Oxford, graduated at Oxford in 1596, and was collated to Finchley in 1601 (Newcourt's Repertorium, vol. ii. p. 176). Richard Bancroft, as rector of St. Andrew's, Holborn, 1587-97, had been closely connected with Gray's Inn, as his church was much used by the members of the society. 22 Apr. 99 in private the L. ch. Justice Popham told me I might live to see Ireland a play of 3 parties: Tirone, Butler¹ & Florence McCharty,² who is chief of all the Irishrie in Mounster & like to carry it from Ormond: tho now they be linked: this was delivered him in secrett by the Vicont Buttevant,³ long sithence, to him who told her maiestie thereof: so Florence was imprisoned: & one great counsellor made to hold with him, another against him: as it was in Condon's case:⁴ & that Henry Pyne⁵ that ² Florence McCarthy, at this time (spring 1599), had endured twelve years of imprisonment (for the most part in London) and vain suits, his troubles with the Government beginning in 1587, by reason of his marriage with the only daughter and heiress of the Earl of Clancarty. (Acts of the Privy Council, vol. xvi. pp. 147, 381, and succeeding volumes, passim.) In 1595 Sir Geoffrey Fenton, Secretary to the Council at Dublin, urges Burghley to detain Florence McCarthy, on account of his 'Spanish affection.' (Cal. of State Papers, Ireland, 1592-6, p. 421.) In April 1599 Cecil writes to Essex proposing to make use of his influence in Munster against the rebels, and so at last his claim to the lands of the Earl of Clancarty, in right of his wife, seems to obtain favour. (Cal. S. P., Irel., 1599-1600, p. 25.) In the same month he is in Ireland corresponding with Cecil (ibid. 14). The fears of the Chief Justice, here expressed, appear to be well grounded, for on February 29, 1600, we find Chamberlain writing to Carleton, from London, 'Florence McCarthy, lately made much of here, has fallen away in Munster and made himself Macarty Moore, a great title in those parts, and will probably do much harm.' (S. P. Dom., 1598-1601, p. 402.) For an 'abstract of several Treasons committed by Florence McCarthy,' see Calendar of State Papers, Carew, 1589-1600, pp. 514-515, and also of the reasons he 'allegeth to prove' that the Earl of Clancarty's lands ought to descend to Ellen his wife and to her heirs, in Carew's hand (ibid. 516).

(Acts of the Privy Council, vol. xxi. 1591, p. 339, and vol. xxiii. 1592, p. 74.) The case dragged on, and in 1597 he had been a suitor for nine years. (Cal. S. P. Irel., 1597-8, p. 348.)

¹ Viscount Buttevant, member of the Council in Munster, writing on November 4, 1599, to Cecil, who is 'desirous to understand the certainty of all things in this kingdom and particularly in this province,' refers to Crosby thus : 'If I were to pick out one in the whole realm for that purpose I would make choice of him.' (Cal. S. P. Irel., 1599-1600, p. 226.) 4° Her maiestie's person more secured, if no foren enemy be to foster such assailants :

5° Great expenses wilbe avoided :

6° It is like, the warres in Ireland supported by Spaine wilbe the soner ended :

7° Traffic for the Queene and merchants reestablished to ther benefite :

8° The trade of Spain opened for bringing in money :

9° Her maiestie shall have a brething tyme to be better provided for all events :

10° It may be doutd whether England & Low Countreys can suport the warres ther : supress the rebellion in Ireland, & to exploit somewhat in Spaine to werie the king : and force him to better condicions.

Essex pro bello e contra :

1° Spaine by intermission of expence wilbe aboundantie enriched above al princes to ther daunger :

2° Spaine will nott sitt downe with so manie dishonours & therefore no sound peace, but ever will seke revenge :

3° By peace her maiestie must abandon those of Holland & Zeland without hope of rembursement of her money disbursed for ther ayd : or els deliver the Cautionary Townes to have her money of the King of Spaine : which is more dishonorable :

4° The province destitute of the Q^a ayd shalbe made vassels to Spaine : & he thereby inabled to offend the Queene at his will & disposition.

Replicatio pro pace :

Notandum primo quod rationes pro pace validæ sunt et subsistunt, nec indigent sublevamine : & the reasons for war are thus answered :

1° Altho Spaine be inriched by peace to annoy, England by like proporcion shalbe inriched & inabled to defend :

2° The unsurenness of the peace, (which is the gretest doubt) yet it is likelie the peace shall contynew : for, 1° the warre hath ben more losse to him then to England : 2° it is like the error of counsellors that perswaded the king to reduce the Low Countreys to other state then his father left them, is now seene or reformed & that he will be glad to enioy them in the same manner : & 3° for the honor of revenge, proof of impossibilitie to effect & then ever appease men's passions : 4° if the Low Countreys will not be reduced by force in the meane tyme England shall gather manie advantages : also England & Fraunce united, as for politick respectes is likely they will, they shall ever be able to ballance the force of Spaine, altho he had the Low Countreys : which will not be in short time, as apereth by experience of emperor Charles, a prince of as great force & more reputacion then the king : & so England secured enoughe :

3^o Touching the 3 obiecion, it wilbe no reason nor fit for her maiestie to deliver the Cautionary Townes, but she may leave the proteccion of the Low Countreys with honor, for her ayd was till the might have of the king reasonable condicions for ther liberti as subjects & of ther consciences in religion : for which if she be a mediator for them & they utterlie refuse, she may with honor leave them to ther own defence.

And for the loss of monie it is not to be acompted loss that hath kept the enemy so long from amongst us : & if they become obedient to Spaine, he may assent to some order for our satisfaction : if they persist in warre her maiestie may think of some other meanes for her money :

4^o For the 4th reason of warre, that the king wilbe more able to annoy us : it is like the Low Countreys will not in short tyme be reduced by force : in the meane tyme manie accidents will fall out : but if they be reduced by condicions of peace, they wilbe such as we shall not need to feare. for if the K. of Spain remove the army of straungers, both we & they shalbe the more secure : for the Low Countreys are like to desire the amiti of us for ther safetie : also liberti of religion being graunted, such as are so affected will have a dependency on the Queen & never be caried to any violent action against her : quia communis necessitas facit communes amicos. And whatsoever shalbecome of them, Fraunce & England being united, as they wilbe ever ocasioned, they shalbe a counterpoise for Spaine.

So as compare shortlie the reasons of peace & warre together :

1^o The commodities of peace present, the daungers future :

2^o The benefites of peace certen and sensible to be felt, the successe of warre incerten : & the suposed daunger of peace doth depend upon God & may be without daunger :

3^o The peace hath in it as things now stand more of necessitie then the warre, therfor to be preferred :

4° The good of peace to redound to England : of the warre upon others :

5° Peace avoideth blodshed : & strengtheninge of Christendom against infidels : thinge agreable to God & men :

6° reasons of warre onlie humane by presumpcions of daungers future : wherof it is better to leave the dispensation to god, founding our actions upon the rules of conscience & common good of mankind, then upon our wills conceates & suspicions to contraynew courses not commendable but only by necessitie :

On the last day of Michaelmas Term 1599, in the Star Chamber, the Lord Keeper inveighs against insolent libellers and presumptuous discoursers : then abruptly and as it were by the way declares the great expence to which the Queen is put for the preservation of Ireland (which her Majesty is thoroughly determined to preserve); and that the Queen has exhausted £30,000 in 7 months : and that the people are more rebellious than they ever were, and so her treasure is wasted : for Tyrone and all the rebels are prouder and more presumptuous of their power than they were before : so much so that the Secretary says that Tyrone, in a parley lately held with Sir William Warren,¹ said that he had good hope to have a portion in England : and that there are more rebels now than there were in

But the way is, by means of cunning instruments, to put variance and sedition between the Irish themselves ; and in this way to spend a part of the Queen's treasure : and that he himself is the most apt pilot for this matter ; in that he is of kin, as he alleges, with Maguire ; and Maguire is a vassal of O'Dogherty : and he has alliance and credit with Hugh Duff O'Donnell and with O'Boyle, who are both the rivals of O'Donnell. Also he is greatly trusted by Tyrone, who has (as he says) proclaimed himself Protector of the Catholic Faith : and his adversaries are Tirlagh Breselagh who is the son of Con O'Neil, Tyrone's grandfather ; and Sir Arthur O'Neil, son of the late Sir Tirlagh O'Neil, and FitzShaen O'Neil : and to stir up these men to move hostilities against Tyrone is the sure way towards reformation and can be now more easily effected, seeing that Tyrone, if he has held such such

And by force or sedition the best way is to land soldiers at Lough Foile ; and he himself is ready to go with them to be the instrument to move the Irish to serve against Tyrone, as O'Cahan, O'Dogherty, and others. Also he says that he knows most of Tyrone's mind and held parley with him in 1597 by commission : and Tyrone desires restitution of the traitor's lands, and toleration in religion for all Ireland, but not liberty of religious rites ; but to be free from punishment so long as they refrain from open religious observance.

To this center you have drawn as a circumference a collection of manie profitable question[s] of experience at the common lawe, wherein you have manifested your generall studie in all the partes of the lawe, your faithful observacion of the unprinted iudgments, your iudiciall conceates in the apt composing & lerned debating of your cases, having fixed every one of your owne rare invencions to the authoritie of some authentik & firme iudgment.

‘Herin we are to acknowledg your wonderfull diligence, wherof as my self being 6 yeres your chamber fellow was an ey witnesse: so god hath geven you such fruite therof in your publik practize: as that by the best testimonie in our lawe you are consigned with the title of a lerned counsellor, whereby hath redounded great honour to our societie & profit & reputacion to your self:

‘Howbeit these graces I do not attribute to your lerning alone: your faithfull diligence in your clients causes, your temperate cariage in pleding, your discrete moderacion in all other your actions, by which your learning hath received her true lustre and resplendencie, doe assuredlie promise that if you contynew in the true feare of god, & the sincere performance of your dutie in your peculiar vocation: we shall see in short tyme his manifold blessings infinitelie multiplied upon you to the comfort and incoragement of such as follow the same profession.

‘To be short in the name of the societie I render unto you our hartiest thankfullnes, for your liberall expenses and your exceding love & paynes expressed in this exercise, wishing that as the same hath ben a loadestone to draw our attendance, so you may be a loadstarre to exalte us to the imitation of your rare vertues: and so I conclude, out of my peculiar love, with the poet:’

The Printer was a loser by his first impression of Rables: then he caused a precher in his sermon to inveigh against the vanitie therof: since which it hath ben 6 tymes under presse: so much it was in request.

Yong Christopher Swifte refused a challeng of old Sir Georg Beston: saying he wold not geve Beston so much advantage to venture, a lief of 60 yerres to Beston's of three yerres.¹ The amner² in his sermon upon the Queen's nativiti day, said, her health is our solace: her ioy our tryumphe: her lief our preservacion: for if she grieve we morne: if she be sick we languish: if she dye we perishe.

14 Jan. 1600. I was present at the Council, where there was great consultation touching the debasement of the Irish coin: in order that the expenses of the Queen in vanquishing the traitors may be maintained.

First it was agreed that debasement⁴ of coin enhances the price of all merchandise, especially foreign merchandise: and also of victuals and everything else.

2. It was agreed that soldiers receiving their pay in debased coin will be distressed and discontented.

3. That this causes barbarism and idleness in this realme: as was the case before the coin was reformed: for there was no artificer in Ireland before that time.

4. Then the question arose, and it was resolved by all that the old coin must be decried and disannulled by proclamation; or otherwise that base coin will not be regarded or accepted in contracts.

5. Then it was resolved that the ancient standard of England was that in one pound weight of silver there should be twelve ounces: whereof 11 oz. 2 dwt. should be pure and the remaining 18 dwt. should be alloy: and that in the reign of Edward III the value of one ounce of silver was 1s. 8d., but afterwards in the reign of Henry VIII the value of the ounce was raised, at first, to 2s. 6d., by proclamation: and so to be raised by degrees by proclamation to 5s. the ounce.

6. It seems that freedholders who have lands in demesne, or lands whereof they can raise the rent, will not suffer much harm by the debasement, because they can double and treble their rents; but pensioners, officers, soldiers, and all who live by certain rents will be greatly harmed and exceedingly discontented.

7. They agree that if any system of exchange can be effected, so that the soldiers shall be relieved and the rebels bear the loss occasioned by the debasement of the coin, it will hasten peace by reason of the poverty of the rebels. In conclusion it seems to be resolved by all that the penny and half-penny shall be coins of base metal entirely, and threepences, sixpences, and shillings shall be coined, whereof three ounces shall be pure and nine ounces alloy; so that there be three parts base and the fourth part pure; and that a new stamp shall be devised to coin 100,000 for the service of Ireland only: and that all other coins current there shall be decried and disannulled, so that all shall return to England.

And then the Treasurer of Ireland promises that some merchants shall undertake to provide exchange to each soldier or subject, sterling for debased Irish coin, at a loss of two shillings for every pound in exchange: and that he will effect this without loss to the Queen, saving one of £50,000: for as soon as the debased Irish coin comes to be exchanged he will issue it back again to the army: and so he will issue it without loss, saving the £50,000 in the first instance.

In this case precaution must first be taken that no one shall counterfeit this debased coin:

and thus the Queen should have to exchange infinite sums to her detriment: and perhaps it will be a good plan on each issue to have an indented bill, and so to take the bill back again in exchange: and in this way the rebels will be prevented.

Exchange was devised, as it appears, by a statute relating to money in the reign of Edward III, whereby exchange was to afford silver for bullion: and for one coin to have another:
that those of Ireland who brought debased coin should have sterling in England, at a loss of two shillings in the pound: and those who deliver good coin in Ireland should have debased coin there and a one seventh in addition: for instance 23s. 4d. for 20s. good silver: and yet by the double treble and sextuple issue of de-based coin in Ireland (more than the other exchange desires with benefit to the subject) the Queen will gain much. See
Edward III ca. 12, 14 Ric. II ca.

license, and through his officers;
this seems to refer only to foreign exchange.

No silver is to be carried from England to Ireland or from Ireland to England under pain of forfeiture. Temp. Edward III. etc. : divers statutes which prohibit transportation of any silver, gold, bullion or plate out of the realm : and some statutes ordain that no one shall bring coin over sea to England. The reason for this seems to be that our coin was purer than other coin.

Also it appears by a statute of Edward III. that Galley-halfpennies and Scotch coin were debased in their value in England from time to time, as the coin was debased in purity in England.

Crook recorder de Londres apres que la royne fuit in sa royal throne, fuit conduct al barre par 2 councellors de lower howse : & apres 3 humble congees & silence, il fit oration a cel effect.

'Most sacred prince & renowned sovereign : man cannot live without societie, no societie can contynew without order, no order without lawes which are the bonds & ornaments of all societie.

'The highest above all lawes and law makers first ingraved lawes in man's harte to discerne good from evell, to embrace the one & eschew the other : after when vice increased lawes were ordained to protect the good & correct the evell. But sithence the mutabilitie of all thinges had predominance in men's actions, the lawes established must be varied & made aplicable to the infinite diversitie of circumstances.' In lawes & government he said religion was primum, secundum & tercium: & that all her maiestie's lawes (according to the divine inspiracion of her sacred spirite) tended evermore to the establishment of sincere religion, wherein her royall hart was firmly fixed: & therfore no doubt but wold fructifie to her immortal praise & the prosperitie of her people.

2°. Secondlie, he declared that the Lords & Commons assembled had considered of divers publik & private lawes, which now gaspe for brethe from your all powerfull Maiestie who onlie can geve them lief. Her maiestie's lawes are the limbes of iustice tending to the continuance of our happie peace: & it maie not be said of them, Dat veniam corvis, vexat censura columbas: he praised our happie peace & praied we might long enjoy it under her.

3°. Thirdlie he shewed that an honorable councellor, member of the lower howse, had declared to them that Spaine & Rome had conspired against her Maiestie his annointed & absolved them of Ireland from allegiance & thundred all possible threatens against such as persisted in ther loyaltie: they had sent wolves amongst her Maiestie's subiects, some like lions in force of armes to compell, some like lammes by pretence of puritie of religion which was idolatrie to seduce them from ther due obedience.

But ther curses shall retorne upon themselves & they shalbe intrapped in ther owne snares; for god will ever preserve his anointed because her royall hart hathe never started from his holy hestes: for the better preparacion against these cruell foes, the Lords & Commons considering the great charges exhausted in the iust defence of her people have most humble & willinglie (& then made low conges) presented to her maiestie 4 subsidies & 8 fiftenths & tenths, in token of there zelous hartes (tho not equal to the charges), who are evermore redi to sprinkle ther hart bloude in their enimies faces, for the service of her maiestie.

4°. He rendred all humble thanks for her maiestie's most ample gracious and free pardon, commending her iustice to be admirable, so her mercy to be most renowned and magnified to all posteritie: lastlie he craved pardon, for his weeknes, infirmitie & oversights, especiallie in his defections, relating to the howse her maiestie's gracious favours expressed by her towards them in such divine & supernaturall manner, as his weeknes could not undergo so high & weighti a charge: but desired upon his knees that volutas reputabitur pro facto: & so ended.

The Lord Keeper called to the Queen: & she delivered him in secret charge what to answer: who returning to his place said to this effect (both orations held about one howre & no more:)

'Mr. Speaker the Q^s most excellent Maiestie hath hard & considered your grave & lerned speche, & commanded me to signifie her gracious pleasure to ech part of your spech, a charge to hevi for me to undergoe.

'Touching the first part of your spech concerning the praise & necessitie of lawes, her Maiestie geveth all approbacion: especiallie in your conclusion wher you acknowledge that therin & in all her government she hath evermore knitt them to sinceritie of religion: for without that she disdaines all praise of other vertues, quæ splendent sublimitate & franguntur vanitate.

'Touching your lawes made, she findes more private lawes than publick: whereby the charge imposed in the begyning of parliament hath not ben observed: & tyme might better have ben spent in publick, but therein she notes private respects are carried in publick affairs which ought not to be.

'Concerning your 4 subsidies & 8 fiftenth & x^{ths}, presented for the warres, she acknowledges the loving bountie of her subiects to be extraordinarie: but the like cause of expense of treasure was never before: & her maiestie doth take the manner of free geving without grudging, & to be geven in the beginning of the parliament, as thankfullie as the gifte: & tho she accept it as a gift to herself, yet she requireth you & all her subiects to knowe that she hath never ben gredie gryper nor covetous keper, contemning ever more welth without honor: this bountie of her subiects is not to spare or supplie her royall expenses, but in part of the charges bestowed for ther defence, whereof her maiestie is so dearlie affectionate, that she hath sold & doth still sell of her auncient inheritance for the defence of her so liberall & loving subiects; & this subsidie her maiestie challengeth no use or propertie but the troble of distribucion: & sithence her maiestie is so graciouslie thankful for the subsidie, she expecteth that the Lords & Commons will show example from themselves of iust taxacion : & so by example excite others that it maie be as large in deeds as in wordes :

‘ Her maiestie geveth you all great thanks for your discret carriage in debate of your counsell in this parliament : & in especiall because in every occurance that aymed at her prerogative, which she preserveth to the good of her subiects & the offence of none, you preserved the same by petition to her sacred person : obedience better then sacrifice : she nedeth non that cannot obey as of law : Essex.

‘ Her maiestie hath graunted them a gracious and liberall pardon : & she well understandeth what she hath geven and remitted them, whereby her bountie is more to be honored : her sword of Justice never shineth more then oyled with mercy.

‘ And lastlie to you Mr. Speker she not onlie thinketh you worthy of pardon but geveth you great thanks for your wise & discret cariage : acknowledging your deserts equal with any your predecessors.’

All charged to repaire to the countrey & not to winter in London like butterflies spend summer abroad : that the Justices of peace be vigilant & not drones, nor quareulous champertors.

The Parliament being dissolved & ech one redie to depart without further expectacion as the manner is, the Queen’s Maiestie raised herself out of her royal seate & made a short, pithie, eloquent & comfortable spech somewhat to this effect : ¹ for besides I could not well heare all she spake, the grace of pronounciacion & of her apt & refined wordes so lernedlie composed did ravish the sense of the herers with such admiracion as every new sentence made me half forget the precedents.

‘ My Lords, we have thought it expedient in this general

assemblie to lett you know out of our owne mouth the unfayned attestacion of our hart.

‘First we humblye acknowledg the innumerable & unspekeable benefits of Almighty God for our miraculous preservacion from the traitorous practises of miscreant subiects who, designed thereto by foren enimies, have sought by taking away our lief, (which we are ever most willing to render up to him that gave it) have sought therby to bring our people & kingdome, (being farre more deare to us then our owne lief) into perpetuall thraldome & foren tiranie.

‘And to saie the truthe ther have ben so manie & divers strata-gems & malicious practises & devises to surprise us of our lief, as in recording therof I am forced to recognize the mercyes & omnipotencie of the eternall God, by whose providence I have escaped all ther snares, & some of the malefactors sentenced to perpetuall shame & deserved punishment.

‘The number of these wicked complotters, the severall manners of undertaking therof, & how some of them were discovered before the came to ther ripenes, other brought forth abortive, some others even in ther full maturitie extinguished, it were to small purpose particulerlie now to recount; ther be divers gentlemen our ministers that can redelie testifie the truthe & circumstances hereof. Our purpose onlie is to acknowledge our constant & irremovable dependencie upon his mercyes by whose goodnes we that trust ever in him have ever ben preserved.

‘Next you shall understand that touching our civill government, sithence the begynning of our raigne, in all causes we have undertaken to heare & determyne, our hart hath ben as a playne table redie to receave any impression: so most willing to heare the allegacions of ech partie, yet evermore inclining our sentence to the sinceritie of proef & soundnes of reason.

‘Touching our affaires with foren princes I must discover some things not known to many, and those of our Councill in the secrecy of our state. In the begynning of our raigne those of the Low Countreys presented manie petitions to us & our neighbour princes to be protected against inquisitioners of Spaine & other opresions not sufferable, wherein we remembering the auncient amytie between our predecessors & the howse of Burgundie, & knowing how farre Spaine was remote from the Low Countreys & fearing his soldiers revolt ther for want, sent pay to them to conteyne them,

& advertised the King of Spaine, by twelve persons severallie at the lest: that if he did not loose the raigne in easing the Lowe Countreys from ther over hevi burdens, they were redie & likelie to seek their protecion from other foren princes to his harme & dishonor. But this potent prince, (whose sowle I trust is with God, howsoever his demerites have bene towards us) not regarding our advise, continued still in extremities: which forced those people to seek & sue for our protecion by manie petitions, & in ther owne wisdome finding our inclination inseparablie knitt to contynew the former amitie with Spaine, they shewed us the severall instruments wherby the king & the emperor his father were sworn (a strange oath for kinges) that if those subiects did not enioy the ymmunities therein promised them the might lawfullie seek protecion of any other prince: exciting us out of our compassionate disposicion to relieve ther knowen extremities. Upon which we graunted them some defence, onlie till by our mediacion or process of tyme some moderacion might be founde, which we thought was required in christianiti & yet no brech of amitie: but the late king (before this) in recompense of our princelie kindnes towards him in our former advertisement & lones, excited a daungerouse rebellion in the north by the earles of Northumberland & Westmoreland, which being quicklie & happelie extinguished, he still contynewed all malicious courses, I neede not say of attemptes of invacion but the invacion it self which by God's potencie was defeated. And now the yong king¹ following his father in malice will begynne it semes warre upon us: when it is well knowen that we have often refused the resignacion of the Low Countreys (which the Archduke hath) into our protecion, (a great temptacion to any prince to be soveraigne over so rich a people) being led therto by a desire not to infringe in any point that former amitie, & especiallie desiring an established prosperitie & peace to our people rather then any enlargement to our owne honour. This we speak to lett you & all others knowe this warre is causeless, not drawen upon us by anie provocation of ours, but a rashe enterprise, proceeding of malice or vaine glorie: wherby as we nothing feare, so lett no man doubt but that the iustice & omnipotence of God is such, that in every warre he geveth victorie to the innocent, & fighteth evermore for those that sincerelie serve him: upon which confidence we may repose our selves in corage & alacritie, whatsoever be practized against us. Concerning our affection to our people, it is our happiest felicitie & most inward ioy, that no prince ever governed a more faithfull valiant & loving people: whose peace & prosperitie we evermore preferre before all temporall blessings: & be you well assured whether we mak peace or warre, the good of our people shalbe evermore preferred therin. We never attempted any thinge to damage or dishonour our people & tho we may not attribute merites to our owne witt in chosing out the safest harbour for us all to ancor at: yet the finger of God, directing the actions of all princes that sincerely serve him, & our long lived experience, tho in a meane witt, shall mak us able to discerne & embrace that which shall tend to the prosperitie of our people: to whom I wishe, that they that wishe them best may never wishe in vain.'

In the upper parliament hangings, amongst other emblems, the embleme of raging love is sett in the arays with these 2 verses:

*Cura placens, predulce malum, tristisque voluptas:
Heu vesana furens pectora vexat amor.*

26 Jan. 1601: her majestie commaunded me to deliver this message to the lord Maior¹: first she marveled he did not proceade with the erection of an hospitall for relief of pore at 300*l. per annum*, entended & agreed on by his predecessor: secondlie requiring him to cause restraint of the vagarant roagues about London: & to retorne his private answare.

His Lordship, 27 Jan. 1601; desired me retorne this answare to the first: that the aldermen denied anie such conclusion to have ben: & that latelie at the instance of the chief Justice, his Lordship & the aldermen had labored therin, but could not perswade it by reason of other great charges happening of late which yet are not collected: namelie 4,000*l.* paid for 2 gallies, 18 soldiers (sic) sent to Ostend, others to Ireland: that Bridewell geven to so good a purpose by E. 6, was now made a prison & so spent much that way: & that Surrey & Middlesex, for whom this relief was chieffie, should provide for ther owne.

Wilbraham's spech being Master of Requests to seriant Pelham for his farewell in Graies Inne hall, Nov: 1601: being called seriant to thentent to be Chief baron in Ireland: & in answare to the seriant.

'Mr. Seriant we do all excedinglie reioice to see vertue is worthelie honored, in a gentleman so beloved in this societie.

'Your humble recognizion to her Maiestie that so graciouslie hath called you to this preferment doth argue to the world that being so unfainedlie thankfull to acknowledg, you wilbe seriouslie intentive to deserve this highe favor.

'For your gratefull ennumeracion of benefitz ascribed to this societie, we cannot but commend your humilitie being the proper ensigne to all your vertues, & embrace your love out of our best affections, promising that as your advauncement hath geven honor to our felowship, so shall our assistance be evermore redie to improve your fortunes.

'God graunt that this your dignitie raised out of vertue, may be a day dawning starre to geve light & example to others by like desert to mount into the same sphere.

'It were presumpcion to advise you in any thing: yet we in kindnes of good will may entreate you to call to mynd that in this plentifull harvest of pladders you are selected to the highest dignitie incident to your calling. Remember therefore you are placed as a probacioner in an open theatre to this end that if by publick triall you shall approve & as I hope increse the opinion of your lerning & sinceritie in this ministeriall function: you may heareafter be advaunced to magistracie of weightie employment for the service of your prince & good of your countrey.

'Forgett not then these short memorialls: first that the grace procedeth from God, the bountie from a soveraign prince, the meanes hath ben the comendacion of frends: but the merite hath growen out of your owne vertues.

'Therefore to conclude, be you of good corage, put on in God's name all sailes, & now shew your self a circumspect pilott. We will wish you evermore a prosperous wynd, & that the haven which is in your kennyng may prove a happie harbour for you to ancor at: finis.' [After in Aug. he was chosen Chief baron for Ireland.]

24 Maii, 1602 : the Lords of Councell falling in spech of the great exhaust of 180,000*l.*, these last 7 yeres warres, & that the charge now was of Irish warres, being 19,000, viz. nynteene thousand in pay was 400,000*l.*¹ per annum, & that the treasure & men of England being wasted, it was not to be endured : & that potts & pewter were selling amongst the pore for this present subsidie.

The Lords seemed to agree it was the Irish warres had impoverished England, & not the warres of Spain or Low Countreys : & if the Queen had the treasure spent in Ireland they all agreed we should contynew warre with Spaine.

They all agreed the Low Countreys will never become subiects, to Spaine or Fraunce or any other : but will maynteyne a contynuall warre. And therein are able by strength of the fortificacions & townes to werie Spaine & Fraunce : with our ayd of men especiallie.

They also agree that we may not with any safetie suffer Spaine or the Arch Duke to be absolute in the Low Countreys : for therby our daunger were farre more.

That point excepted if we might contynewe amitie with the Low Countreys, peace with Spaine were to be embraced : rebus sic stantibus.

But they were devided touching peace to be moved by us with Spaine : for the Lord Tresurer said, the warre in the Low Countreys was not to end the cause but a lingering warre to waste us & them : & that it was fittest to have peace with Spaine before we be to farre spent : for he hath a spring that yeldeth contynuall supplie, his Indies : & we are like a standing water, which warre will exhaust & mak drie & barren : & the maintenance of those rebels is to wast England : & wished a tretie but wold desparre the execution (?) now for ever.

The Lord Admirall Mr. Controller² & Mr. Secretarie contra, first to be moved by us were her maiestie's dishonor, yet they wold be content a tretie might be moved from them : some good might arize by gayning tyme.

Secondlie ther is no amitie firme amongst princes but as serves ther common weales, wherof they have government: & therfore Spaine & Fraunce are now in no better termes almost, but as before the peace.

Thirdlie no safetie to have peace with Spaine, for that the Infanta makes title of succession.

Lastlie & chieffie if we should conclude peace with Spaine all agree we must secretlie ayd the Lowe Countreys against them: in requitall whereof they have & will ayd the rebels in Ireland: so the peace of no availe to us: if we have such warres in Ireland, we weare as good to have it with Spaine: but if peace were with the rebels ther, (as M^r Secretarie said every good councillor wold advise) then wold our condicions of peace with Spaine be more honorable & beneficiall.

But the Lord Tresurer replied that if an outward peace were with Spaine, the rebels wold submitt themselves to any condicions: & tho the peace break after, we should gaine advantage of tyme & treasure, the wast wherof is unsupportable.

The Lord Keper, Erle of Worcester & M^r Secretarie Herbert were silent all this round disputation: & so they rose from the table, non wayting ther but myself & M^r Wade:¹ some say we take no harm by some warre, to wast idle: quaere hic antea, reasons utrinque for warre or peace.

The somme is: first, they to have fredome, as English, to transport woll & cloth the chief trade to the Empire onlie: & to bring ther countrey commodities to us as free as English: but if the bring foren commodities, to pay custome as strangers: & to have the Stilliard howse allotted to them: as it hath ben.

The Bishop of London, in the Star Chamber, February 1602, said that Jesuits and secular priests confessed, on examination, that perjury was lawful for Catholics in England, because they say that Pope Pius V. has excommunicated Queen Elizabeth; and so all her magistrates and their authority are annihilated. And their text is, an oath taken before a judge illegally appointed is not binding: so he says they hold it lawful for Catholics to cozen all Protestants in bargains and debts.

Also it appears that the Bishop of London, on the advice of the Council, and, as he told me, especially by the Secretary's advice, has worked to bring about discord between the Jesuits and the secular priests, whereby they have written di-found guilty on very insufficient evidence. He died in prison in September 1592. Thomas Philipps writes, March 22, 1591: 'Sir John Perrot was committed to the Tower. . . . There is a diversity of opinion respecting him, as men are diversely inclined to the Chancellor or the Lord Treasurer, who was said to be sick when Perrot was sent to the Tower, and has not left his chamber since. . . . The Earl of Essex [favours him] . . . but the Chancellor has great dependency, and if his proofs are as evident as the accusations are odious they will weigh all down.' (S. P. Dom. 1591-4, p. 21.)

vers railing quodlibets and pamphlets against one another, so that the treacherous purpose of the Jesuits to depose the Queen as unlawful has appeared from their very writings. Also, in their appeal to Rome against each other,¹ they left the Pope discontented—the Jesuits, who have the countenance of Spain entirely, because the plea of the secular priests was not rejected; the seculars because they are not more countenanced. But with one voice they are in reality in agreement against the Protestants, however their writings would imply the contrary, as the Bishop and secretary say and believe.

and nobilitie nere London: wher was declared to them that sithence the first feare by her maiestie's indisposition, the Lords hath ordered the navie to be in redines against foren attempts: & divers partes of the kingdome had admonicion: so had the shiriefs lieutenants & deputie lieutenants Justices of peace throughout the kingdom: the lieutenant of the Tower the presidents of provinces & the Deputy of Ireland the maior of London, especiallie, & other corporacions: & stay made of all shippinge: therby they supposed a good securitie to the kingdome for tyme present: yet forasmuch as if god should call her maiestie, at which time the authoritie of the councellors of estate did actuallie cease, & then the nobilitie of the kingdome & such as had contynuyng authorities as corporacions by charter of inheritances & constables by common lawe, & all subiects, obliged by dutie to preserve the peace for the future successor: therfore the councell had desired the nobles to be in redines to withstand all attempt against the peace of the kingdome, wherof they were principall pillars, & to ioyne with them for some course to establish the peace in future tyme; & said the lords were the universal & grand councell of the realme if god called her maiestie, altho during her brethinge the ordering of the peace belonged to the direcion of her privie councell: wherupon they concluded of some unitie amongst themselves: but yet I could not understand that any publick nomination was of any certen successor, altho all spake generallie for our gracious king to ther frends privatelie: yet it semed the succession was amongst the lords & councell so assured to them, that before the Queen's deathe a proclamation was drawn redie for the signature of the lords; and it pleased God to geve such tyme of preparacion & expectacion of her deathe, that she dying the Thursdaie after midnight, at 9 of the clocke in the morn, the councell & lords had assembled them selves at Whitehall (coming from Richmond) & ther the 24 of March within 8 houres after the Queen's death subscribed the Proclamation with 30 hands at least: & then instanter proclaimed the Queen's death, & the true and rightfull succession of King James the first king of England, of Scotland James the sixte: Wherupon the people both in citie & counties fynding the iust feare of 40 yeres, for want of a known successor, dissolved in a minute did so reioyce, as few wished the gracious Quene alive againe: but as the world is were inclined to alteracion of government, bothe papistes and protestants, as it semed: manie having discontentment in ther private opinions tho perhaps non in truthe: & more hoping to be bettered by the suseding kinge, in whose vertues & prudence ther is admirable expectacion. God for his mercy grant the wealth of England, & the flatterie of the Courte do not in tyme deprave his government: nor that the envie of malignant princes seek not to seduce us nor non of his subiects from ther constant obedience, nor our synnes provoke God to bereave us of so happie a kinge, untill his church be firmelie buylt & his people contynewed manie ages in the former unspeakable and admirable peace under Elizabeth.

King James having by post, sent from the Lords and Councell, receved advertizement of the Queen's death, sent back, in post, a letter wherein he required the lords and councell to kepe ther attendance & assemblie still at Whitehall for preservacion of the peace: & that he purposed to contynew every officer in his place: & immediatelie after sent the Lord of Kinlosse (after made master of Rolles) to shew the lords his mynd in all thinges; but rather to be an intelligencer & an observer of all thinges, being a civilian & verie wise. About this tyme the great men sent eche secretlie ther frendes & agents into Scotland, to prepare ther way with his Maiestie, advancing ther credit, by furthering the proclamation, or because they had ben favorers of his title before, or for that they had ben with the king in the Queen's tyme: or had endured troble for desiring in parliament proclamation of his true title of succession: manie other labored ther frends to go seek places of the king before he departed Scotland, especiallie to be of his privie chamber. These all had hopefull answers.

And about the 8 of Aprill 1603: the King¹ came into Barwicke, wher he was receved with great ioy as kinge: & all his way to London entertayned, with great solempnitie & state: all men reioycing that his lott & ther lott had fallen in so good a ground.² He was mett with great troupes of horse & wayted on

In every countie it pleased his maiestie to knight the chief gents in every shire commended to him by the nobles and favorites about him: & manie extravagants of other counties, & some unworthy in ther proper counties, labored with such instance to be knighted that it cam to be a great gaine (as was thought) to the favorites. In his maiestie's passage to his owne howse ther were 300 knightes at the lest made, never knowen but by report to his maiestie: & it grew a publick spech that Englishe had the blowes & Scottish the crownes: but as it semed the king misliking out of his royall harte that either the unworthy should receve his favors in dignitie or that the worthy should come to favor by unworthy meanes, removed from the Tower to Grenewich, & ther published that such as expected knighthood should attend till the coronation: whereby the thronge at Courte (that evermore swarmed about his maiestie at every back gate & privie dore, to his great offence) was sodenlie abated, partlie by delay of ther expectacion, & because it was litle to ther ease to attend the Court upon ther owne charges: so as his maiestie to his iust contentment had convenient tyme to see his howses castells forests & chases within 20 miles of London: & therein took high delight, especially to see such stoare of deare & game in his parkes for hunting, which is the sport he preferreth above all worldlie delighes & pastime.

It is the manner, after the death of a long rayning prince, that by discontented mynds or witts starved for want of employment, manie new proiectes, sutes, invencions & infinite complaints are brought to the successor instantlie, hoping, if they prevent discoverie, to prevaile in ther enterprises: so it happened at this tyme: for the Scottishe knowing & the Englishe coniecturing a facilitie in obtayning sutes by reason of his maiestie's most benigne & bountifull disposicion especiall towards his old servants, they never ceased to devise & sollicite sutes to his maiestie & complaints of all natures: such as were beggars were left to the ordinarie Maisters of Requests: sutes of bountie or grace were preferred by most of his Chamber, wherein the King hath ben abused by false informacions, sometymes of the qualitie of such as sued for offices, other tymes by supresing the worth of the sutes: that if his wisdom had not apeareed in the cloudes, & that some wise counsellors had in part fortold him, no doubt, as some escapes must ever happen in the entrance into a new government, so in these sutes for lands, pencions, offices in possession & in revercion, manie more errors had been committed to the damage of the crowne & government, & the grief of the best affected subiects.

This being a book of observations for my age or children: I writ this short & rude memoriall of the Queen's defection & the King's iniciacion, as a thing most memorable wherein I note.

First: the mortalitie of princes, to make me more assured of the brevitie & incertentie of my owne lief.

Second: that when we think death furthest of, then as a thief he surprised us: for the Quene even to my self at my last audience not 5 daies before she beganne to sicken, at lest in mynd, did in extreme cold wether shew me her sommer like garments, contemning furies to withstand winter cold: & even then was death redie to knock at her dore, when nether her self her successor nor people dreamed of any such accident.

Thirdlie, I make use by the example of David's saying that the harts of princes are in the handes of the Lord:¹ for her Maiestie (as all princes do imitating ther god) did desire perpetuall glorie above all thinges: and amongst her manifold & rare vertues of nature & arte, this was the onlie detraction that she had not power to geve, wher it was merited: but was as a bailie to preserve that which she needed not in her sole person for her successor's availe: to whom God hath & will geve manie high spreading branches, that will easelie draw up the full sappe from this roote, which the former sole branche had not power to doe: & if she had disposed 20th or 30,000*l.* to the comfort of her long worne thredbare pore old servants & paid her debts, she had died, as she did, the mirrhoe of her sex: so had she ben glorified by fame & love above all her best deserving progenitors: & altho that ne doubt was the highest obiect of that renowned Quene, yet she aymed amisse by his providence who wold have her (as apered in her long lyngering & willing sicknes) ioy in no worldlie thinge, but suffred her entierlie to leave them to those, of whom she was at lest ielouse, and to draw her in her end to depend upon the suer ancorhold Jesus Christ, with whom her sowle resteth.

Lastlie we & all future ages have cause to honour & admire the great providence of God that hath geven one language, one religion, one continent, & in most thinges one conformitie of lawes & customes, to thentent to unite the kingdomes, that by hostilitie of warre, were alwaies utter enemies: so as therby his church being strengthened & we, by assurance of god's eternall providence, delivered of the feare which hath perturbed the wisest of both the nations these 50 yeres, may sing magnificat, &c.

To conclude: because future ages will perhaps write either incertently or variablie of our late Quene or her next successor, being both princes of highest renowne for all externall happines that nature arte or fortune can afford: I having been Master of Requests in ordinarie 3 yeres to the Queen, & 3 monethes to the Kinge, will acording to the meanes of my apprehencion without flatterie sett downe the nature & vertues with the aparant defectes in both the princes.

The Quene was of comelie personage, sound in helth till her last sicknes, strong of constitution: her onlie phisicion was her owne observacion & good diett: not tyed to howres of eating or sleping, but following appitite: not delighted in bellie cheare to please the tast, but feding alwaies upon meates that susteyne & strengthen nature. In all thes habitudes the King's maiestie, her kindesman, hath semblable disposicion respecting his age & difference of sex.

The King hath a magnanimous spirite, venturous to hazard his owne bodie in hunting especiallie & most patient of labour cold & heate. So was the Queen farre above all other of her sex & yeres.

Both of them most mercifull in disposition : & they sone angry, yet without bitternes or stinging revenge.

In prudence iustice & temperance, they are both the admiracion to princes in ther severall sexes.

The King most bountifull, seldome denying any sute: the Quene strict in geving, which age & her sex inclyned her unto : the one often complayned of for sparinge : th'other so benigne, that his people feare his over redines in gevinge.

The Quene slow to resolucion, & seldome to be retracted : his maiestie quick in concluding & more variable in subsistinge.

The Queen solemne and ceremonious, & requiring decent & disparent order to be kept convenient in ech degree : & tho she bare a greater maiestie, yet wold she labour to entertayne strangers sutors & her people, with more courtlie courtesie & favorable speches then the King useth: who altho he be indeede of a more true benignitie & ingenuous nature, yet the neglect of those ordinarie ceremonies, which his variable & quick witt cannot attend, makes common people iudge otherwise of him.

The Quene & King most desirous ever to please the people, & prevent charge to them: but the Queen greved the people in priviledges & monopolies, which I know was farre contrarie to her princelie nature: withal mishswacion that they were profitable for the common weal & that some of them yelded her a rent & saved her renew, which otherwise should have ben weakened by such instant sutors, were the cause she graunted them: now the King by pulling them downe & losing the profit of those rents hath purchased, tho at a deare price, a sure inheritance in the love of his people.

The Queen took delight & made profit in simulacion & dissimulacion & therby discovered fashions & pretences & favorers to sutes, & the true meaning of her severall counsellors in matters of importance: the King semes to neglecte that as bazenes, thinking his owne witt sufficient to exploit thinges pertinent by ordinarie meanes, without such labor & insinuacion.

The Queen was quick of apprehencion, wise in counsell by reason of her great reading & overreaching experience: of an admirable felicitie of memorie: & albeit of great constancie, yet by continuall labor, her benigne nature was changed & in parte depraved by yeares & ielosies & ill affected about her: which she could hardlie eschue, being in age as a recluse cloistered to heare onlie such tunes as her kepers sounded unto her, whereby some thinges (tho good) were effected by arte of concurring in one tune that reason could never perswade her unto.

The King is of sharpest witt & invencion, redie & pithie speche, an exceding good memorie: of the swetest pleasantest & best nature that ever I knowe: desiring nor affecting any thing but true honor. As his lerning and religious vertues hath extolled him above all princes in the world, so I praie unfainedlie that his most gracious disposition & heroick mynd be not depraved with ill counsell, & that nether the welth & peace of England mak him forgett God, nor the painted flatterie of the Court cause him forgett himself.

6 Aug. 1603: 4 Agents from the nobilitie & gentry of Ireland were committed to the Tower, for presenting a petition to have the publick use of ther religion, & to be governed with ther owne nacion: & they have ther coyne better,³ the religion could not be altered but by parliament, & ther action herein tended to sedition: also the petition was presented by them having assembled 30 or more persons of the nobles & gentlemen of Ireland that attended for other sortes, as tho the wold put his maiestie in feare, if he graunted not ther uniust desire.

They were told at the commitment that his maiestie was firm in his faithe; & some said he said in some publik audience, he wold rather fight in bloud to the knees then geve tolleracion of religion.

7 Aug.: The Lords finding the Queen's funerall, the King's coronation, his attendance to be brought in, his liberall giftes & such extraordinarie charges, had spent the treasure, sent to Londoners to borow £40,000 who answered faintlie:

These 4 propositions were made to encrease the King's treasure: proponed by the Lord Treasurer.

1° to sell all copiholders ther frehoulds, which was thought the rediest way:

2° to grant leases for 60 yeres of all the kinge's lands, or fee farmes, taking small fines and dobling or trebling the rents:

3° to have composicion for respite of homage:

4° the Master of Wardes¹ said he was to have wardes torned to a certain annual rent to be propounded in parliament.

Monday 9 Sept.: 1603: I was at Oxford; wher lying at the Crosse Inne, the best in the citie, yet was ther two howses on either side adioyning infected with plague:² sed deus nos protegat.

There was the Spanishe Ambassador lodged in Christchurch and the Archduke's Ambassador lodged in Mawdelin Colledge: the attended ther audience at the king's coming to Wodstock.³

I surveyed the chiefest colledges: 1° Christchurch which was ment to have ben a famous monument, but never finished by the founder Cardinall Wolsey: it was ment to be a square of 8 score: three parts built, but the church not builded: ther is the fairest hall with great church windoes, & the largest kichin I ever sawe.

Mawdelins is the second chief colledge: a large uniform square, about 4 score yardes within & all clostered benethe: a hall with church windoes, & a chappell fairer then faire & lardge churches: ther are walkes sufficient to environ a litle towne: for besides a close of x acres walled about for walkes & severall divided walks with ash trees, they have manie orchards walled in, & ech chamber to 2 Fellows have a peculiar orcharde.

They have walkes also made in the medowes wherin the river of Temmies, & of Charwell do runne & meete; invironed close walk of willow & some elmes, to walk the distance of half a mile, in shadowes: this is the most compleet & fairest colledg & walks in England: (tho Trinitie Colledg square is much larger & fairer.)

Martyn College is a second to this & with statlie hall & chappell & square equall almost to Mawdelin: & I think a cloister in a second court fairer: a faire garden but not such large walks as the former.

All Sowles Colledg doth almost equall Martyn Colledg, but the square not so great: & without cloister.

Brazen Nose Colledg hath a nose of brass upon the gate: it is a pretie square uniform, but the hall square & chappell nothing to the former: yet statelie & colledg like: & to this most colledgs in Cambridg are equall.

Universitie Colledg is the auncientest Colledg: Jesus Colledg, Lincolne Colledg & others I saw on the outside: they seme farr inferior to the former.

All these 4 great colledgs have ther halles mounted 20 steppes from above the ground: but in Cambridge the halls stand upon the ground: & all in Oxford built of free hewen stone: the most in Cambridg of bricke.

Yet the gatehouses & coming into Trinitie & St Johns in Cambridge is more statelie then any in Oxford.

Ther is 16 Colledges & 8 Halles in Oxford.

Eche of the 5 colledges I surveyed have good libraries; but the chieft wonder in Oxford is a faire Divinitie Schole with church windoes: and over it the fairest librarie called the Universitie Librarie founded & supplied dailie by Mr. Bodley, that is thought for bewtie of building & wainscott frames & chaynes to kepe the books, will equall any in christendome: all the windoes of all the libraries have but two lightes & a transome, & sett nere together of equall distance, the one half wall thother windowe, by equall distance.¹ All the Colledg windowes are likewise but 2 lightes, & some have transomes & some none : & the toppe of ech window is not flatt or square, but round as an arch at the toppe.

Mawdelins, Martyn Colledg & as I remember All Sowles Colledges wer builded by 3 successive bishops of Winchester¹ wholie : the towne of Oxford fairer & larger then Cambridge, but Cambridge hath a farre fairer markt place.

Oxford stands lowe, with rich meadowes about the rivers that runne by it : & Oxford is invironed with pretie litle hills two miles off by south & west : that part northward a flatt : the soile is clay & sand : a lighter ground & mold.

But Cambridge standes in a large flatt every way close to the river : & in a miry depe clay soile : all arable about it, in effect wanting the pleasure of medowes.

This progresse, Sept : 1603, I saw Salisberie called New Salisberie : th'old stoad on the toppe of a hill, & decayed for want of water.

Wherupon the towne was about E. 3 tyme builded two miles off in a flatt low ground & builded upon piles : the towne is built chequerwise, that at ech center you may look into 4 streetes : & ther is a river whereby ther be drawn into every streete a streame of water contynuallie runninge.

Ther is a rare faire & large cathedrell church in this citie, built by the bishop ther : & the building contynewed 40 yeres : & the charges aperes by the old books.

The Earle of Pembroke hath 2 miles off a faire howse called Wilton,² a large & high built square of hewen stone : the roames having ther lightes but one way into the square are malencholik & dark.

furnish it with books (Anthony Wood, Hist., &c., of the University of Oxford [1796], ii. pp. 265-6). Casaubon, who visited Oxford in 1613, writes of the Bodleian as 'a work rather for a king than a private man.' The divinity school both for its architecture and the library contained in it has his unstinted praise. 'Nothing in Europe is comparable.' (Boase's Oxford, p. 139.)

² The seat of William Herbert, Earl of Pembroke, where James I. passed part of September 1603 and the whole of October (Nichols's Progresses of James I. i. 281).

Two miles from Salisberie on th'other side, Sir Thomas Gorge hath built a faire new howse¹ of stone, a triangle with 3 great round towers at ech end, wherein are his fairest chambers: & he hath the fairest garden & grene walks invironed with the river, & grenesward court before his gate, that I have seene: all his windowes are but 2 lightes with a transome, & yet being sett thick & uniform shew well & faire: but hath few lodging in his howse: it is much spent in pantreyes.

The first Christmas of worthy king James was at his court at Hampton, A^o 1603: wher the French,² Spanish³ & Polonian Ambassadors were severallie solemplie feasted: manie plaies & daunces with swordes: one mask by English & Scottish lords: another by the Queen's Maiestie & eleven more ladies of her chamber presenting giftes as goddesses.⁴ These maskes, especialli the laste, costes 2000 or 3000¹, the aparells: rare musick, fine songes: & in iewels most riche 20000¹, the lest to my iudgment: & her maiestie 100000¹:⁵ after Christmas was running at Ring by the King & 8 or 9 lords for the honour of those goddesses & then they all feasted together privatelie.

Jan. 1603. The King's maiestie had an assemblie of the church bishops, & of the lernedst devines called puritans: and after 3 daies conference whereat I was witness the devines confessed scruples: corner cap: crossing in baptism: rings in marriage. Homelies read in churches wher wante lerned prechers, kneling at communion, common praier with preching, confirmation of children, private baptisme so it were by a minister, to be verie auncient in the primitive church: & the two last to be necessarie, thother indifferent, & to be admitted for decency & unitie: & the king's maiestie will have some things in the book of common praier explained to take away scandall: the herizies in the Apocripa not to be reade: & all the church brought to this unitie by moderacion, & perswacion of bishops to prechers that be honest & not contencious: but scismatical prechers to be coerced:

allowance geven to the 3 articles they are to subscribe, being reade, as I remember were :

1. The King's supremacie allowed by all, as governour : spirituall men to do ther duties in ther callings.

2. Nothing in the common praier book, these obscurities explained, dissonant from the word of God.

3. The articles ratified by parliament not to be contrariant to the canonically scripture.

It is resolved a new translation shalbe of the bible : and this common catichism with some enlargement to be in every church said, not divers nor long cathechisms : for discipline, the rigour & abuse of excommunication, the iudges & bishops to devise another censure : for planting a lerned ministerie, in the north, Wales & Ireland, commissioners apointed : to reforme quantum potest. The King's Maiestie concluded an unitie in indifferent things : but in matter essencially to salvacion, better to obey God then man. Predestinacion & elecion not meete to be preched, but with great respect, & that as a father said to be believed adscendendo, begynning at our sanctificacion, which doth argue iustificacion : & that argues calling and elecion : & that ther is an inseparable linke & coniunction of these 4 : & the frailtie such as non can be presumptuouslie assured of his elecion, but must work his salvacion with feare, & out of workes to prove his calling : Reus doctissimus et eloquentissimus disputator omnium : idque coram clero.

The Commissioners for the Hanse Townes in Germanie have had often conference with the Lords, 23 Sept. 1604.

They claime auncient priviledges in England, granted by E. 2 : & after confirmed by patent & parliament by E. 4.

Ther chief clayme is to be as free of all customes as English borne for all transportacions & importacion & to be free of all trades & in all townes in England.

This contynued till E. 6 made an order by his counsell, 4^o 6^o, proving those liberties forfett : first because they were no corporacion capable therof ; but chieflie by abusing the liberties in coloring foreners goods, denying us lik mutuall commerce with them, enlarging ther Hanses and ther trade to the ruyne of Englishe. Queen Marie, at the instance of King Philip, condescended to some liberties : but the Hanses never accepted therof, but have made ever challenges to them : & having some moderacions of those liberties ofred them by Queen Elizabeth, the refused, and caused the Emperor by strict mandate to inhibite us the Empyre, circa 89: (the Staade and other cities have entertayned our merchants for the necessitie they have of our wolls & clothes).

And now after deliberacon & by his Maiestie's direcion the Hanses have ther answare this 23 Sept. 1604 at Hampton Court.¹

First that the king & counsell find ther auncient liberties void causa predicta: & the same denied these last 60 yeres to them: Touching ther desire to have some new treatie for more moderate liberties, utrimque; answare was, that the state of England might not endure them to be as free as English in customes especiallie: for so our trade of our merchants wold be overthrowen, & our navie decay: but they were offred to have as great liberties as any foren in amitie with the king have: & to grant them more, were to draw on the king the dailie importunitie and mislike of other princes.

Note the mischief to allow them equall fredom with Englishe in custom (which is doble custom to strangers) is that the Hanses carying in bottomes farre cheper, & having more alliance & fredome in passing the Sound & otherwise then English, they might sell better chepe, & ingrose our clothes & stoppe & open our vent & trade at ther wills: and therfore the Hanses being denyed ther liberties with protestacions of all other amitie, as to have ther stilliard howse or such lik curtesie, departed, not expecting so finall an answare.

All our feare is, if the Hanses have credit with the Emperour, he will proclaime a new inhibicion against us: but our merchants answare the Hanses have no such interest in the Emperour, & manie tounes in the confines of the Empire & Denmark will desire the residence of our trade staple, so precious as they cannot want it.

It semes by often debates of Councillours, that it is unmeete by concluding peace² with Spain we should geve him the redier passage to command Holland & the Low Countreys: for therby we should have to stronge a neighbour to nere us, as Spaine is : which were to bring us to perill dailie if he fall in his faith & peace : & if the articles of peace be broken in small matters, it is not like the king will warre against any of them, especiallie for wrongs to merchandize, &c., being private, but live in amitie with both.

The last Sunday in October 1605, Sir Georg Carew,¹ Treasurer of Ireland, made petition to have his great accompt finished by the Lords Commissioners : Answere was made that Sir John Ramsay² had begged of his Maiestie the benifite of the deceates in the Tresorer's accompts & that his maiestie willed a staie : the lord chauncellor said in H. 6³ tyme, a generall complaint was to parliament against Michael de la Pole chauncellor, & being referred the iudges said it was to generall & not by the lawes to be answered unto : therupon the same was drawn into more particularitie & so objected & answered in parliament : so this complaint against the Treasurer is now followed by Mr Ramsay defending before 4 principal of the Councill.

Deo gratias.

The 5 of Nov. 1605 : the Lords & Commons attended to expect the King's coming the begynning of this parliament then to be held by prorogation :

A week before, the Lord Mountegle imparted to the King & Council, a letter sent to his hands by one unknowen & fled :⁴

² Sir John Ramsay had been the King's page at the time of the Gowrie conspiracy, when he stabbed Ruthven. In 1606 James created him Viscount Haddington, and in 1620 Earl of Holderness. The records of the reign are full of gifts and grants to him. See S. P. Dom. xxvi. 45, as quoted by Gardiner, i. 330). On Oct. 25, 1605, Salisbury in a letter to Lake speaks of 'Sir John Ramsay's complaint of deceit' (S. P. Dom. 1603-10, p. 237).

⁴ Monteagle received the letter at his house at Hoxton on October 26, 1605;

wherein he was advised to be absent from the parliament, for that undoutedlie, some great calamitie wold happen suddainlie by unknown accident, which wold be as suddaine as the fying of the letter:¹ wherupon the king after one serch about Parliament Howse grew so ielouse he caused a secrett watch, & discovered one Johnson practizing about midnight to make a traine to fyre 34 barreles powder, hidden under billettz in a vault iust under the Upper Howse of Parliament,² confessed by one Johnson servant to Thomas Percy, a pentioner, to have ben preparing 8 moneth to blow up the King, his Queen, children, nobles, bishops, iudges & all the commons assembled, if it had not been so happelie discovered. So the parliament was proroged till this Saterdaie: in the meane tym the said Percy & Robert Catesbie Esq^r, who sold me Radborne pastures 5 yeres sithence, stirred an assemblie of desperate bankeroutz pretending advancement of catholik religion to the number of 200 in Warwickshire & Worcester: upon which occasion the parliament this day proroged till the 21 of January 1605, being Tuesdaie, as the day wherein the king had scaped Gow-rye's conspiracy in Scotland, & this horrible practise in England.³ But before publishing the adiornement, the lord chancellor⁴ made grave spech: of our cause of unspekable alacritie that had united bothe these imperiall crounes under the soveraintie of his royal person: & for happie establishing thereof the commissioners of both lands had concluded of certen articles tripartite, under ther seales: one part delivered to his maiestie, and took it at once to Whitehall, where he found Salisbury, Nottingham, Suffolk, Worcester, and Northampton at supper. The letter was not shown to the King until November 3.

¹ There are no such words in the letter; but the King took a pleasure in allowing it to be believed that he discovered the plot from the words 'the danger is past as soon as you have burnt the letter.' See Gard. Hist. i. pp. 248-50, where the letter is given. The letter also spoke of 'a terrible blow this Parliament, and yet they shall not see who hurts them.'

³ November 5 fell on a Tuesday: the date of the Gowrie conspiracy was August 5, 1600.

2 parts to the chauncelor of Scotland¹ to be presented at ther parliament, the 3 part he presented to the lords & commons now sealed with all the commissioners seals, according to the act of the last parliament.

He said it was no union to abolish the names of England & Scotland: no alteracion of lawes or the points of government or pollicy; but proiect pur perfecion de union al benefite of both kingdomes: wherof he praied favorable construcion, of ther sincere proceding: he compared this tyme with the late tyme of our Q. Elizabeth of famous memorie, & former tymes when the cruelti of civill warres was extinguished by the union of the howses of Lancaster & York: yet that union was clouded with mist & doubt even in the midst of the raigne of H. 8; but the union of the king's succession is perpetuall, by uniting in his person two kingdoms, wherein the severall monarches have had so long discentis in ther bloud as no king christian hath the like: & this union is the act of god, not patched by absolucions of popes or parliament to dispense with doubtfull or illegittimate mariages.

Also in the late Q^s tyme, senectus et orbitas were feared in her, & induced hopes to the Pope & foreners to drawe us to foren subiection: besides the Novelestes & sectaries in religion, who wold be subiect to no commaund, made us in more daunger then when ther was a Heptarchie.

His Maiestie is of ripe yeres, longe experience in kinglie state wherin his strength hath ben tried: his wisdom, iustice, vertue & science admirable.

In lieu of orbitie, the Queen a fruitfull vine, & 4 olive branches of extraordinarie vertue & hopefull posteriti: he hath planted ecclesiasticall government: all foren princes have sued to him for peace to his honour, so are we established: & foreners, some said was not possible this establishment, find it firme & no hope for foreners: Justices in number increased: no officer displaced.

But what thankfulness in us, alas Winchester is witness of the first attempt of Rawley² &c.: & we have sene the horrible attempte the last day against king, nobles, prelates & commons.

This procedes both first & last from romish pristis by a hellish practise under the earth.

² Raleigh's trial was held at Winchester, November 17, 1603 (Gard. Hist. i. 123).

These have raized a nomber like Catelyn's camp of wasters & spend goods to stirre rebellion, not so wise as Balam's asse, who discerned god's army: praied the king for suere iustice ne pars sincera trahatur: the papistes may be Christians but corrupt romish Christians.

Millions have geven ther hartes to the king to ayde him with ther goods & lands & sacrifice ther lives for his service:

He praieth exemplarie punishment in these may cause others to abhorre romishe religion: & praieth Christ Jesus to preserve his maiestie & progenie for ever.

The king's speech:¹ 'I had occasion the last parliament to render thankfulness for the loyaltie of your hartes upon my coming: now I am to render to god thanks for our safe delivery, misericordia domini super omnia opera eius.

The creacion of man not so glorious as his redempcion, the old Adam not so glorious as the new: so this delivery greter then our accesse to the crown; vox faucibus haeret.

The daunger so gret, the cause so litle: in that place they thought to reveng hard lawes: in that we are to magnifie our god. God geves sparkes & attributes of divinitie to king that rules litle world under him.

The great world he destroes by water, the deluge, & fire, to purge the godlie, destroy the wicked. It was miraculouse being attempted by subiects without cause, pretending religion & conscience: & no remorse therof either in the prisoners or the rebels abroad.

Miracle to have a king distroyed in parliament inter nobles & commons pur consult de bone publick, the proper place & function of

A miracle the king, taxed with want of suspicion in confidence of his owne sinceritie, should, against advise of counsell, be extraordinary suspicious: & collect the daunger out of the words of the letter, otherwise then devine or lawier wold interpret.

Scipio accused for wasting treasure, answered & was clered by saying, 'this day I wanne a victorie,' so in this place I may use divinitie in geving thanks for deliverie in this place:

I wishe my hart were sene in a glasse: this act hath not moved me to crueltie nor to ielosie of anie, but shall geve me caution to distinguish daungers & men.

These malefactors were prophane & bankroutz endeavoring the distrocion of the state.

I have not read of Turkish or Jewish religion que ad maintene murder of the king & people: yet here religion is made the cause: & so are the Jesuits as allies, & others of this wicked mind.'

He distinguished of papistes: such as hold those doctrines be no good subiects: other be, & may be saved, tho they beleve 7 sacraments & such-like if at ther death they assure themselves in Jesus: & he warned those half papist, to detest alters & such: & said he wold proroge this parliament for the service against these rebels, who by repaire of all men of sort to the parliament have stood out hitherto; & for whose confusion he wished every one might endeavor the uttermost, & that these rebels might be declared in parliament for a perpetual memorie of ther detestacion having offended the parliament universal.

Against the next session, wher he is no bound to be present, he advised the howse to remember, parliaments are consultations of the king as heade: & his nobles are hereditarie parliament: & commons elective parliament pro tempore & the assemblie apointed to propone causes for the general profitt touching peace or warre: & no private bills, purporting generall, but ayming the good of some particuler for opression.

Lacedimonians allowed non to propound a new lawe, but with a rope about his neck.

Lett no puritane or malignant propone or utter affectionate speches: avoid rethorik & propound ech thing with sinceritie & gravitie.

He protested he wold propone nothing in parliament unlesse it tended to the equall good of both kingdoms, loving them equallie.

Lett all things be so caried with wisdom as no parti depart discontent, king nor people: but let ther be a wise & loving coniunction for the weale publik against the conspirators therof.

And so the lord chauncelor was commanded to pronounce the adprorogacion of parliament.

In the cession of parliament 3 Regis Jacobi:¹ for 7 weekes nothing done for any publique bill: nor no private bill passed both howses within that tyme; the tyme most while spent in invectives against purveiors: & concerning a bill for redresse of those enormities: & upon conferences with the lords touching an act for the king's safetie, & further punishements, restraints & discoverie of popish recusants, wherein both howses made declamations & manie devises of proiects against them: wherein they were extraordinarie incensed by occasion of the late horrible practize of gunpowder discovered, which they conceive proceded of out the religion of Jesuitisme, wherein for advaancement of the church of Rome, excommunicacion, deposicion & murder of princes is held lawfull, & either meritorious or by dispensacion before, or absolution after to be pardoned, altho manie Romanistes pretend the facts horrible.

² Of the conferences and debates on the grievance of purveyance which this entry and those dated March 11 and April 15 deal with there is a somewhat confused summary in the Parliamentary History (i. 1065). The Commons' efforts to pass a Bill were wrecked by the resistance of the Lords (Gard. Hist. i. 299). See Spedding's Letters and Life of Francis Bacon (iii. 259, &c.), where an attempt is made to reproduce from the Commons' Journals the course of these conferences and debates. Wilbraham, as a member of the committee which met the Lords (C. J. i. 268), here gives a more coherent account.

⁵ In Commons' Journals the accounts given differ—i.e. Queen's funeral, new charges: the reliques of charges in Ireland & Berwick: charges of guiftes & pencions, for rewards, for bounti, for importunitie: wherby decay of revenewe hath groen: increase of iudges & officers in all places: the dett of the late Queen about 400000¹, increased now by these & other meanes to 774000¹:¹ the virginitie of the K^s promises for repayment of privie seales like to be lost, to his great dishonour: & finallie his state not able to subsist unlesse by composicion annuall for taking away the purveyors for ever, which were termed vulturs, harpies, cormorants & caterpillers & vermyne, some supply might be devised (for advauncing the king's declyning state) by the commons.

The commons in publik debated & most voices semed to mislike the composicion annuall:

1° it wold be a perpetuall rent charge throughout England & a burden for ever:

2° next it was supposed by the lawiers of the common howse, (tho in the face of all the iudges drawn to the conference by the Lords to clere all doubttes, who delivered no resolute opinion therein, nether were much urged thereto: & per case doubtful in the matter:) that the king's maiestie had by prerogative onlie a preempcion but no prerogative in price: tho the Lords said the King found the crowne possessed by long prescripcion of a prerogative to have a resonable price to all his empcions for his houshold.

To which was answered the king could not prescribe against the statutes made in point direct to the contrarie.

3° The great obiection against composicion was that the king nor parliament could not secure the composicion: (which manie think may be done especiallie for the K^s tyme, when he shall receive a annuall satisfacion exercitorie): for if 36 actes of parliament cannot restore the people to ther right of inheritance against purveors, one act now is not available: but as I think those acts were rather acts of restraint of abuses then acts of abolishing the name & use altogether which upon mutuall & equall consideration may be done:

4° If it be true that the prerogative is to have purveyance in 20,000*l.*; bringing in of the King, &c., 10,000*l.*; gifts to ambassadors, 40,000*l.* (C. J. i. 271.)

price also, & that inherent in the crowne : it cannot be sold nor severed : nether is it honorable :

5° Our bill against them is to restore us to our true libertie of inheritance : if this our inheritance should be against [us] bought, or if we buy our lawes of iustice, it were dishonorable to so gracious a king : & pernicious in future examples :

6° I thinke a great doubt may be that when the king's children's children shall increase his famelie, for the nephewes & all lineal discendants (quaere de collateral freres, &c.) are to be parcell of the kinges household in prerogative : then & upon all sugestions by suceding kinges, the composicion may be said to litle : & so to be increased upon the subiect : or els purveiors to be cast upon them for an affliction, if they refuse to compound.

It was further moved by the commons to increase our subsidie :¹ (for 15^{thes} lay upon pore tounes verie hevie²) reasoned that the necessitie of the king must be releved by the affectionate love of the people : the king is the hart, the head, & lief of our lawes & commonweale : & the Chauncellor of eschequer³ said the King was like Theodosius, the good Empourour, who said, etsi legibus soluti simus tamen secundum leges vivere volumus : & this is cited as a rule in the civil lawe ; & so grief or want in the hart & hed must be releved by the helpe of all other members as the most obnoxious :

'Treasure is said to be the sinewes of the commonweal : & the contraction of the sinewes in the brayne bredes a cramp & convulsion in all the inferior parts,' saieth Bond⁴ : the benignitie, bountie, & pietie of our king & his necessitie amplified by many proverbs.

¹ On March 25 an additional subsidy and two-fifteenths were voted (C. J. i. 289).

⁴ John Bond, M.P. for Taunton (Parl. Hist. i. 975).

Amplificacion for subsidie made: by foren princes greter impositions: the king's mild usage of his unlimited prerogative: & mild taxes:

Also it is for our's more then his safetie: also this tyme, when our straiter lawes will excite the pope & his adherents to attempt hostilitie: also daungerous the king's povertie being knowen & not releved may prevoke our reconciled enemies or our malignant negbors to unusuall attempts.

9 Marcii: 1605, Sir Edward Clere was called before the councill for a contempt, in assuming the order of knighthood & S^t Michael with a patent therof from the French king: it was first resolved the general order of knighthood might be accepted as a generall favour from any foren prince: but to take the order of S^t Michael, being an order wherby his dutie of alleageance to the king is in part obliged to the foren king this is most unlawfull & undutifull: especially if he have taken an oath, which ties him to observe some orders incident: & altho he took no othe yet he is bound to observe the institucions of the order: & therefore without the king's licence may not assume it: he was therefore committed to the Marshalsie of the king's howse, with order no man should arest him: but if he had ben committed to the Marshalsie of King's Bench or Fleete, the Lords' warrant could not have prohibited, but execucions out of those courtes of Bench & Common Plees wold have ben laid upon him, as was said by the lord chauncellor Chief Justice & Attorney Generall.

Also this gent was to lie in prison till he willinglie resigned to the King by writing his said order & patent: the like president was before in Sir Antonie Shurley's¹ & Sir Alexander Clifford's cases.

This parliament has desired the reviving of an act of 23 H. 8 that no French wyne should be brought into England betwene

Yet our merchants are so desirous to buy at the first & the French so desirouse of the first sale as they sell wyne, that want tyme, of unripe grapes, & that hath not had 20 daies : in that tyme it might purge : which makes the wyne unholosome & quicklie sower : wherin doctor Paddie² said the best wyne was of the second leaz, meaning two yeres old : before which tyme it is unperfect.

He saieth Columella & Varro write in old tyme wyne under 4 yeres old was called new wyne : after till 7 it was ripe wyne : & after 7 yeres it was old wyne.

The French merchants that should fill the vessels, that by heate it might purge out the putrefacion [for the rolling by sea geves it heate, & so when it is new the heate makes it purge], they doe not fill up the caske—so that the putrefacion remaynes in the caske—to save so much of the wyne : & when it hath wrought, tho the putrifacion for want of filling doth not worke out but remains in, then with 14 barrells they mak up tenne & so sell naughtie wyne.

But cold frosts trie the goodnes, for after Candlemas by tast, savour & colour it may easilie be deserned to be bad wyne that in lesse then a sommer will either stink or be sower.

Therefore the best buying wyne is after Januarie at the second vintage that comes in.

This xi of March 1606, the Lords & Commons had conference touching a bill passed by the Commons against purveyours : wherin it was sett downe that redie money & markett prises should be paid for all achates : & for carts such prises as Justices of peace sett downe : & the seller & the constable to be present at the takinge : & ther commission of purveiors to be made according to all the lawes, to be shewed at the taking, or els the purveyors to

14 April, The Lords upon sute granted conference to the Commons, touching ther desires in ecclesiasticall causes: ²

1. They desired that 300 ministers, deprived for not subscribing, might be licenced to preach, being all meanes they had to live upon: especiallie such as nether sought to sett up a presbeterie, or desired a paritie, or were of turbulent spiritues: the desired tolleration for these present, & not for future tymes: & since domb ministers were not deprived of anie living, ther contempt of not subscribing ought not to tak away not onlie the present livings, but also ther preaching within these daungerous tymes, when practizes of poperie are everywher busie to deprave & seduce the people: & in Elizabeth tyme lawes were a terror to Rome (?): but inflicted upon some that were not turbulent: thes speches were divided in 10 partes & eloquentlie handled by Sir Frauncis Bacon:

2. Sir Henry Hobert ³ desired for the commons that the ecclesiasticall commission might not be executed but in London & York: 1^o for that it was an arbitrarie & absolute authoritie: 2^o it was without apelle: 3^o it abrogated from the ordinarie jurisdiction, & hindred the chauncelour of bishops lerned in civill lawe: 4^o besides excommunicacion, it authorizeth fines & imprisonments without limitacion of tyme or some: it was the highest commission & authoritie next parliament: & by this a parti may accuse himself:

³ Sir Henry Hobart, appointed Attorney-General July 4, 1606, and Chief Justice of the Common Pleas 1613.

therefore to be committed to men of preeminence for integritie, iudgment & experience: to be executed in a publik place, and not in bishops chambers: to be assisted with men of equall credit: & not the bishop with his chaplens to geve sentences, which were penes unum: to be executed nere London & York, wher counsellors might advise & prevent errors.

Sir H. Montague¹ desired citacion, acordng to the Statute of Westminster 2, might conteyne the causes & the accusors in every matter: & not to send out a quorum nomina for 40 at a time, & then to compell them to take an oath to accuse themselves, which is against all lawes in causes criminall.

Lastlie Mr Sollicitor Doderidge² made an excellent spech to move that excommunicacion should not be upon triviall causes, for non aparances the first day, for a bundell of leekes: it was against the auncient canons & cited the text that that punishment was the last & most heynous, & excommunication was exclusio a sacramentis, a sacris et communione fidelium: & therefore by the canons not to be inflicted but by extreme necessitie: these speches were amplified with allegories & elegant sentences, an howre & half, & most aproved of all the temporall lords by ther silence admiring the eloquence & witt of the spekers: & the archbishop desired tyme to answare in so weighti a cause.

The lords after often debate refused to ioyne in these 4 petitions to his maiestie: for touching the first, melius est ut pereat unus quam civitas: & without ceremonies religion could not be supported: for the 2nd, his Maiestie wold be cautious: & for the 4th, he purposed in place of excommunicacion to ordeine fine & imprisonment: for the 3rd, the bishops wold be carefull: & to all answare was that it was dangerous to have a petition publik & scandalous.

The Commons and Judges differ in regard to the Statute hereinbefore cited of 27 Edward III. entitled Statute of Staple,¹ the Commons saying that the King's prerogative is saved in prisage, while the Judges assert that it is his prerogative in prices which is saved: therefore see Statute. The Commons and Judges agree that the King has prerogative by Common Law for purveyance for his Household: and that an Act of Parliament against that is void, because it is a necessary prerogative: and Judges say that the Act that the King must pay ready money is void; for the King ought to have a day for payment after he has satisfied war expenses, for that is more necessary: and the Chief Justice says that all the King's prerogatives are allowed on behalf of the law for the public good. ³ There must be an error here, as there seem to be no statutes of these years relating to Purveyance. I cannot decipher or conjecture the word omitted.

purveyance by force if he offer a reasonable price ; but Judges say that means a price more favourable to him than the market price, for otherwise the King's charges of collection will be greater than those the subjects pay.

The Commons rely on the Statute 36 Edward III,¹ which is confirmed by 23 Henry VI² : that act among many other things ordains that the King is to pay ready money and market prices, if my memory serves me right : and there are many Statutes to the same effect : but there are other ancient laws ordaining that grace should be given to the subject : & yet they are void according to the Judges, because the denial of the subject does not prevent purveyance in so much as it is so necessary a prerogative : Neither the Judges nor the Attorney nor the Commons can cite any case in law that the King has a more favourable price in prises than subjects have ; that is the market price, which is interpreted according to the Commons to mean reasonable prices. But this view was controverted by the Statutes 27 Edward III hereinbefore cited and 36 Edward III, which ordain suitable prices, that is prices without reserve or none. But the Attorney and Lord Chancellor show that these Statutes for reasonable prices have never been actually made use of, for the Commissions under the Great Seal for prises and purveyance mentioned from the time of Henry VII contains the words, 'reasonable and royal prises : ' and the fact that the commissions have been thus issued proves the intention of the laws. Also the accounts in the Exchequer of all the Kings prove that heaped measure has been paid to the King, and the accounts show that. For prices of wine there is a certain prerogative by Statute : and by Magna Charta the fixed price for a cart and two horses is 10^d,¹ but for little things the prices are fixed by usage.

And for beef and mutton and great things the prices vary : yet are they favourable to the King according to the time.

The Judges agree that the Greencloth is not a Court : except to punish those who refuse or resist purveyance : and in these cases only they imprison ; and although Magna Charta ordains 'upon no man will we go nor send unless by the law of the land ; ' yet in that case that is the law of the land, just

But if the Greencloth err or imprison any one against the laws, the Common Law Judges grant writs of Habeas Corpus, so that they may examine into their proceedings and deliver the party on the case. And in conclusion it was said that although the bill against purveyors (which was directed by ancient Statute never put into use) was strict against the prerogative of the King, binding him to market prices and ready money payment and abolishing the Greencloth, yet the King intends the ease of his people by proclamation in all prises and taking : and the number of carts required shall be given : May God grant that this will be. And a proclamation was made that in part prevents extortionate takings from being employed by the King.¹

Thus Queen Mary, by proclamation, laid an impost of 5^s on each piece of cloth. The Chancellor² notified to the Commons that the King has considered these grievances with his council; and has replied to each particular; and that the grants to Lord Danvers and to Sir Arthur Aston were repealed; but the privileges in the matter of currants and the impost thereon were held good in the Court of Exchequer:³ and the others are affirmed good by reason of the King's prerogative

³ Bates's Case, decided Mich. Term, 1606.

Auxi le chauncellor promise pur roy spedie payment de privie seals hors de subsidies : et le primer defection happen pur ceo le subsidie fuit plus petit que ascun assegnment : et trop tarde in payment.

Et sur ceo le roy urge le union comme le sole matter destre treat in ceo cession : et respond al obiections.

1^o Est dit que nest necessarie destre enact quia il et chauncelordiont, le unitie desoveraigne fait unitie in subiectes : sed order in ceo unitie est destre declare pur avoid inconvenience par certain limitacions et rules.

2^o Obiect que Scotland est pore et England riche : ce nest reason de devide Gales de Engleterre : ergo nec icy : auxi riches ne fait realme famous ou honorable, sed le communion et participation de ceo al plusors fait enlargement de kingdome :

to grant them. See the petition of the Commons and the King's reply thereto this Session.

Also the Chancellor promises for the King speedy payment of the Privy Seals out of the Subsidies ; and the first defect in payment arose by reason of the Subsidy being smaller than any assignment, and being paid too late.

And therefore the King urged the Union¹ as the sole matter to be treated of in that session : and replied to the objections.

1. It is said that it is unnecessary that it should be enacted, in as much as the King and the Chancellor say that the unity of the subjects is involved in the unity of the Sovereign. But order is to be observed in setting forth this unity by establishing definite limitations and rules, so as to avoid inconvenience.

2. It is objected that Scotland is poor and England rich. But this is not a reason to divide Wales from England, therefore it is not one here. Also riches do not make a realm famous or honourable, but the communion and participation thereof among many enlarges a Kingdom.

3^o Roy borne in Scotland est parcial a eux : son conversacion declare le contrarie : et il ne serra ingrate al England, nec unnatural al Scotland : et il ne unques committ que serra dit que roy de Scotland serra inimy al roy dengleterre : et le person le roy et le ley serra icy.

Pur le union il desire ceo pur equal benefit dambideux : est rare quil ne fait, quant poet estre fait sans parliament par le roy :

Toutz realmes in amitie ont commerce, plus tost ceux deux quex ont un roy : et subiects nee avant sont naturalls de ambideux comme iudges ont declare : ceux nee postea, que ceux fueront unite in le roy et son person : auxi North Britten unite al South comme Wales al Engleterre serra strenth pur resist invasion : auxi in future ils serra rule par un ley : et serra ioyous mariage.

Ce union particular terror al enimes : et mettre dissention serra scandalous : union est essence de dieu, peace de ment et bond de mariage : sed nil fuit conclude in ces 40 iours de cession.

3. The King born in Scotland is partial to the Scots. But his conversation shows the contrary : and he will never be ungrateful to England or unnatural to Scotland. And he will never act so that it shall be said that the King of Scotland will be the enemy of the King of England.

Moreover the King's person & his Courts of Justice will be here in England. He desires the Union for the equal good of both. It is wonderful that he does not bring it to pass, when it can be effected without Parliament by the King himself.

All realms in amity have commerce ; still more those two realms who have one King. And subjects born before the King's accession, naturalized in both realms, as the Judges have declared ; and those born after his accession are united in the King and his person. Also North Britain united to South Britain as Wales is to England will be made strong to resist invasion. Also for the future they will be governed under one law : and there will be a joyous marriage.

This union will be a special terror to our enemies ; and it will be scandalous to set up dissention. Union is of God's essence, peace of mind and bond of marriage. But nothing was concluded in the forty days of this Session.¹

7 Sept.² Council assembled privately in the matter of the great defect of the Treasury.³

And in November the farmers of the Customs offered to lend the King £1,200,000⁴ on their rent, before the negotiations for the customs were completed; so that, in the event of the King's death, which God forbid, the farmers were in danger of losing—yet by the persuasion of the Council the loan was advanced to the King; but the King pays interest, as I think. And the citizens of London lend £80,000⁵ on the private persuasion of the Council that it should be repaid.

And the Judges of Assize in order to satisfy the common people inveigh against Enclosers and Depopulators ; and inquire concerning them and promise reformation at the hands of Justice. And this puts courage into the common people, so that with mutterings they threaten to have a more violent revenge if they cannot be relieved. On this the Council appoints select Commissioners, learned in the law, in the six counties ; to inquire concerning the acts of depopulation and conversion of arable into pasture land. And they report to the Council on Dec. 6, 1607, to this effect. That in the counties of Lincoln, Leicester, Northampton, Warwick, Huntingdon, Bedford and Buckingham about 200 or 300 tenements have been depopulated ; and a great number of acres have been converted from arable into pasture land. To wit, 9000 acres in Northamptonshire and a great number in the other counties. And that the people seek that their commons, appurtenant to the towns, should be disenclosed ; but this point was not inquired into by the commissioners, but is referred to the law. And the depopulators offer reformation and submit themselves to the mercy of the King, and not the mercy of Sir H. Carey,¹ patentee of the penal Statute against depopulators.

On this directions were given to the learned counsel that the most notorious enclosers in each county should be summoned this Christmas for Hilary Term before the Star Chamber: and justice and mercy shown to them, so that they should not despair, nor should the common people insult them or be incited to make rebellion, whereof they are greatly suspected. Also the Mayor of Northampton, the Sheriff and the neighbouring justices who did not repress the outrages at the beginning should also be brought before the Star Chamber by reason of their remissness. And it is hoped that this public example may stay the fury of the common people. These deliberations I reported to the King at Newmarket on Dec: 8th by order of the Council. And he seems to approve of this course, for the manifestation of his justice and the speedy reformation of oppression. And the Earl of Salisbury advises the depopu-

Feb. 1607: The Attorney General¹ states that, after conference with all the Judges, the law against depopulation is so variable and uncertain that no fixed punishment can be inflicted on depopulators, as can be on converters of tillage and pasturage, where the punishment is fixed. Therefore a provision was made for a commission to issue to divers Lords of the Council, Judges, and Masters of Requests to make composition with the depopulators with the intent that they should persuade them to rebuild the houses with a view to giving visible satisfaction to the murmuring people; and to satisfy them rather than gain fines to the King.

The same complaint is made by the Court of High Commission and the Lord Admiral of England. And the King blamed them and Fuller,¹ a Pleader, was committed for seditious & disgraceful speeches against the authority of the clergy, saying that it was Papal. And on that the preachers before the King and at St. Paul's and elsewhere by allegories and sometimes even in direct words attacked the lawyers; because some have been punished by a day having been assigned for their appearance before the court, as an example.

This division between the clergy and the temporal law is full of great peril to the State, as much as the discontent of the common people against the gentry. But God defend and continue His peace, which the Pope desires to violate by instigating the papists to refuse the oath of allegiance.

Note herein that in all deliberations of great councils one should wait to see the wishes of the President and Secretaries who principally direct them; for they have secret instructions from the King, although sometimes they conceal it. And I have seen one letter full of terror sent to the Deputy and his Council in Ireland, and another letter of moderation sent in secret to the Deputy alone, on important matters of peace and war and of religion there: and many things are put forth to the Council bearing one construction on the surface, for the purpose of secrecy, where the intention is that quite a different conclusion shall be reached. Therefore it is perilous for a councillor, on the first motion, hastily to put forward his own opinion, or in cases of importance to be precipitate in the execution of rigorous laws. For the Justices of Assize who execute priests in accordance with the Statutes are blamed, unless it is a case of an obstinate and

For such recusants who refuse the oath are dangerous; in as much as the Pope has condemned those who accept the oath. So they are confederates of the Pope, as the last letter of the King declares.

After long time spent at the Council table in a dispute between the Earl of Dorset, Lord High Treasurer, and Sir John Luson,¹ who had made complaint to the King against the Treasurer for his countenance of his niece's cause² against himself, and of certain wrongs done under colour of his office as if justified by the law; the Lord Treasurer, intending to have Luson punished for that scandal, while sitting at the ¹ Sir John Leveson, Kt., of Haling, Kent, M.P. for Kent in James's first Parliament, brother of Sir Richard Leveson, of Stafford (Hasted's Hist. of Kent, i. pp. 474, 8). Aubrey, referring to Dorset's sudden death at the Council Board, states that 'the trial was with this Sir Richard Temple's (i.e. his informant) great-grandfather.' Sir John Leveson's daughter Christian married Sir Peter Temple, of Stowe, the second Baronet, in 1630; their son Richard died in 1697, and his son, the fourth Baronet, also Richard, died in 1749 (Cokayne's Complete Baronetage, i. 82). Possibly, judging by the dates, Richard, the third Baronet, was Aubrey's informant, and for great-grandfather we should read grandfather. This would be the grandfather of Sir Richard Temple on the mother's side, Sir John Leveson, and not Sir Thomas Temple of Stowe, the first Baronet, his paternal grandfather or great-grandfather, as is stated in the note to the edition of Aubrey's Brief Lives, recently edited by Mr. Clark (ii. 211).

Council table and in the act of searching for a paper containing an opinion of civilians concerning redress against such accusers, suddenly, without any warning or prevision, fell down and instantly without a word spoken died. And this was a terrible example and in the opinion of the common people a judgment of the King for his hardness of heart towards the poor. For the Treasurer was exceedingly wealthy and too great a husband in the interests of the Crown, as the people say. But let it be for an example to others, for it is in reality an example of God's terrible judgment.

And Sir John Spencer,² the great merchant of England, whose debts and movables were appraised at a value of £100,000, and whose lands after fourteen years were appraised at £12,000 per annum, has made no will; and it was supposed to have been removed secretly. But Lord Compton, who married his daughter and heiress, became a lunatic,³ whereof all his moveables were in peril of, being begged of the King. But the Lord Compton recovered; and so prevented the courtiers. But it is to be feared that he is a spendthrift, and so that which Spencer, inordinately miserly and grasping, gained, by sudden lavishness will vanish. Therefore put not your trust in riches.

² The great merchant and Lord Mayor of London, known as 'Rich Spencer.' His only child, Elizabeth, married William, second Lord Compton, against her father's wishes.

Henry of France, the most famous warrior, a king of gretest potency, magnanimitie, sagacitie & opulency, having newlie (for some unknowen attempt) erected & kept in regiments 50000 soldiers extraordinarie, & having 2 daies before with most costlie solemnities crowned his queene,¹ & riding through Paris in his caroch, with 2 noble sitting by him; the caroch being a litle staied at a narrow street: a baze fellow unknowen & of no regard, stept up upon the coach wheele, & with a knif long prepared for that purpose strok the king 2 blowes in his bodie, 1610,² wherby he died spechlesse afore he could recover the Louvier his pallace: & so he that had scaped so manie bulletts, & in manie & long warres had passed eminent & sondrie daungers, was thus suddainlie butchered by a peasant:³ having so gret an army in the field as the like was never before, and so great an assembly at the coronacion, & in his chifest et populous citie: & the plaudite of his victorious raigne, was torned into a plangite to all Fraunce: to whom he lefte his sonne of 9 yeres age for ther kinge: his mother is his regent: & the welth he lefte is incredible: & no certen cause of his deth knowen, saving that a Jesuite confessor or Jesuitical books perswaded this unrepentant miscreant to kill the king for an expiacion of his wicked lief. Sic transit gloria mundi.

This spring 1610, at parliament which contynued 4 months⁴ was propounded this king's great want of annual revenewe: his children[s] charges increasing &c: for which was required 200,000¹ annuall suport: & his debts protested by the Lord Treasurer to be 600000¹:⁵ for which was required a like supplie: which much amazed the commons: some offer was made of retribucions, as taking away respite of homage: 2° binding the crowne to the tyme of 60 yeres limitacion: 3° cutting of penal lawes: 4° patents & pleding to be most favorabli expounded for the subiect: 5° no dett above 30 yeres continuance to be exacted: 6° all forfeited leases to be dispenced with: 6° no more impositions to be henceforth laid upon home or foren commodities: 7° that Wales should not be subiect to such government as the king prescribe according the power of the statute 32 H 8.¹

These being considered by the commons, yet were they not embraced as things of so great value as the annual suport desired: but the commons finding the king's wants desired liberti to treat a contract for all prerogative tenures & ther incidents: namelie to extinguishe all wardships, liveryes, licence of alienation, respite of homage, & the court of wards, & inquisicions post mortem &c: & also to have all purveyance abolished (wherin the lawiers held we could hardlie have good assurance, doubting generalli the king's howse could not subsist without it): & they did also desire th'other 7 profers to be included in the great contract: the king licenced the treatie; & by his letter & oration of the lord Tresorer protested he wold not consent that any point of his soveraintie should be put in the contract: nether wold he assent except ther were offered in annuall support 140000¹ above the annual profits he made by wardes purveyaunce & other things: herupon it was debated into supply of 600,000*l.*, he stated that 300,000*l.* was to pay off the debt, 150,000*l.* to furnish the navy, and 150,000*l.* to 'lie in his coffers for war or any just occasion' (ibid. p. 14). It must be remembered that Wilbraham was a member of this Parliament and of the committee in conference with the Lords (C. J. vol. i. p. 393). Possibly also his old colleague at the Requests, Sir Julius Cæsar, now the Chancellor of the Exchequer, would furnish him with information.

¹ The Court of the Council of Wales was erected by Statutes 34 & 35 Henry VIII. c. 26 for that principality and its marches, with authority to determine such causes and matters as should be assigned to them by the King. It was claimed that the four counties of Hereford, Worcester, Gloucester, and Salop were included within the Council's authority as marches of Wales. This was controverted by the inhabitants of these counties, and was the subject of contention between the Common Law Judges and the President of the Council in the reign of James I. (Hallam, Const. Hist. vol. i. pp. 328-9, note.) Probably Wilbraham makes confusion here between the above statute and 32 Henry VIII. cap. 2, which is a Statute of Limitations. One of the grievances of the Commons was the rule 'Nullum tempus occurrit regi,' expressed in their demand that claims of the Crown should be limited to sixty years.

4 questions: 1° what shold be desired from the king: 2° what should be given by the subiects: 3° upon what lands or other things it should be levied, & how it might be equallie divided: 4° what assurance should be therof. The first was sett downe upon long debate in manie particulers: tho with reservacion to insert more si quid ultra occurrit: for the second 100000^l per annum was willinglie offred: from thence by degrees & invencion, & after the house long weried were manie departed, it came to an offer of 160000^l: from thence too 180000: & the king insisted upon 200000^l: it was with reservacions assented to be that some: which some the king liked of, being often inculcate by the lord Tresorer that it must be a fixed & certen revenewe, which must in all be taxed wholie upon lands: when the commons ment that to be for a further debate & perchaunce to charge officers, usurers & merchandize with part of that tax: which was ever thought the land could not beare such an annuall charge for any long tyme: upon hope of succeesse in the contract, & in consideracion of the king's wants on[e] subsidie & 2 fiftenees¹ graunted sed aegre: so this cession ended: few things of moment enacted: & the parliament proroged² for 3 monthes onlie to the 9 of October; that in the interim it might be considered, how this support might be indifferentlie levied upon lands: for the rate of fiftenees is unequall & laid to much upon pore: 2° the rate of old rents most incerten & obsolete: 3° the rate of parsonages which is the 10th part is also unequall: 4° to tax all lands to the true exact rate, & then upon knowledge of all the land & acres in the kingdom & of the exact value & so to impose 2^d or 4^d in the pound, was the best waye: but non resolved on:

In this cession, the commons desired redresse 1° that the latitude of the ecclesiastical commission might be limited: 2° that the subscripcion of the ministers might be but according to the statute of 13 Eliz: 3° that the silenced & deprived ministers might be restored: 4° that the 4 English shires might be exempted from the iurisdiction of the Presidencie of Wales: & some other gre-vances. But the chief & gretest semed the new impositcions, by the Book of Rates¹ amounting to above 100000¹ per annum, might be taken away: for proof of the king's prerogative herin a late iudgment in theschequer chaumber² was alledged: & the lawiers of the commons after serch in the records brought president, that in former tymes some of those taxes by the kings were abrogated or confirmed by parliament, without whose assent the king as they wold perswade could not impose:

To these & other grevances the king at the last day gave some answare but not fullie satisfactorie.

At this cession in October: when after 3 weks spent they begane to treat of the great contract his Maiestie sent word,³ he never intended to yeld to the contract for support, unlesse he may have 500000¹ by supplie: wherby the commons never treated further of that contract, the most of them doubting, those great royalties were never intended to be abolished. After orations used by the Lords: & the first 7 points offred to the commons: & subsidies propounded, it was not thought fitt to put it to voices after manie daies debate: the commons alledged decay of staple commodities, inhauncement of all wares to be bought, the facilitie for favorites to spend the king's treasure, the impositcions upon merchandize wherof there is no limitation, were the causes the people were not able to grant subsidies: so after 2 adiornements the parliament was proroged till 9 febr next:⁴ no act concluded or resolved in 9 weeks cession: nether his maiestie nor commons satisfied in ther expectacions: quod diu vortant in melius.

⁵ Salisbury resigned to the King all personal profits derived from his office as charges of Wardrobe & Household: yet are the king's charges by manie courts, & multitude of servants to himself, the Queen, Prince, Duke & Ladi Elizabeth: that want of money hath this yere 1611 occasioned 3 proiects:

1° a proclamation to enhaunce gold 2^s in the pounce, yet litle brought to the mint, because coinage is so deare of late: 2° about 90 knights of degrees called baronetts of inheritance next in place to lords: ¹ & now ther is contencion for precedencie betwene them & barons' yonger sonnes: 3° a generall lone of money, wherby manie are returned infirmi: & money like to be scarce: ² god grant this lone may pay the crowne dett, supplie the Tower, provision magazons, & the navie: for no surplusage can be saved for any further preparacion for occasion of foren warre.

24 May 1612 died the erle of Salisberi, the lest Lord Tresorer in person ³ that ever was: but gretest in offices, for besides that place he was principall secretarie & master of Wards for Queen Elizabeth & King James: chauncelor of Cambridge: stuard to Queene and steward of Westminster, & Grenewiche &c: he more then a president was alpha & omega in Councell: he solie managed all foren affaires, especially Ireland: he directed parliament: he managed all the revenew & gretest affaires of the King, Queen, Prince & Duke of York: he found the coffers emptie: yet by the inventions on the former page & that especiallie by inhaunsing the customs, for which he was much maligned, he supported the crowne 5 yeres: he built 3 incomparable howses ⁴ &c: of bountie in all expences, magnanimous corage, infinite in witt & pollicie, admirable to all men in eloquence upon the sodaine: depe secrett & prudent in councell: and quid non: deo servus mihi patronus.

Master of the Court of Wards, and gave orders forbidding the acceptance of irregular payments from suitors (Gard. Hist. ii. 113).

² In February 1611 the king granted to six favourites 34,000*l.* (ibid. ii. 111).

³ Salisbury in person was much below middle height, probably not exceeding 5 feet 2 inches (Brewer's English Studies, p. 130).

The last of May upon the Lord Tresorer's death the Chauncelor of Eschequer,¹ lord Tresorer's private remembrancer of the issues, & the clerke pellis exitus et introitus, delivered before the whole bodie of the counsell privatelie (I beinge present) the state of the annual revenues in receates & expence: to this effect, viz. the yerelie receats viis et modis is 280000¹, the yerelie expences is 440000¹: so as the issues excede the yerelie receates 160000¹ per annum: ² at which the counsell cast downe ther heads, it beinge likelie the yerelie expence will dailie increase.

² The total of the 'chief expenses' here noted is 415,000*l.*, compared with 440,000*l.* stated above to be the yearly expenditure. But certain items are obviously omitted: Dr. Gardiner reckons the total expenditure of 1610 as 517,547*l.*, and of 1614 522,940 (Gard. Hist. x. 222).

⁷ 24,000*l.* (Gard. Hist. ii. 112).

1645, EXPRESSIONS OF MR. ARTHUR WODENOTH.¹

They that are not touched with a sense of the present distractions, and divisions of Church and State are either somewhat more or some thing less then men.

I know some there be, that conceive the distance already so great as cannot be composed: and others that expect noe good untill things be brought to a greater extremity. These are buckets, tho hanging at the same pole, the depression of the one is the exaltation of the other. What shall wee now doe, embark our selves in a party, and launch out into the sea of dissention which casts up nothing but myre and dyrt, to the preiudice and contempt of all propositions for accomodations, God forbid, for although it be true, that some are soe necessarily involved in these differences as a deserting of them were a betraying if not the truth, at least the trust, reposed in them, yet is it as true, that wee whoe are plac'd in a lower forme may nether propose nor prosecute any thing beyond that orbe and sphere wherein God hath placed us.—Uzzah's good intention proved too weak a helmett to ward of God's stroke for his profanitie.² Not to mention the differences in the State which are too much encreased by the mentioning, in the Church the great stirr (and its very great) is not soe much about the body or more essentiall part of religion as about the cloathes or ornament wherewith it is presented. Wee are agreed that there is noe power whence wee can derive or deduce the forme of God's worship, but from God himself, that the holy Scripture containe the revealed will of God and are able to make us wise to salvation. That prayer, preaching, and the Sacrament are God's owne ordinances whereby hee conveighs grace and mercy to the soules of his servants: but whether in prayer wee should be tyed to a forme or left at lyberty, whose should preach and by what authority, whether the Cross or gesture of kneeling should be us'd or omitted in the Sacraments, these and the lyke are the things that occasion our quarrell. And truly might I without offence speak my thoughts, I should say that the differences in these things are not soe essentially materiall but might admitt of a charitable construction from the opposers. St. Paul's lyberty and moderation, in observing or not observing a day, eating or not eating, may be admitted in these cases for imitation. Therefore lett not him that prayeth by a forme iudge him that prays without, nor hee that admitts of the cross or makes scruple of kneeling, condemn the contrary, but rather receive one another as Christ alsoe received us to the glory of God, for certainly as the influences of spirituall lyfe are not soe much from participation with all other members, as from communion with the Lord Jesus Christ the head, soe neither doe these outward ceremonies, ether in the observation, (soe it be free from superstition) nor in the omission, (soe it be cleare from contempt) ether preiudice or promote true piety in any proportion to the more materiall parts of religion; so that it is iustly to be wondered at and seriously lamented, that Protestants who of all people under heaven have the most perfect example and exact rule of charity to walk by, should yet be so uncharitable each to other, and that in the prosecution of the wayes of piety, which if true are all sodered and cimented by love; I shall not presume to assigne any other grounds of these dissentions besides Sathan's malice and the pride of our owne corrupt natures, whereunto may be added the iust difference betweene a regenerate and an unregenerate estate, or they may arise from less materiall considerations as the meanes whereby or the manner how God works regeneration, the severall degrees or measures of sanctification, besides the different constitutions of naturall temper which shew themselves in our spirituall performancy. The cure of these differences certainly would be exceedingly promoted, by an observation of that catholike rule required by our Lord and Master as the condition of admittance into his services, which is a denyall of our selves and taking up our cross. These would rightly dispose us to follow him in that other lesson of meekness and humility, and these together would either take away, or much abate our private dissensions.

¹ The friend of George Herbert. Isaac Walton, in his account of the rebuilding by Herbert of the ruined church of Layton Ecclesia, speaks of the bounty of Mr. Nicholas Ferrar (of Little Gidding) and 'Mr. Arthur Woodnot,' describing Wodenoth as a goldsmith in Foster Lane, London, who, 'having obtained so much as to be able to show some mercy to the poor and preserve a competence for himself, dedicated the remaining part of his life to the service of God, and to be useful for his friends; and he proved to be so to Mr. Herbert' (Walton's Lives, 3rd ed. vol. ii. pp. 57, 58). Three weeks before George Herbert's death 'his old and dear friend Mr. Woodnot came from London to Bemerton and never left him till he had seen him draw his last breath and closed his eyes on his death-bed.' Herbert appointed him his sole executor (ibid. pp. 120, 124). Apparently he may be identified with Arthur Wodenoth, twelfth son of John Wodenoth, of Shavinton, Cheshire. His aunt Mary was the mother of Nicholas Ferrar of Little Gidding, whose cousin he therefore was (Ormerod's Cheshire, iii. 508, pedigree of Woodnoths of Shavinton).

Héare I shall crave leave to the praise of the glory of God's grace in his beloved, to mention what God in mercy did for my soule by the operation of his holy spirit with his ordinances as theis are administered in the congregation of Protestants in the Church of England :

In all God's free Grace to a wretched sinner.

In the first I might look so far back as to childhood, but as hereof I observed little, so would it be to little purpose to say much : about the age of 14 years I was sent to London to be an apprentice, more ignorant of the ways of God then was credible, in excuse of which, I can say noe more, then that there was noe preaching Minister all that tyme in the place where I had my birth and breeding : shortly after I came to London, where by the noxious course of some friends my intended employment was deserted and I left to more vacancy, then was convenient to a youth at his entrance : upon what ground, or whose incitation I now remember not I was inclined to goe to Lectures, which I usually did twice a week, and hereby received both information of judgment and better composure of affections then before. After the expence of 2 yeares I was put to a Master where I mett with very little concurrence of naturall affections, though with some sutableness to my apprehensions, and thus much of the more remote antecedents. Of the more neare, the first occasion was the drawing on of Easter, when both custome and iniunction prompt to the Communion, in consideration whereof my thoughts minded mee of a dangerous fitt of sickness which had befallen mee the yeare before, and seemd to poynt my apprehension of the unworthy receiving of the Sacrament (notwithstanding I had beene catechised by the Minister) as the cause which moulded my mynd into a more serious consultation how to obtaine the benefitt, and avoyd the danger: for which purpose by such meanes as were concurrant with my condition I endevord preparation, and in want of liberty to heare sermons, and oportunity of discourse with men, was glad to apply my self to bookes: when came to my hands one of Parsons published by Bunny,¹ in reading whereof I mett with a relation of St. Austine's conversion, whereupon my thoughts began to mutiny and by way of sillogism thus to dispute. Austin that was thus miraculously converted was a saynt of God: the premises being acknowledged both by Papist and Protestants, the conclusion would necessarily follow, that, that Religion of which St. Austine was, is the true Christian Religion, but whether the Papist or Protestant doe more truely lay clayme to St. Austin and hould that Religion whereof hee was, I could find noe way to satisfy myself. By this I became sensible as well of the neglect of others, as my owne defects in not being better grounded in the principles of Christian Religion, whereby I was equally unable to encounter the assaultes, which were scandell to others if I refused to come to the Communion, and sinn against conscience if I came doubtingly, from both which Sathan suggested a remedy worse then the disesease, which was the renouncing of my religion. I shall not need to tell them that have had trouble in their consciences what I. suffred, and if I should declare it unto others they would not regard it. The time thrusting mee on to a resolution, I bethought my self of our Minister, and from those reciprocall expressions which the Scripture makes of Pastor and People, I resolved to address my self unto him: for the avoyding mistakes, either in my expressions or his apprehentions, I digested my doubts into writing: having obtained leave in my way I mett with a kinsman of my owne then fellow of a colledg;²

The first part is a portion of a treatise by the Jesuit Robert Parsons, with certain alterations by Edmund Bunny, who united the part of a pluralist in prebendal stalls with that of an itinerant Calvinistic preacher. Parsons had given to this work only his initials, R. P., and Bunny appropriated it without knowing who was the author. By this book Richard Baxter at fourteen was first turned to serious thoughts (Dict. Nat. Bio.).

² Probably his cousin, Nicholas Ferrar, of Little Gidding, 'at an early age made Fellow of Clare Hall, in Cambridge, where he continued to be eminent for his piety, temperance, and learning' (Walton's Lives, ii. 106). For the relationship and as they that are touched ether with payne of body or affliction of mynd are not nyce in discovering theire infirmities I shewed him of my troubles: hee was pleased to manifest a great measure both of affection and wisdom, in accommodating proper and particular remedies to my severall scruples: in the close, for better security he refer'd mee to a booke of Dr. John White entituled, the way to the true Church,¹ wherein I found a discussion and resolution of those which Sathan's malice and my own ignorance had generated: by God's blessing upon these meanes I attayned to calmness of mind with desire after the holy Communion. And thus much of the Antecedents: the concomitants, the outward meanes were prayer, receaving the Sacrament, and hearing the Word preached, which I mention in this order because in this order I was made partaker of them that day: in respect of the rehearsall sermon² at Paul's cross, in the morning there was none at our Church, but after service the Communion celebrated, which I receaved both with affection and comfort; in the afternoone I went unto an other church wher I heard a sermon upon the first and second verses of the 3rd chapter, to the Coloss.: if yee be risen with Christ seek those things which are above, where Christ sitteth on the right hand of God: sett your affections on things above, and not on things on the earth. And now I am come to the inward effect, which if I could represent to your apprehensions I should not need to bespeak your attentions. The highest pinnacle of Solomon's glory did noe more transcend the lowest depth of Job's misery, then the ioy I now had, did the greatest comfort which before I ever felt. The Counterpane of that decree of Election which was made by the eternall Councell of God before tyme in heaven, was at this tyme, signed, seald and delivered by his holy Spirrit accompanying his ordinances in the congregation of his servants on earth. And now tell mee if you can, what this ioy is, but as they that have not felt it cannot imagine it, so neither can they that have, fully express it.

At last I am arrived at the consequence or effects which flowed from this fountaine and rann in three streames.

1 fayth in God : 2^d righteousness toward man : 3^{dly} contentation with my present condition. Fayth is that grace of God which ingrafts us into Christ Jesus our Lord, and is made evident by the effects and fruites, 1 a full assurance of the pardon and forgiveness of my sinns, & that God reconcil'd mee to himself, and 2^{dly} noe less evidence that I should never fall totally away from him, but by his mercy be preserved unto eternall life and salvation : another, because of the same streame, was a breathing after and delight in God's ordinances, in prayer, as the breathings of the soule after heaven, in preaching as the food of spirituall life, in the sacraments as a visible representation of Christ's death and passion, and an undoubted confirmation of the benefitts thereof. A third was an enlargment of soule in the prayses of God with love to the society of his servants, and desire that others might partake of that grace and mercy which God had shewed unto mee. 2nd Righteousness towards man was declared both in deeds and words : in deeds, 1^o by a sincere and faythfull performance of the duty of a servant, in which relation I then stood : there was now noe eye of my master necessary to quicken my obedience or to regulate my practice, which were carried on with that assiduity as might seeme to render my master alwayes present. In words, for the truth whereof I refused not to expose myself to the greatest hazard : those commands of my Master and Mistris which hitherto had carryed all before them, had now noe force, more then what was consonant to God's commands, which had an influence upon all my performances, and therefore receaving a commaund to deny a truth I chose rather to deny that commaund and render myself obnoxious to the severest punishment of my Master (and it sometimes was severe) then to disobey the least commaund of my God : the same apprehension which required observance, in what was right forbad obedience, in that was contrary. 3^d was contentation with my present condition which however in it self most mean and contemptible, and such as seem'd inconsistant with the least contentment, yet by god's mercy was advantageous to my present comfort. None ever gathered greater accommodations from the concurrence of all earthly delights, then I now did from my low condition, whereby the variation of my course was made more easy, and those interruptions which prosperity casts in the way to heaven removed : another effect was sobriety, which commanded both my will and affections and at once cutt off those luxurious branches, which had sprung either from conformity with the world or carnall satisfactions : those favours or fancyes which till now I either enioyed with delight or desyred as pretious reliques, had a bill of divorce put into their hands never to be readmitted, being not to be retayned without an abatement of spirituall comfort. And thus much of the consequence, for their nature ; their continuance is the last. Herein, as in all, God's free grace was the hinge whereupon all depended and whilst turnd towards him, yeilded nothing but soule ravishing delight and contentment, in manifesting to my owne conscience the truth of my conversion against all doubts and suspition. But least these might either coole or occation too much security, the hinge, though hang'd upon the unalterable decree of God's free grace in Christ Jesus, yet seemed to turn backwards and I left rather by consideration to understand then by sence to feele the sweetness of these comforts : thus at sometimes were the former ioyes interrupted. From this true though otherwise imperfect narration, these conclusions I conceive will result : first that true conversion is a sincere desire and endeavour after an universall reformation and performance of our particular places, accompanied with a deniall of all ungodliness and worldly lusts, and with that unseparable trinity of Christian graces, holyness, righteousness and sobriety, soe farr forth as may be attayned during this lyfe, wherein these graces are imperfect : 2^{ly}, that where this conversion is ordinarily wrought, there the holy spirritt of God doth beare wittnes to the truth for substance though not warrant the perfection for forme of his outward worship and service : 3^{dly} that men in the present forme of administration of divine ordinances, in the congregation of Protestants, in the Church of England, the holy spirit of God doth concurr ordinarily to the worke of true conversion, and also by the same administration, worketh repentance for such breaches and incursions as sinn dayly makes upon the soules of God's servants. The premises considered, my humble petition to them that have found these effects in their soules is that they would not draw back, nor forsake those assemblies where by their owne experience they have found that God in mercy doth so carry on and preser[ve]

the power of his owne ordinances as neither humane constitutions, mixt congregations or personall sinns, can interrupt those ends whereunto hee hath appointed them. And to them that have not yet found these effects, my petition lykewise is, that avoyding preiudice against the form of administration of the ordinances, or the persons, or places, they will in humility and patience wayte upon God in that way wherein they have his promise that they shall; and the testimony of his servants that they have found pardon and peace thorough Jesus Christ our Lord, to whom be glory for evermore.

POSTSCRIPT, I would not have added more but to remove a double charge which is layd against mee by freinds of contrary apprehensions: some will have mee to be a superstitious formalist and others enclinable to the separatists: whereunto I answere, true and not true. In their apprehensions possibly true, in the things themselves not true: if by superstitious formalist; they understand one that frequents the Church and congregation where God's ordinances are administered and desireth all things there should be done with reverence, decency and order, that thither nether brings, nor there willingly exerciseth any carnal affection, that puts an equall esteeme upon all God's ordinances, that shews reverence to ministers (notwithstanding some personall infirmities) for their works' sake, and in some cases makes addresses to them, for solution of doubts, though not for absolution of sinns, that unto tymes, places and things sett a part for divine service hath such respect as is meet without superstition, that approves such abstinence in dyett, apparell, and other carnall contentments as may weaken naturall corruptions with least observance, I confess I am a superstitious formalist. But and if by formalist they understand one that puts religion in observation of humane constitutions, bowing to or towards the communion table and worshipping towards the East, that doth bodily reverence without inward devotion or apprehension of his Maiesy at that most sweet and most pretious name of my Lord and Master Jesus, that accompts ecclesiastical canons equall to the cannon of holy scripture, that esteemes very highly of service anthems, homilies, and church catechisme, with the neglect of the minister, prayer, preaching, singing of psalmes and all other instructions, I am no formalist.

So and if by separatist they understand one that makes scruple of doing any thing in God's service but what is warranted by his word, that desireth the whole congregation of the Lord were holy, that prophane and scandalous livers might be sharply reprov'd and, if incorrigible, excommunicated untill they had repented, that all reliques of popery and superstitious pictures were utterly abolished, that in all companies wee endeavour to promote God's glory, and to edify one another, I am a separatist.

But if by separatist they understand such as refuse all forms of God's service and ether omitts comming to the congregation or there by unreverent behaviour manifests his contempt of the service, that shuns all assemblies but those of his owne iudgment, and all Ministers but such as themselves have elected which are not alwayes so very well qualified, that will not baptise children because not expressed in the Scripture to their apprehension), that accompts all humane learning and arts unnecessary for interpreting the holy Scripture, that hath a prejudice against the use of the Lord's prayer and singing psalms, I am no separatist.

Nor ever yett concurr'd soe farr in their opinions or practice as to be present at any meeting or private fast that lookes that way. Whether Episcopacy, Presbety or Independency be most sutable to the holy scripture, or that therein there is such a particular and exact forme of discipline prescribed as doth necessarily commaund observance upon paine of God's displeasure, I confess I doe not understand. Nor will I presume to iudge the expediency or unexpediency of an enforced liturgie, nor vex myself with feares least that now in force might suffer some change or variation, which possibly the constitutions of person, and tymes may have made convenient: I may not iustify those that altogether omitt the Lord's prayer nor commend them that use all other as a preface to it: I equally blame them that refuse to come to sermons either because there be prayers or because there be noe prayers: I will soe farr shunn Armenianism, as not to attribute the least inclination toward goodness to the utmost endeavour of nature: And I will also beware of such sloathfullness as may retard Christian duty or betray me to that horrid apprehension, which that I may be the less guilty would charge the sinn upon God's most holy decree. I will neither so undervalew humane learning as to deprive it of its due honour nor soe doate upon it as to conceive it should unlock those cabinetts of God's secretts which he reveales onely to them that feare him: I dare not subscribe to ether opinion, Sunday a Sabbath or Sunday noe Saboth, the one may be too rigyd, the other too remiss: I am neither against King nor Parliament but for both, peaceably submitting to what the Lawes of God rightly understood and the good laws of the land rightly declared impose upon mee, if extream necessity enforce.

I shall rather suffer as a patient that I doe not, then doe as an agent what I know not. I will not chase iustice with more speed then they can safely drive that have the flocks before them, least my precipitancy preiudice them that are bigg with sorrow, and soe their repentence become abortive: better many delinquants were delay'd then that one true penitent should be preiudiced. These are matters too high and wonderfull for mee, I cannot attain unto them, and possibly it is not my unhappiness to be thus bounded, for who hath been either a bringer up, or a voluntiere in these divisions and is guilty of less error then the not observing each word of commaund; as noe popular applause shall prompt mee on to any unwarrantable action, so neither shall any opprobrious name of Puritaine, Roundhead, etc. (by God's grace) deterre mee from performance of any Christian duty; of my own choice I will not break the rank wherein God hath placed mee, nor by his grace refuse to doe or suffer what hee shall appoynt unto mee, until further manifestation, whereof I shall make my humble supplication that hee, which took away the wall of separation from betweene Jew and Gentile, and that he might reconcile man unto God, took our nature into the unity of his owne person, will of his infinite mercy create peace between them who profess the maintenance of his true religion to be the cause of their divisions, that noe more of their blood be shedd, for redemption of whom Christ shedd his most precious blood, or if hee have appointed the sword in the hand of the souldier rather then his word in the mouth of his minister to be the way whereby hee will pacify his Church and establish his Gospell, that hee will make it knowne unto his servant who hopes hee desires to feare his name, and yett is not soe satisfied that he can either assent to those doctrines that encourage to warr, though delivered from the pulpitt in his name, nor say amen to those prayers which in the same place are against peace, though put up to his Maiestie, but must Wayte the further manifestation of his will, and in the meane space, with Elihu in Job¹

1648 Jan. 19. King Charles was brought by a part of the army from Wyndsor to St. James, next day to Westminster to Sir Robert Cotton's house: the King's bench & chancery being ioyned in one and scaffolded, the Lord President Serieant Bradshaw with his trayn carried up, the mace born by Serieant Dendy,¹ the sword by Coll. Humfreys, before him, and after him about 70 Commissioners,² Mr Asky³ a lawyer of the Temple, Dr. Dorislaus⁴ a cyvilian, Mr Cook⁵ a lawyer of Gray's Inn Solicitor Generall for the business. The commission by which the Court satt being read, Commissioners called, the Lord President commaunded the seriant at armes to fetch the prysoner, who brought the Kyng and placed him in a chayre: the Lord President said they were there assembled by authority of the Commons of England to try Charles Stewart, King of England, who had betrayed the trust reposed in him by the Commons of England, and commaunded his charge to

³ Richard Aske or Asky, admitted Inner Temple 1606, called to the Bar January 29, 1615 (Cal. of the Inner Temple Records, ii. 88); Bencher 1633 (ibid. p. 211); counsel for Strode, 1629; appointed by the Houses Coroner and Attorney of the King's Bench, 1644; Junior Counsel at the King's trial, Sergeant and Justice of the Upper Bench, June 1, 1649; died 1656 (Foss's Judges).

⁵ John Cook, or Cooke, son of Isaac Cook, of Burbridge, co. Leicester, Esquire, admitted to Gray's Inn Nov. 1, 1623 (Foster's Gray's Inn Register of Admissions, p. 171); called to the Bar Nov. 21, 1631 (Gray's Inn Pension Book, p. 309); called to be of the Grand Company May 24, 1650 (ibid. p. 376). There is a long letter of his to Strafford when Lord Lieutenant in Ireland, printed in Camden Miscellany, vol. ix., Strafford Papers, p. 14, where Cook is said to have been employed in revising an edition of the Statutes (Mercurius Elencticus, No. 56, 1649, cited there). After acting as Solicitor-General in the trial of the King and that of Hamilton, and his fellow officers, he was, in December 1647, appointed Chief Justice of Munster, and in 1655 Justice of the Court of Upper Bench in Ireland. On October 16, 1660, he was executed as a regicide. At a Pension held July 4, 1660, it had been ordered that his chambers should be seized (Gray's Inn Pension Book, p. 431).

be read, which done, the King would have spoke, but the Solicitor Generall sayd: 'I doe in the name of the Commons of England charg Charles Stewart, King of England, with Tyranny, murther and treason: ' cheif heads were for levying warr & calling in the Irish. The King demaunds to know their authority, which hee owned not.

The week following they goe to prove the charge, which done, his sentence was read upon Saturday, Jan. 27, 1648: and Tuesday about two of the clock it was put in execution by taking off the King's head att his Court gate. Hee was third sonn of King James, born in Scotland Nov. 19, 1600, was created Duke of York at White hall Jan. 6, 1604, and Nov. 4, 1616, hee was created Prince of Wales & Earl of Chester, began his raigh March 27, 1625, raigned near 24 yeares: professed himself a Protestant att his death, forgave his executioner and all others whose hands were in that his unnaturall death.

Feb. 9, Duke Hamleton,¹ Erl of Norwiche, Lord Capell² and Sir John Owen³ were one by one brought to the same barr, the same Lord President sitting with other Commissioners,⁴ but the same Sollicitor Generall impeaching them. Duke pleaded the command of the Parliament of Scotland, Capell, quarter as a souldier,⁵ Owen not guilty.

² George Goring, Earl of Norwich, and Arthur Lord Capel surrendered at Colchester, Aug. 27, 1648. The superior officers submitted to mercy, but Norwich and Capel had received, the day after the signing of the capitulation, an assurance from Fairfax of quarter for their lives (ibid. iv. 201-6).

³ Sir John Owen headed a rising in North Wales in June 1648.

⁴ On Feb. 3, 1649, Parliament erected a new High Court of Justice to try these prisoners. Dr. Gardiner gives the date of the opening of proceedings as Feb. 10 (History of the Commonwealth, i. 11-12).

⁵ These pleas were not admitted, as Hamilton was born after the accession of James I., and so came within the Post nati judgment, and in Capel's case a military promise was held as not binding on a civil court.

THE manuscript of the following autobiography is contained in a small paper volume, bound in modern red leather, among the Egerton MSS. in the British Museum, and is numbered 2148 in that collection. Account of the MS.

This volume, of which the folios measure about 8 inches by 6, contains, firstly, a short pedigree of the descendants of Sir Thos. Hoby, followed by a note concerning the daughters of Sir Ant. Cooke, signed 'B. M.' Then comes the autobiography of Sir Thomas, here printed, occupying folios 5-182, after which, in the writing of one William Andrews, follows 'An exhortation unto death given to my Lord and Master the Lord Russell when he laye upon his death bedd in London. By Doctour Nowell, deane of Poules. 1584,' and an account of the death and burial of Lord Russell by the same hand. This is followed by a note of much later date describing the monument in Westminster Abbey to Elizabeth the daughter of Lord Russell.

Folios 186-202 are occupied with a rather interesting 'Description of the State of Italy,' treated under the following heads:—'1. The territories of every state; 2. Theiræ jealous quiett; 3. Theiræ feare; and 4. Theiræ dependancies and appoyes,' which is written in a sixteenth-century hand, but not by Sir Thomas Hoby.

As to the history of the manuscript, it can only be stated that it seems to have passed into the Russell family on the marriage of Sir Thos. Hoby's widow to Lord Russell, and then into the hands of Sir Edward Hoby, eldest son of Sir Thomas, in whose writing, which curiously resembles that of his uncle Lord Burleigh, are most of the side-notes. Probably from the days of Sir Edward the volume remained at Bisham till towards the close of the eighteenth century, when the estate, then heavily encumbered, was alienated.

Be that as it may, the volume eventually came into the possession of the late Richard Bentley, the publisher, from whose executors it was purchased by the Trustees of the British Museum at Sotheby's auction rooms, in December 1871.

From the autobiography itself, folios 5-182 of the manuscript, want of space has necessitated the following omissions:—Firstly, several epitaphs and monumental inscriptions, which were copied by Hoby at various places during his travels on the Continent, have been left out. In case, however, any one should wish to look at these I give here a list of the places at which they were copied, and the folio on which they will be found in the MS.:—

Epitaphs at Rome	fol.	32,	about	8 pp.
„ „ Naples	„	42,	„	16 „
„ „ Messina	„	70,	„	2 „
„ „ Catania	„	74,	„	1 „
„ „ Rouen	„	112,	„	4 „
„ „ Mantua	„	158,	„	$\frac{1}{2}$ „

There are also in the manuscript a great many side-notes in the handwriting of Sir Edward Hoby, which, as they for the most part consist merely of a repetition at the margin of such points in the text as appeared to him to be of special interest, have been omitted.

There have also been omitted nine folios, 162-170 in the MS., which refer to the Baths of Juno at Caldiero, near Verona, which Philip Hoby was taking to cure some ailment, and an account of which his brother has inserted under the year 1555.

The most important matter here is a translation into Italian of a Latin medical treatise on the Baths and their uses, by one Alcardo di Pedemento da Verona, a physician; there is also given an analysis of the waters here, made in 1474 by 'Maestro Gerardo di Bolderi da Verona.' Of these matters Hoby writes: 'Thus much I found written of these baynes in an old booke that contained the origion of the familie of Bandi of Verona.'

In the text which follows the reader will notice the use of a set of curious marks, viz. $\text{)}, \text{D}, \Delta, \theta, \text{z}, \text{f}, \text{f}$, being facsimiles of those prefixed by the author to the names of the various places through which he passed in his travels, but of which he has given no explanation. Probably they were meant to indicate the size or population of each place; certainly the first mark,) , does not appear to be used for any of the larger towns, while the last and most complicated, viz. f , is reserved for the following towns: viz. Antwerp, Augsburg, Cologne, Ferrara, Florence, Mantua, Messina, Orleans, Paris, Rome, Siena, Spires, and Strasburg, which, according to this theory, should be of somewhat the same size and importance. The mark for Antwerp, however, is not always the same. The numerals that stand in some cases before these curious symbols are meant to give the number of days during which the author stayed at the place so marked, while those that follow the figures appear to give the consecutive numbers of the places visited by him.¹ The MS., as distinct from the notes, was written throughout by Thomas Hoby, and from the beginning in 1547 up to the end of the year 1554 has evidently been written out fairly and continuously. From the last sentence under 1554 (p. 119), viz. 'The writing began the xvijth of November, I ended the ixth day of Februarie following,' which is followed by a blank page, we may gather that the manuscript thus far was written out fairly during his stay at Padua in the winter of 1554-55. From 1555 to the end both the writing and ink vary considerably, as if written at different times.

Historical value.

The autobiography here printed begins in the year 1547 and closes in 1564, and, for the period and subjects with which it deals, is of considerable historical value. For though we may regret that so much of the manuscript was taken up by details which have only the interest which must attach to a sixteenth-century guide-book, we also have here the reminiscences of a young Englishman of exceptional ability, during a period of seventeen years, of which a large part was occupied in travels on the Continent of Europe.

The circumstances of the writer were indeed exceptionally favourable, as his journeys were for the most part made under the ægis of his brother Philip, Ambassador at the Court of the Emperor, and a diplomatist of ripe experience. The stories told bring before us with considerable skill many interesting scenes in which the writer himself took part, and important personages with whom, during a period of exceptional political and religious interest, he was brought into contact. Where it has been possible to compare statements made in the autobiography with official contemporary records I have found them to be correct.

family.

The pedigree of the Hoby family has been printed at considerable length by the late Dr. Howard in his 'Miscellanea,'¹ and again by the Harleian Society in their edition of the 'Visitation of Worcestershire in 1569.' In both these accounts the family is represented as a very old one, with a descent from Welsh princes and entitled to armorial bearings, which, if the documents printed by Dr. Howard be trustworthy, were granted by the College of Arms in consequence of a certificate from the gentlemen of the county of Radnor as to their validity and that of the pedigree they represent, drawn up at the request of William and Thomas Hoby in 1561.

The original 'Visitation of Worcestershire,' in the library of the College of Arms, does not give the pedigree further back than William, the father of Philip and Thomas Hoby, but the printed pedigrees have so far the imprimatur of the College that the arms to which they lay claim are registered, and these correspond with the elaborate heraldic display which adorns the Hoby Chapel in Bisham Church.

It is, moreover, a curious fact that Philip Hoby, before he was knighted in 1544, had applied for and been granted by the College¹ a totally different coat, being presumably in complete ignorance of any belonging to his family. This coat, however, is entirely suppressed in the Hoby Chapel at Bisham, where Philip Hoby is represented on his tomb as bearing the same coat as his brother Thomas.

All the above-mentioned pedigrees agree in stating that Philip and Thomas were the sons of one William Hoby of Leominster, in Herefordshire. Philip, the elder of the two, was born in 1505, and Nash, quoting from a manuscript in the College of Arms,² says that he came up to Court under the auspices of Charles Somerset, Earl of Worcester. Here his talent for affairs of State was soon discovered, and as early as 1538 we find that he was entrusted with important work in the diplomatic service. He also held the office of Master of the Ordnance, and was made a Privy Councillor under Edward VI., and in 1548 was appointed English Ambassador at the Court of the Emperor. His sympathies were strongly with the Reformation, but even in Queen Mary's reign we find him employed in various financial and diplomatic missions on the Continent, a fact which shows that his great abilities were recognised both at home and abroad. After the dissolution of the monasteries he was a purchaser of various Church lands in Worcestershire, and in 1552 of the Bisham Abbey estate, in Berkshire, which on his death in 1558, without male issue, passed to his younger brother.

Sir Thomas
Hoby.

Thomas Hoby, the writer of the 'Travaile and Lief' here printed, was much younger than his brother Philip, having been born in the year 1530. At the age of fifteen he went up to Cambridge, where the University Register records his matriculation as a pensioner of St. John's College on May 20, 1545; but he does not appear to have proceeded to any degree. After two years' work at the University, where he was a pupil of the learned John Cheke, he left Cambridge to travel on the Continent and take up the study of foreign languages, with a view to a diplomatic career.

In August 1547 he left London, travelling in the company of John Abell, a London merchant in correspondence with Philip Hoby, for Strasburg, where, as the guest of Martin Bucer, he remained for nearly a year, reading classics and theology. During the autumn of 1549 his brother, then resident Ambassador at Augsburg, arranged that he should visit Italy, and during the following year we find him at Venice, Padua, and elsewhere, working at the language and other subjects, yet finding time to see something of the best social life, both Spanish and Italian. Later he travels southward to Rome, Naples, and through Calabria to Sicily, returning by sea to Naples, whence in the spring of 1550 he starts northward, and rejoining his brother at Augsburg accompanies him home, arriving in England in December 1550. His education was now sufficiently advanced for his introduction to Court life, which took place at Christmas 1550, when the King was at Greenwich, and on the 1st of January following he entered the service of the Marquis of Northampton.

In May 1551 he again goes abroad, this time to France, in the train of the Marquis of Northampton, one of the commissioners despatched to invest the French King with the Order of the Garter, and returns to England the August following.

In 1552 and 1553 Thomas Hoby was again in Paris, at work on his translation of Count Baldesar Castiglione's book, 'Il Cortegiano,' on which his literary fame mostly depends, and which took, says its latest editor, 'an assured place among the books of that age and ran through four editions during the reign of Elizabeth.' To quote again from Mr. Raleigh's introduction,¹ 'Hoby's translation is conscientious, intelligent, and able,' . . . 'but his knowledge of the language was far from perfect.' . . . 'When censure has said its last word the "Courtier" as done into English by Thomas Hoby is still the book of a great age, the age that made Shakespeare possible.' The 'Courtier' was not, however, printed till 1561, and the translator's stay of thirteen weeks in London, during November 1560, was probably devoted to seeing it through the press.

In 1553 Hoby rejoined his brother Philip at Brussels, and at this date we learn the opinion formed of him by the learned Roger Ascham, who, writing to Sir John Cheke from Brussels in July 1553, thus speaks of him: 'Hic juvenis præclare ostendit ex cujus artificis prodierit officina. Frater ejus Dominus Philippus, vir prudentissimus, utitur eo, et utitur solo ad omnes res pertractandas in hac Cæsaria Aula: in qua perfunctione, tam opportune, diligenter, considerate, et tacite se gerit: ut illorum seminum quæ tu in eo puero Cantabrigiæ jecisti, non nascens jam aliqua spes se proferat sed florens, eaque insignis maturitas, in eo nunc adolescente facto sic emineat: ut recte quidem meo judicio ipse faceres, si effeceris, ut is intelligat, te non solum illum in hoc cursu libenter cum voluptate spectare, sed ipsum tam præclare currentem cum aliquo etiam applausu incitare.'²

In September 1553 we find Thomas Hoby back in England, and in 1554 he again accompanies his brother, who was travelling into Italy to take the baths at Caldiero, near Verona, from whence they did not return to England till the close of 1555.

On the death of Sir Philip Hoby in May 1558 Thomas succeeded to the Bisham Abbey estate, a beautiful domain situate on one of the prettiest reaches of the Thames, and in the following month took to wife Elizabeth, one of the learned and accomplished daughters of Sir Anthony Cooke of Gidea Hall, in Essex. During the next six years he appears to have lived a good deal at Bisham, where a son and two daughters were born to him, devoting himself to the improvement of his house and estate.

In the year 1557 we learn from the autobiography that Philip Hoby had taken in hand some scheme of new buildings at Bisham Abbey which must have been of considerable extent, since it is not till four years later that we hear of its completion by Thomas, who gives some interesting notes as to the nature and progress of the work done.

The 'Mansion House' at Bisham had been the residence of Margaret, Countess of Salisbury,¹ whose arms, impaled with those of her husband Sir Rich. Pole, are still to be seen there in the council-chamber window; but on her attainder in 1539 the King reserved the place for his own use. In 1552, however, Sir Philip Hoby was allowed to purchase it in fee farm, and the surveyor's description of the house at that date is extant.²

According to this document it appears that the house consisted of the present hall and council chamber, and a cloister which formed a square, with several other rooms of which the exact position is not given. It would seem probable that the cloister, of which only one side now remains, extended eastward, as foundations have been found of late years in that direction. Thomas Hoby no doubt pulled down this cloister and the lodgings about it and used the material for his large additions on the north side of the hall, where he tells us the turret was built in 1560. The fact also that his arms, impaling those of his wife, appear over the fireplace in the tapestry room seems to point to his being responsible for the rooms on the south side of the hall as well.

The monastic buildings were quite independent of the Mansion House, and were situated on the north side of it, nearer the moat, where foundations may be clearly traced in a dry summer. It is also interesting to note that as early as 1552 the Abbey hall and church had been completely swept away.¹ In 1561 the new structure appears to have been finished and the house to have assumed very much its present form, and in the following year the gallery was put up at the west end of the hall, decorated with noblemen's arms, which unfortunately are not now visible.

With the year 1564 the autobiography closes, but Hoby's letters preserved among the State Papers help us to trace his steps during the last few months of his life. He was dubbed knight at Greenwich on Sunday, March 9, 1566,² and on the 15th of the same month the Queen appointed him her Ambassador at the Court of the French King, for whose capital he started early in April.

His journey was not very prosperous. He writes to Cecil from Dover on April 7, saying that 'after much rain and foul ways we came to Dover,' and that owing to his wife having had a fall from her horse at Sittingbourne they were resting a day, and hoping to start on the morrow 'for Dunkirk, Calais, or Bologne.'³

'On April 9' Hoby writes from Calais, which since its recapture by the French was being newly fortified, relating a rather serious incident and his own unsuccessful attempt to see the new fortifications. The story is best told in his own words. 'About the time of our landing in Calice haven (which was iij of the clocke) a souldier of the warde at the towne gate with his arquebuse shott through oure flagg in two places, in the read crosse and in the whit about it. I sent upon information thereof to Mounsier

D'Argos, Lieutenant . . . After supper came Mouns^r D'Argos, wherupon walking together between the toune and the haven we talked first of pleasant matters together, and once or twice er we came to the Sandgate he made certain privie offres to return back again the way we came. I, meaning to have some sight of their new device of the haven that is brought into the towne, would not take uppon me the understanding of his meaning by enie privie signes, but walked still forward. When we were come even to the verie gate, "Syr," quoth he, "there is no passage enie farther, for there be certain things that way not for enie stranger to have the view of." They then turn back, and Hoby 'opened unto him what discourtesie had bine shewed by their men,' and after some fencing D'Argos at last replies, 'By the morn I will see what I can do to bolt it out who it was.'¹

The incident seems to have weighed rather heavily on the new Ambassador, for he remarks somewhat pathetically later on, 'Beside this I note somewhat herbye of a hard beginning.' However the representative of the English Queen was not to be insulted with impunity, and within a day or two D'Argos 'declared he had set by the heels seven or eight suspect persons for shooting through the flag.'²

On April 25 he writes from Paris, and again on May 16, relating how he had been over to 'St. Maure sur les Fosses' to be presented to the King. On his arrival his Majesty was at dinner, so Hoby was first presented to the Queen Mother, and soon after to the King, to whom he presented his letters of credence from Queen Elizabeth. He thus describes the interview: 'The King at the opening of the letter, in stretching it out plaine to be read, tore out a good peece of it, whereat the Cardinal of Lorraine smiled and seemed to make a scoff, and standing not farre of, the better to decipher . . . cast continuallie a glerenge upon her Majestie's letters, which when I perceaved I prevented him, and somewhat (as it were unwitting of it) put myself betwixt the King and him to stopp his sight.'¹

During May and June 1566 he seems to have been engaged in the ordinary routine business of his office, but his last letter, according to the 'Calendar of State Papers,' is dated at Paris on June 21. He died on July 13, 1566, having made his will only the day before, in which he directs that his body should be conveyed to his parish church at Bisham, where he was buried on September 2. No portrait of Thomas Hoby is known to exist, though a full-length one of his wife is still at Bisham Abbey; but in the church alabaster recumbent figures of both the brothers lie side by side over their tomb, on which are the following lines:—

Two worthy Knightes, and Hobies bothe by name,
 Enclosed within this marble stone do rest.
 Philip, the fyrst, in Cæsar's Court hathe fame
 Such as tofore fewe legates like possest,
 A diepe discoursing head, a noble brest,
 A Courtier passing and a curteis Knight,
 Zelous to God, whos gospel he profest
 When gretest stormes gan dym the sacred light,
 A happie man whom death hathe now redeemed
 From care to joye that cannot be esteemed.
 Thomas in Fraunce possest the legate's place,
 And with such wisdom grew to guide the same
 As had increst great honour to his race
 Yf sodein fate had not envied his fame.
 Firm in God's truth, gentle, a faithful frend,
 Wel lerned and languaged; nature besyde
 Gave comely shape, which made ruful his end,
 Sins in his floure in Paris towne he died,

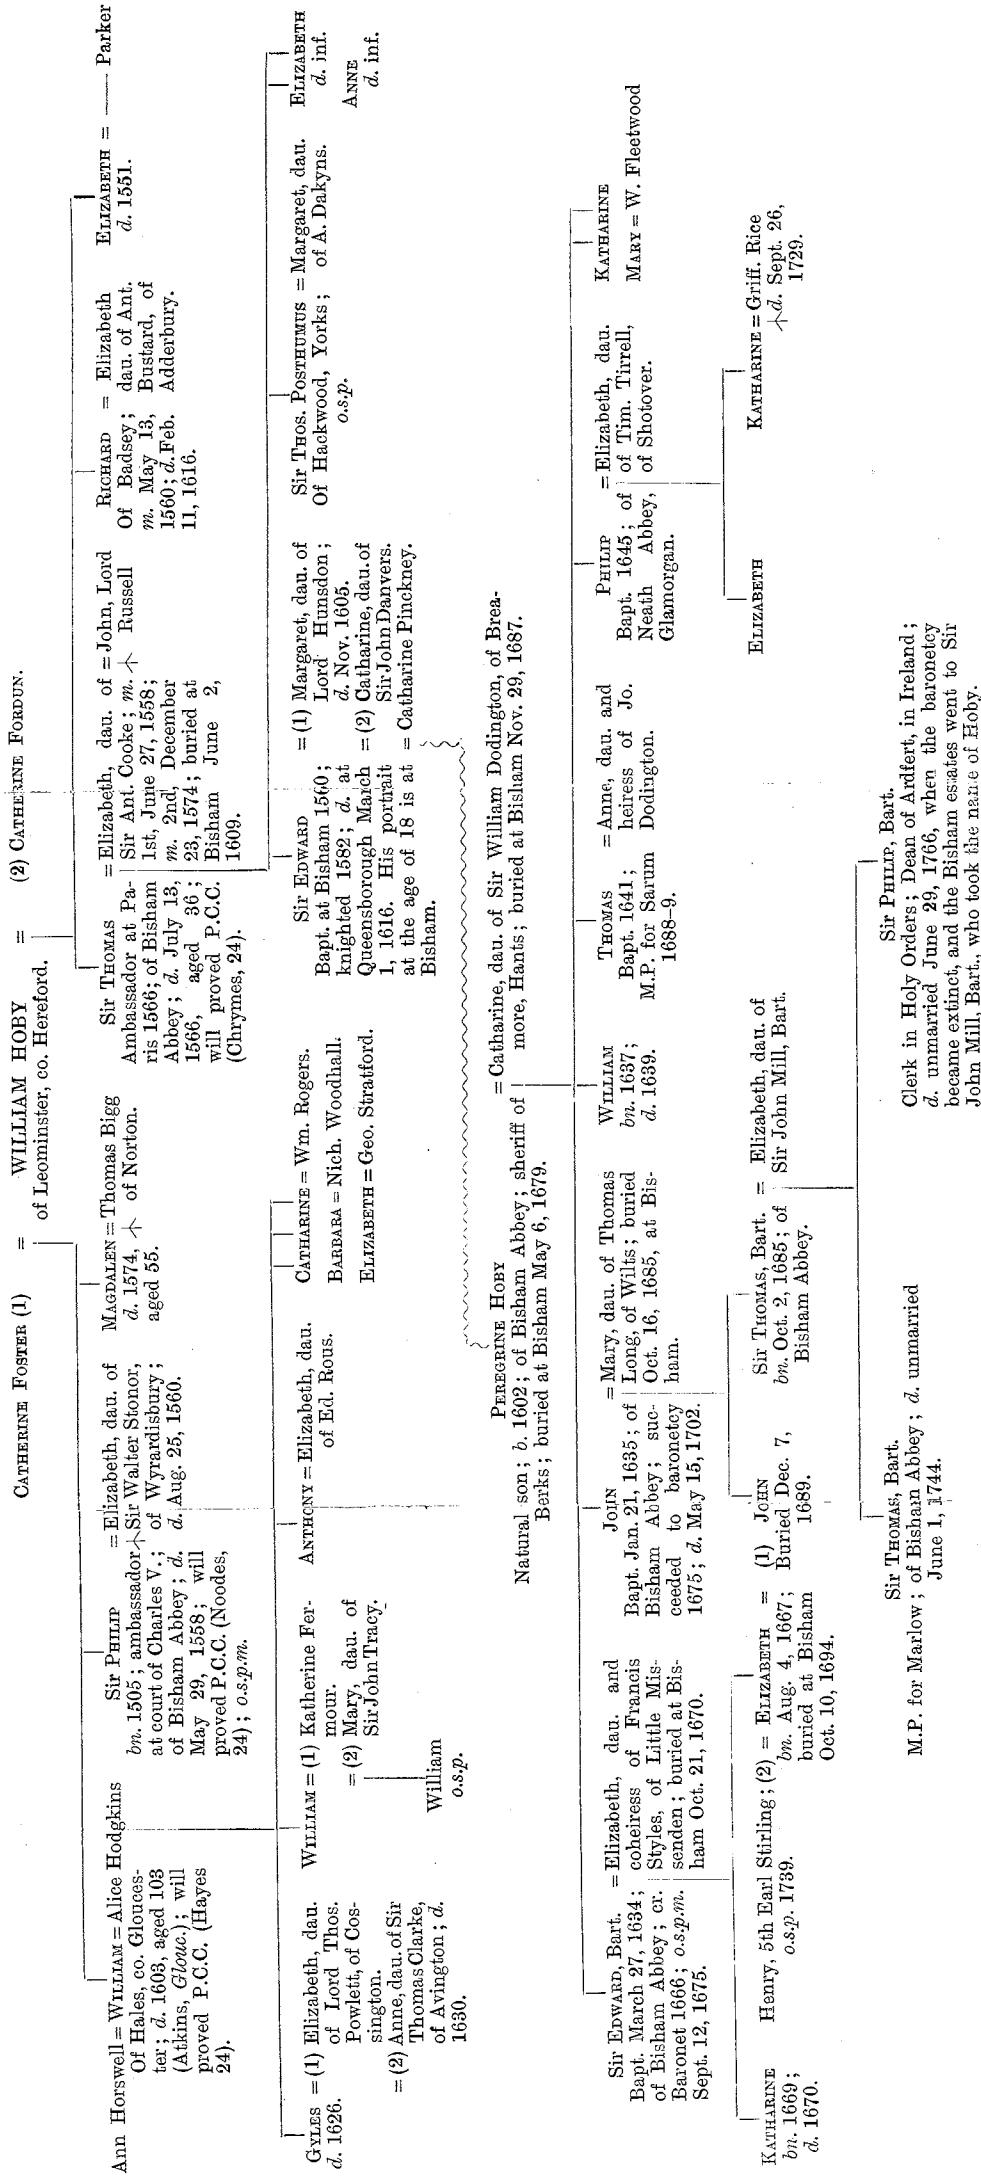

S. P., Foreign, Eliz., May 18, 1566,

Leaving with child behind his woful wief,
In forein land opprest with heapes of grief;
From part of which when she discharged was
By fall of teares which faithful wiefes do shead,
The corps with honour brought she to this place,
Perfourming here all due unto the dead.
That doon this noble tomb she caused to make
And both these brethern closed within the same,
A memory left here for vertue's sake,
In spite of death to honour them with fame.
Thus live they dead, and we lerne wel therby
That ye and we and all the world must dye.

[State Papers, Foreign, Eliz., July to August 1566 (P.R.O.)]

MADAM,—Although we here that sence the deth of your husband, our late ambassador, Sir Thomas Hobby, you have receaved in France great and comfortable courtesyes from the French Kyng, the Queen Mother, the Queen of Navarr, and sondry others, yet we make accompt that all these leade to gither can not so satisfy you as some pour testimony of our favor with the approbation of the late service of your husband and of your owne demeanor ther. Wherfor though you shall receive it somewhat lately in tyme, yet we assure the same procedeth only of the late knolledg of your return, and therfor we lett you know that the service of your husband (was to) us so acceptable, as next your(self and your) children, we have not the meanest loss of so hable a (servant) in that callyng, and yet sence it hath so plesed Almighty God to call hym in the entry of this our service, we take it in the better part, seing it hath appered tobe God's pleasure to call hym away so favorably to the service of hym specially in the constansy of his duety towards God, wherin we here saye he dyed very comendably. And for your self we can not but lett you know that we here out of France such singular good reports of your duety well accomplished towards your husband, both lyvyng and deade, with other your sobre, wise and discret behaviors in that court and country, that we thynk it a part of gret contentation to us and a comendation of our country that such a gentillwoman hath gyven so manifest a testimony of virtue in such hard tymes of adversite as none can be gretur lost ther, . . . and therfor though we thought very well of you befor (yet shall we hereafter make a more assured account of your virtues and gifts, and wherin soever we may conveniently do you pleasure you may be thereof assured. And so we would have you to rest yourself in quietness with a firm opinion of our especiall favour towards you. Given under our signet at our city of Oxford the of September, 1566, the eight of our Reign.

Your loving friend,

¹ John Abell. A London merchant of this name is mentioned by Strype as an exile for his religion in 1554.

Here I arryved the xvjth of October and remayned in Mr. Martin Bucer's¹ house, who was a man of no less integritie and purnes of lyving then of fame and learning. Him heard I in the Schooles in Divinitie, and sometime Peter Martir,² Sturmius³ in humanitie, Paulus Fagius⁴ in Hebrue, and Dasipodius in Greeke, who in their faculties were the best learned of their time. Abowt the moneth of December Mr. Peter Martir, Bernadinus Olchinus, and Jhon Abell went into England together. In January 1548 William Thomas⁵ cam this waye owt of Italye towards England. Also Sr Thomas Wyat⁶ arrived here to go towards Italye.

Bucer and P. Fagius died afterward in England, whose deaths were not so much lamented of all menn as their lyves desired, and yet so lamented that they were celebrated throwghowt the wholl Universitie of Cambridge, both with orations and all kinde of verses in all three tungs after their deathe.

This yere in the warr that the Emperour⁷ made against the Germanes, was the Duke of Saxonye taken prisoner. And the Lantgrave cam and yelded him unto th'Emperor as his prisoner, and were kept severally, the on was putt in prison in Vilfort in Flaunders, and the other folowed alwaies the court, having a great garde of Spaniards appointed to attend upon him. Th'Emperor was alwaies in hand withe him to make him choung his religion, promising him lyfe gooddes and libertie. But his constancie could never be corrupt for no faire proferr he made him.

² Peter Martyr, born at Florence 1500; joined the Reformers at Zürich 1542; came to England 1547; professor of divinity at Oxford 1548. (Wordsworth, Ecc. Biog.)

⁴ Paulus Fagius, born at Antwerp 1504; came to England with Martin Bucer; died at Cambridge 1549.

⁵ William Thomas, a well-known Italian scholar; Clerk to the Council of Edward VI. He took an active part in Sir Thomas Wyatt's insurrection, for which he suffered death. (D.N.B.)

⁶ Sir Thomas Wyatt, of Allington Castle, Kent; leader of the insurrection, 1553-4, against the Spanish marriage, for which he was executed.

⁷ The Emperor Charles V., nephew to Catharine of Aragon Queen to Henry VIII., and cousin to Queen Mary of England.

Electors of th'Empire by inheritance and succession are these folowing:—

The Archebisshoppe of Mentz [Mainz] and Maddeburg [Magdeburg], highe chauncelor of th'Empire;

The Archebisshoppe of Collen [Cologne];

The Archebisshoppe of Trier [Treves];

The Phaltzgrave of the Rhyne Duke of upper and nether Bavire [Bavaria];

The Duke of Saxonye landgrave in Duringen and Marques of Meysson, highe Marshall of th'Empire; The Marques of Brandenburg, Duke of Stetin Pomern. and Wenden, highe chamberlain of th'Empire. And yf of these sixe, three holde of on side and the other three of an other, then is the King of Boheme appointed to adjudge and determine the matter as he shall think most expedient, eyther on the on part or on th'other.

Jhon Friderick, after th'Emperor had taken him, was deprived of this electorshippe, and Duke Maurice, who had assisted th'Emperor in these his affaires of Germanye, was created Elector and putt in possession of most part of the townes of Saxonye belonging to that his electorshipp.

When Bucer had finisshed the little treatise¹ he made unto the church of England in answer to Stephan² Bisshoppe of Wynchester's railing epistles unto him, I translated it ymediatlie into Englishe and sent it to my brother, where it was put in print. Abowt the beginning of this yere, th'Emperor (desirous to plant the olde church of Babilon in Germanye again), with the assemblie of the Electors and other princes of Germanye begann a diete at Ausburghe, where they concluded among them the 'Interim' to bee used from thense furthe throwghout all Germany; that is to saye certain pointes of religion whiche commaunded a meane kinde of doctrine betwext the papistes and Luthere's opinion, untill such time as the great Counsell shuld be held generallie at Trent, there to agree upon an uniformitie to be observed in all Germanye. This kind of Interim lasted in the countreye in his full force abowt a v yeres, (the counsell all this while being differred and lingred from time to time), and afterward the people returned to their accustomed preachings again, when a little adversitie was happened unto th'Emperor by Duke Maurice his meane mingled with so muche prosperitie of his in former time, as in the yere 1552, shall more evidentlie appeare.

At suche time as my brother, sent by the King's Majesty Ambassador towards th'Emperor, was arrived at Auspurgh, I departed from Strasburg as soon as I understood by letteres from him his minde was I shuld repaire to him thither. Leaving behind me there Mr. Christopher Hales, Mr. Richard Sadler, Mr. Jhon Aucher,¹ Mr. Jhon Cobham, with Jhon Abell, Richard Hill, and John Bourcher. This was the last time that ever I sawe Mr. Bucer, but afterward at times I receaved letteres from him. This Interim was not in my time receaved in Argentine, for that Mr. Bucer bothe writt and spake earnestlie against yt, yeven in Auspurck after he was sent for thither under th'Emperor's saveconduct, and at his return preached openlie that in case they receaved it, they shuld lise him, as they did at lengthe: for he went from thense into England.

I departed towards Ausprughe the fourthe of Julye in mye jorneye as folowethe:—

Here I arrived within fowre dayes after my setting forwardes, where I found my brother lodged in a house that was once a monasterye called St. George. By this was a churche of protestants, where on John Mæcardus was preacher. Th'Emperor was here lodged in the Folkers' ¹ house and had assembled together the king of Romanes his brother, Maximilian the King's sonn, which went into Spaine, where he married th'Emperor's daughter, the olde Duke of Bavire, certain of the Electors with sundrie other princes of Germanye.

A little before this time was the Interim begun to be observed in all the citie; saving in a fewe protestant churches which at time of service were replenished full of people, whereas at the other churches cam verie fewe. I was sent for hither to have goone into Italye with Mr. Harry Williams, who was departed before mine arrivall, and the vth of August set forward thitherward as folowethe:—

Here I laye in Mr. Edmund Harvell's¹ house, Ambassaodr resident for the King's Majesty, where I found also Mr. Jhon Yong, with whom I laye, Mr. George Speake, Mr. Thomas Fitzwilliams, Mr. Thomas Straung, and dyverse other Englishemen. From hense I went to Padoa and Mr. Fitzwilliams with me, which was the xvth of August. In this towne laye manye Englishmen, as Sir Thomas Wyatt, Mr. Jhon Cotton, Mr. Henry Williams, Mr. Fraunces Williams his brother, which died bothe in England the yere 51, Mr. Jhon Arundle, Mr. Jhon Hastings, Mr. Christopher Alen, Mr. Jhon Sheres, Mr. Jhon Handford, and dyverse other. Here I applied my self as well to obtain the Italian tung as to have a farther entrance in the Latin. The most famous in this town was Lazarus Bonamicus in humanitie, whose lectures I visited sometimes, Mantuan, Turnellus, and Caniolus in the civill lawe, and Claudius Tolomeus a senest in the Italian tung, and in logick Tomitanus.

The towne of Padoa is very auntient, built by Anthenor, as this epitaff upon his sepulcher, which is bye St. Laurence Church, without the olde walles, makethe mention.¹

C. Inclitus Antenor patriam vox Nisa quietem
 Transtulit huc Enetum, Dardanidumque fugas, Expulit Euganius, Patavinam condidit urbem,
 Quem tenet hic humili marmore cæsa domus.

Som hold opinion that in those dayes all this waye was seea, and that he built his towne at the foote of Euganei Montes, which hilles are fyve miles owt of Padua: their reason is bicause ther are sundrie antiquities found under those hilles. As for this his sepulcher they say hathe bine placed here by the Longebardes, who found som certain monument of his, and here did erect this tounge of marble in his memorye, for the letters are suche as the Longobardes did accustome to use in times past, neyther dothe the stile of the verses seeme to bee of anie probable authoritie or antiquitie. Other say they were not the Longobardes' letters but the Gothes and Vandals, which of long time have borne a great stroke in all Italy.

At the lower end of the great hall they have sett uppe a monument of T. Livius within the wall, whiche was a Padowan, and wrott the Roman histories. In the uppermost place there standeth his heade as livelie as it can bee made in stone, under that is an olde stonn with this inscription in yt:

	V. F.
	T. Liuius Liuiæ
An image of brass	T.F. Quartæ L. Halys	An image of brass
	et suis omnibus.

Under this liethe on bothe sides a mass of brasse, th'on is made for Tiberis, the river that runneth by Rome, and the other for Modocus, that passeth by Padoa, called in the vulgar tung la Brenta. In the middes betwext bothe these rivers there is a wolf of brasse also, with two sucking babes. Underneath this there is a peice of brasse in maner of a skutchin within the whiche are these verses in golden letters,

Ossa tuumque caput cives tibi maxime Livi
 Prompto animo hic omnes composuere tui.
 Tu famam æternam Romæ patriæque dedisti.

This was sett uppe in the yere of our Lord 1547. The hall is verie bewtifull: all cawses and matters are pleaded here: it is full of clarkes and notaries that are continuallie writing. At the on end of it is the govenar's house of the towne, whiche is continuallie a gentleman of Venice and chaunged everie yere. At the other end are prisonnes & dongeons. The towne is ruled by two principall heades, the on is governor, called in Italian Podesta: and his authoritee is in the day time; the other is the captain over the sowldiers and the garison, and his authoritie is in the night. They have two severall faire howses belonging to their offices. At everie yeres end of there abode here they are chaunged, but not bothe at on time. They count the governance of this towne on of the cheeffest offices belonging to the Syniorye of Venice, and not much inferior to Candia and Cyprus. No man weareth his weapon within the towne, but such as are licensed by the Podesta: which is the maner both of Venice and all the townes under the dominion of it. And by everie newe Podesta this license is confirmed, yf he thinke it so expedient. There are everie yere abowt August chosen two rectores by the scolars themselves, th'on for the civill lawe, and the other for art, which have the jurisdiction over the scolars that are in the Universitie; and without their consent there is no scolar punished whatsoever he doo, nor yet taken owt of his house. These rectors graunt owt writings wythe the seale of the faculties to whosoever will becum scholar: wherby he that is thus made scolar is freelie exempt from all custome and whatsoever kind of dace ¹ is to be paid for anie thing he buyeth, which is a great privileg. He is by this his scholarshipp bound to no lectures, nor nothing elles but what he lyst him selfe to goo to.

This yere the Duke of Guise cam throwge Padoa in the monethe of August, where he was honorablie receaved and took his journey to Ferrara to espouse the Duke's daughter.

This yere the prince of Spaine cumming out of Spaine by sea to goo to th'Emperor his father, arrived at Genowa. From thens he went to Millane, where he was receaved by don Fernando Gonzaga, the governar. The vijth of January Mr. Edward Murphin, Mr. Henry Killigrewe¹ and I departed owt of Padoa towardses Mantoa, to see him make his entrie there, which was the xiiijth of the said monthe. There was great preparation for the receipt of him. He was mett three or fowre mile withowte the towne by the yong Duke of Mantoa accompanied with the cardinall his uncle, his two brethren and other noble menn. He made his entrie an howre within night, riding under a canapie born by iiij horsmen. There camm with him more then a thowsand on horsback. His gard folowed him a foote. Before him went xxx or xl hansom yong gentlmenn, clothed all in white vellute, townsmenn everye on, withe a great chain of golde abowt his necke a whitte staff in his hand.

The first gate of the towne he entred into is called la Porta della Predella, upon the which was written on the owtside :

Philippo filio Hispaniæ Regi in quo Patris imaginem cernimus, Animi magnitudinem admiramur, foelicitatem expectamus.

He cam throwghe another gate called la porta della liona, on the on side of it was written :

Carolo V^{to} Cæs. August. Afri. Germa. Impera optimo. Regi optimo Philippo F. Hispaniæ. Principi magnanimo seculi spei.

On the otherside of the gate was painted an egle with herr yong birdes beginning to take their flight, and there was written :

Sicut aquila prouocans ad volandum pullos suos.

upon the gate entreing into the great markett place before the castle was written on thone side :

Spondeo digna tuis ingentibus omnia captis.

on the other side towardses the markett place :

Bono Eventui. Genio Principis.

In the middle of the markett place was made a great stature of a woman holding a copia cornu in herr hand, and under herr was written :

Publica Hilaritas.

Upon the first gate at the entring into the castle where the prince laye, on the owtside was written :

Fælicitati Temporum.

within this gate there was a large roome, in the middle whereof was made a stature of Hercules holdding in eche hand a great pillar, and under him were written thes verses :

*Alcides statuit, Cæsar sed protulit. At tu

Abowt the porche of this gate was written in great letters :

Captis Thebis, vates ventura providens, sub Principum Austriæ auspitijs tutam urbem perpetuo futuram Oeno filio conden-dam mandavit.

Stories do witnesse that Oenus named this town Mantua when he had built it, after the name of his mother so called, who was daughter to Tyresias the profett sowgthseyer.

Upon the second gate of the castle was written :

*Gonzaga et Palæologa familiæ Caro. V. Impera. Cæsa. August. liberalitate magnos honores consecutæ Philippippi Filij His-paniæ Principis adventu sempiternum beneficij Monumen-

The castle was verie richlie sett in ordre against his cumming : all the chambres hanged with riche arras. And the beddes covered with clothe of golde, sett all with perle, where he himself laye.

The next day after his arrivall, abowt the evening, he went owt of the castle to visitt the olde Dutchesse in the olde palaice where she laye somewhatt yll at ease.

Hither there cam to salute him and to present him gyftes, the Duke of Ferrare in parson, who laye and kept a sumptuous house in the house called il Palazzo dell' Abate. Fiderigo Badoero cam in ambassag to him from the Venetiens. And thither did the Duke of Florence send to him also. The prince made small countenance to anie of them, wherupon he obtayned throwghe all Italye a name of insolencye.

At his departure owt of Mantoa going onward in his journey he wolde have passed through the citie of Verona; but the Venetians wold in no wise suffre him, saving yf he him selfe and a fewe more with him wolde passe they were content. For the wholl bande to passe over the river of the Adice, they had then made a bridg of purpose, besides Verona, where he refusing their offre passed over among the rest of his companye.

The towne of Mantoa is almost an yland compassed abowt with a lague whiche the river Meltio makethe: on the other side it is a verie marishe. So that the scite of it is verie strong. From Mantoa we went by water downe the river Meltio [Mincio], and afterwarde we entred into the Poo as far as Ferrara: and from thense we went to Padoa by land.

Within ij or iij miles of Mantoa there is a village called Pietola, where Virgile was born: and upon the hill there, there is a little brick house which th'inhabitants of the countrey call casetta de Vergilio, holding opinion that was his house, and that there he kept his beastes as a sheppherd. Five miles owt of Mantua there is a verie beawtifull house of pleasure of the Duk's called Marmerol, full of pleasant walkes and faire gardines: where the Duke hath certain oreng trees whiche he may remove from place to place. We cam back again into Padoa the xixth of January: and shortlye after I went to Venice, where as after the entrie of the Prince into Trent, Duke Maurice th'elector with the Cardinall of Auspurghe cam from his cowrt to see the citie of Venice, and were then newlie arrived there. They were honorablye receaved and greatly banqueted on the Syniore's charge. When supper was doone they cam bothe with other companye in a maskerye and daunsed with the gentlewomen a good space. There was at that supper Don Juan di Mendoza, the Emperor's ambassador there resident, who satt uppermost and took the upper hand of them all.

At Shroftide after there cam to Venice to see the citie the lustie yong Duke of Ferrandin, well accompanied with noble menn and gentlemen, where he with his companions in Campo di San Stefano shewed great sport and muche pastime to the gentlmen & gentlwomen of Venice, bothe on horsback in running at the ring with faire Turks and Cowrsars, being in a maskerie after the Turkishe maner, and on foote casting of eggs into the wyndowes among the ladies full of sweete waters and damaske poulders. At night after all this triumphe in a bankett, made purposlie at Mowrano, a litle owt of Venice, by the Seniorye, to honor him withall, he was slaine by a varlett belonging to a gentlman of the citie. The occasion was this: the Duke cuming in a brave maskerye with his companions went (as the maner is) to a gentlewoman whom he most fansied among all the rest (being assembled there a l or lx). This gentlwoman was wyff to on M. Michael Venier. There cam in another companye of gentlmen Venetiens in an other maskerye: and on of them went in like maner to the same gentlwoman that the Duke was entreating to daunse with him, and somewhat shuldrredd the Duke, which was a great injurie. Upon that the Duke thrust him from him. The gentlman owt with his dagger and gave him a strooke abowt the short ribbes with the point, but it did him no hurt, bicause he had on a iacke of maile. The Duke ymmediatlie feeling the point of his dagger, drue his rapire, whereupon the gentlman fledd into a chambre there at hand and shutt the dore to him. And as the Duke was shovinge to gete the dore open, a varlett of the gentlmanne's cam behinde him and with a pistolese¹ gave him his deathe's wounde, and clove his head in such sort as the on side honge over his shuldre by a little skynn. He lyved abowt two dayes after this stroke. There was no justice had against this gentlman, but after he had a while absented himself from the citie the matter was forgotten. The varlett fledd, and was no more hard of. This gentlman was of the house of Giustiniani in Venice.

Abowt this time there fell an other straunge chaunce in Venice. In the Countrey of Friuli are two great families, whiche of long time have bine deadlie ennemies th'on to th'other, Della Turre and Soveragnani. Of th'origion of this hatred betwixt them I could never gather other reason than this: at such times as the Venetiens sawght first to be lordes over that countrey of Friuli, they had the house Della Torre whiche was somewhat the mightier on their side, but the Soveragnani could never be browght to yelde to yt. Upon this they fell at debate and contention, th'on for their libertie, and th'other to bring in a straunge nation. So that muche slawghter ensued of yt sundrie times. At last the Venetiens obtained their purpose, and could never sett these two howses at one. About this Shroftide there were certaine justes proclaymed in Padoa to all commers at the tilt. The best price was a great cheine of golde, the second a rapire dagger and gyrdle faire wrowght and gylt. The third was a coronett of gold sett with pearle and stone, which was the ladies' and gentl-womennes' cost: and whosoever cam into the feelde with his traine best besene and galantest to the eye, with slightest cost, his shuld this coronett bee. To these justes dailie repayed sundrie gentlemen owt of all the countreys abowt, som to be doers, and a number to be lookers on. Emong others these two howses chaunced to runn bothe with their fawtors on their parties well apointed. There were great gentlemen that were put in suritie for them and bownd them selves to the Syniorye that repaying to thes justes there shuld no hurt be done. Notwithstanding as they mett at a chaunce together by the santo there was a great fraye and on of the howse of Della Torre slaine and certain on bothe parties sore hurt. Thus they left for that time hooping for a reveng at more leyser. This matter was taken upp by the Siniorye of Venice, and their sureties that were thus bound for them were handled to the most extremitie. They thowght it behouffull to banishe the Count Jhon Delli Soverignani, who was judged to bee the beginner of this fraye. When sentence or banishment was geven he prepared him self therto and taking wyff children bagg and baggage with him cam to Venice, intending to saile from thense to Candia and there to remaine in exile. As he thus taried in Venice a season attending for passag, being lodged upon the Canal grand over against San Geremia, he tooke bote manie times to goo upp and downe abowt sundrie his affaires. At his return upon a time he was watched, and by the walles side over against the house of Quirini there lingred a bote, suche a on as communlie carie frutes uppe and downe Venice, upon their frutes they use to laye mattes to kepe them freshe and to defend them from the heate of the sunn. There were no mo in sight but two within the bote. Under the mattes there laye vij or viij parsons withe eche of them a hackbutt in his hand. When the gondalo that Count Jhon Soveragnani was in cam directlie against them they shott all together leveling all at on marke. Count Jhon was shott throwghe in manie places of his bodye. This enterprise thus acheved, as manie as were in the bote fell to rowing and made so sweetlie awaye that none were able to folowe them nor decern who they were nor yet whither they went. The deade bodye was brought into the house of Quirini, where it laye to bee seene of all menn. When the Siniorye understoode of this murther they cawsed ymmediatly Francesco Della Turre to bee taken, who was than in Venice. But for all they putt him to the torment of the cord, they coulde never make him confesse that he was condescending or of counsell to this kind of murther. And the lawe is, except a man confesse his tresspace when he is putt to this torment, he shall never suffre deathe for yt. This chaunce happened in Lent. Abowt the ascention daye the Duke and Dutchesse of Urbin cam to Venice, where the Dutchesse, Cardinall Farnese syster, for that she was never there before, was mett a mile or two without the citie upon the seea, and receaved into the Venetiens' vessell of Triumphe called Bucentoro, wherin were dyverse of the Siniorye and nighe two hundrithe gentlwomen to accompanie herr to the Duke herr husbande's palaice within the citie. There a man might have seen the seea almost covered with sundrie kinde of botes, sum made like shippes other like galies some other like pinaces richlie dect within and without, besides manie other pretie vessells full of minstrelsye daunsing and maskaries. After herr arrival she was greatlye feasted, and before herr departure thense she sawe the Arsena of Venice where all their galies, shippes, artillarye, munition and such other matters were. After she had bine leade abowt yt, which lackethe litle of a mile in compasse, she was broughte into a larg room where she had a costlie bankett prepared for herr and all her companie richlie served of all kinde of delicaties. Yt was in the after noone abowt fowre of the clocke. Herr cuming to Venice was to see the Sensa, which is a great feast there. And upon the place of Saint Mark is a great faire for certain dayes. The daye of the Ascension the Duke of Venice with all the Siniorye goethe into this vessell the Bucentoro, and after they are a litle from the land they have a wonderous great ceremonie abowt the marying of the see. For the Duke takethe a ring of his finger and castethe yt into the seea, thinking by this meane to knitt yt so sure that yt shall never depart and leave the citie upon the drie land; as it is like to do in processe of time yf it contineue to diminishe still as yt hathe begone sith the memorye of man. Yet have they dailie provisions and officers appointed to the same to see the sandes and what soever is in the bottome in the shalowe places voided.

MY JORNEY INTO TUSCANE.

I departed owt of Padoa towardses Venice the vijth of June, where Mr. Jhon Hastings and I were onse purposed to goo with the great gallies into Sorria. From whense Mr. Edward Murphin was abowt that time returned. After I had taried a yere sometime in Padoa and sometime in Venice, and obtayned some understanding in the tung, I thowght yt behouffull to travaile into the middes of Italye, as well as to have a better knowleg in the tung, as to see the countrey of Tuscane, so much renowmed in all places. I departed from Venice the xxiiijth daye of August and went to Ferrara bye water, which is abowt fowre score and tenn miles. This citie upon the east side and the sowthe side hathe the great river called Po running by yt. The countrey is verie plaine and plentifull round abowt yt. Duke of yt is Hercules da Este the second, who married Rener [Rénée], King Lewes of Fraunce the xij his daughter, by whom he hathe had iiij children, Alfonse, Lewis, the dutchesse of Guise in Fraunce, and Lucretia.

Vicelegate there for him was Annibale Borio a Neopolitane. It is a verie famous Universitie throwghe owt Italye bothe for the lawe and other sciences, frequented with scholars from all places.

This faire citie of Florence is built upon the river Arno, which runneth through it; and the river is passed over by iiij bridges in iiij sundrie places. It is compassed on the east and the northe side with pleasant hilles full of frutefull trees. On the west side yt hathe a verie bewtifull plaine so full of faire houses that yt appeareth a farr of a great towne as farr as Prato. Yt is named Valdarno. When yt was a commune welthe the armes of the citie was a red lillie in a white feeelde, but now yt is under Duke Cosmus de Medicis, second Duke of yt, which mainteyneth all virtue in yt. Within Florence is the faire church called Santa Maria del fiore, all of marble; in the toppe of yt is the marvelous peece of worke called the Cupula, worthie to bee seen of all travellars. Without this church there is a rounde temple dedicated to Saint Jhon Baptist, which in times past was the temple of Mars, with gats of brasse, within the which is a faire vessell made of riche stones where children are christened. About this vale it was that Hannibal lost one of his eyes riding throwghe the marishes, as Lyvie makethe mention.

In this countreye here growethe a wyne called Torbiano di Toscano, which is reckoned among the plesant and delicate wines of Italye. In this citie I remayned vj or vij dayes with Mr Christopher Alen.

I arrived at Siena the iiijth of September. This citie standethe upon hilles as the citie of Roome did in the olde time. It is counted vj miles compasse abowt the walles. The countrey abowt verie frute-full. The people are much given to entertaine strangers gentlie. Most of the women are well learned and write excellentlie well bothe in prose and verse, among whom Laudomia Fortiguerra and Virginia Salvi did excell for good wittes. The principall matters within the citie to bee seene are these. First the highe church, as well without as within, which may be reckoned among the sumptuous woorkes of Europe. The great Hospitall for the poore, the Markett Place, made after the maner of a theater. The abundance of water that is in fonte Branda. The schooles called la Sapientia, whereat is also a college for scholars, which for vj or vij yeres abode there, disburse at their first entring lx or lxxx crownes, to the great refresshing of poore scholars. The cheefe governance of this citie was in the handes of Don Diego di Mendoza, ambassador for th'Emperor to the pope, which manie times cam from Roome to lye there as occasion served him, where at his cumming he was alwaies more honorablie receaved outwardlie then inwardlie beloved. Under him were continuallie abiding there Zuan Gallego and Don Frances Dalava, Master of the campe, a garrison of v or vj hundrethe Spaniardes. Within a fortnight or iij weeks after myne arrivall in the citie Don Diego was receaved after the accustomed maner into the towne: and understanding certain English gentlemen to be newlie com thither, there cam a man of his to my lodging desiring me in his mastre's behalf to take a diner with his master that daye, and to bring with me besides such Englishe menn as he hardsaye and I knew were in the towne; which were Sir Robart Stafford, Mr. Henry Parkar, Mr. Edward Stradling,¹ Mr. Frances Peto,² where we were greatlie feasted and gentlie enterteyned. Besides these I founde in the towne Mr. Peter Whithorn, Mr. William Barkar, Mr. Edward Clere, Mr. Thomas Grynwaye, and Mr. Jhon Ellis, who wolde not go thither with us. Here I cam acquainted with the Marques of Capistrano, the Duke of Amalfi, his sonn, who often times shewed me great courtesie.

Th'occasion that this citie of Siena is som time under the Frenche King and manie times under th'Emperor appeareth

cheeflie to proceade of their private discention and intestine discord in that they cann not be brought to anie agreement betwext them selves. For they are divided into fowre severall partes, that is to saye, Gentilhuomini, Reformatori, Nuovi and Popolo. The commune people are called Plebei, which are on no certain part. There is no gentleman within the citie of Siena but is well knowen to bee of on of these partes. Gentilhuomini and Popolo were at the first beginning of the citie; the on of the commonaltie and subiects; and the other of gentlmen and rulars. And at length they that were named Popolo becam gentlmen also: for being the greater number they could not abide to bee alwais under the government of the Gentilhuomini. After long debate on both sides they cam to this finall accorde: that vj parsonnes on the on parte and as manie on the other shulde equallie and indifferentlie have the preheminence, dignitie, superioritie, and rule over the commune weale, which were called by a new name, Reformatori. Their issue and posteritie multiplied so in processe of time that there arose of them an other part in the citie which usurped this dignitie of theirs, and as manie as were descended of them tooke more upon them and bore a greater stroke then eyther the Gentilhuomini or Popolo, drawing by amitie, consanguinitie, and force most part of the citie on their side. At lengthe their insolencie was suche and so increased dailie that the other two partes laide their heades together, eyther to displace them, or to find owt at the least some meane that the hole government might not alwais rest in this posteritie. The matter was long a debating before the Reformatori (which were so named as manie as were descended of the xij men that were chosen owt of the first two partes) wold cum to aine accorde: but finallie they agreeede to chuse owt of everie on of thes three parts three parsones, which were called Nuovi for that they were nine, and thus had this fowrthe part his beginning even like the third. They and their posteritie continued long in this state untill such time as in those dayes the other three partes cloyed with this kind of government, and desirous of new alterations as communlie menn bee, by force elected owt from among them a Siniory or counsell of sundrie heades to rule the commune welthe, as there is yet to this day, displacing the Nuovi of this dignitie against their willes, which were sore agreved at the matter, and repined greatlie against this kind of government, seeking all means to recover their former state again. For the which they have bine ever sith yll beloved of the rest, and especiallie of the Gentilhuomini and Popolo, whiche not manie years agoo banished them owt of the citie by the reason of the great sedition and slawghter that was dailie caused by them on bothe sides. At length th'Emperor tooke uppe the matter and restored the Nuovi to the citie again and to their possessions, which were putt to the commune use: planting there by their desire a garison of Spaniards to see them lyve in peace. Notwithstanding there is muche murther among them and privie hatred. This Nuovi is as great a part or greater then anie of the rest and most of the handsomnest gentlemen in the citie are of yt. They are best esteamed of anie of the rest with the communes of the city. They esteame and make most of straungers of anie of the rest. They syldom times marye with the other partes except it bee with the Reformatori, which best agree together. None of all these iiij partes are suffred to have anie weapons in his house and speciallie to wear them abrode within the citie: nor yet other straungers, without they be licensed by the Sinorie, or by the Spaniardes that have charge there.

This yere was the rebellion in England in Norfolk and Devonshire, and the Duke of Sommersett deposed from his protectorshippe by the onlie malice of the Erle of Warwicke, afterwards created Duke of Northumberland. And before that the Duke of Sommersett had cawsed Sir Thomas Seymer, lord admerall, his owne brother, to be beheaded at the Towre hill. As I remayned thus in Siena newes cam of the deathe of pope Paul,¹ the third of that name, which diede the ixth of November. And seeing manie cardinalles resort thither dailie towards Roome owt of sundrie parties to the election of an other, I thought it convenient to make a jorneye thither at this time being so nighe, as well to the citie as to beholde the maner of the obsequies and the fasshion how they elect an other. The xvi of the same monthe I departed owt of Siena in Cardinall Salviati his companye whiche cam throughe the towne to go to Roome, caried in a littar. There went also Mr. Henry Parkar, Mr. Barkar, and Mr. Whitehorn. Ymmediatlie after the pope's deathe Ascanio Colonna went abowt to recover his state again, which the pope had taken from him, and abowt two hundrethe Spaniardes were con-

 ‡ From thense to Roome viij^{ml}

When we arrived in Roome we saw dailie in St. Peter's church verie solemn masses of requiem for the pope's deathe, after the maner of Roome, song by the cardinales, everie on sitting according to his degree in a chappell, where the image of pope Xistus liethe all in brasse curiouslie wrought, with the Muses all about him. About the later end of November, at the certain time limited for all cardinals of the seea of Roome to repaire thither for the election of a new pope, all such cardinales as were then in Roome, after on solemn masse of the holie ghost song among them, entred into the conclave according to the accustomed maner; that is to saye, into suche rowmes as are belonging unto the pope in his palaice, as the utter chambares, the hall above, the chappell and suche other wide places, where everie cardinall had beforehand a litle cabbin prepared for him, hanged and separated from the rest with his owne hangings, withowt anie light at all, except so muche as he lettethe in by the pinninge uppe of the hanging in the place where he entrethe into this cabbin, within the whiche he had so muche place that sufficed for a litle standing cowrt bedd for himself, a pallet for two of his servants, whom he lysted to have within with him, on litle square table and a coffer for his stuff. When they were all entred together into this conclave everie dore and wyndowe where anie yssue was in anie place round about them was after the maner mured uppe, saving a litle part of the verie toppe of the wyndowes on highe, in manie places owt of manne's reache, whiche to lett in light was left open, and a litle dresser in that great dore that menn used most communlie to cum in and owt at. Throwghe this dresser everie cardinalle's owne provision, browght thither from his owne palaice by his servaunts, was putt in and delivered unto the ij servaunts he had within attending upon him, the assaye or tast thereof first taken, whatsoever was browght thither. In this sort remayned they a good space attending for viij or ix cardinalles owt of Fraunce, for before their arrivall the Cardinall of Ferrara with the rest of the French partie would goo abowt nothing. When all were cum and conveyed in emong the rest they remaine thus shutt uppe untill suche time as by agreement of the most part they have elected a new pope, except they find themselves yll at ease, as iij or iiij of them were at this time, whiche were permitted to go lye at their owne palaices, where on or two of them diede. During this time of vacation of the seea of Roome the consistorie (by the meane of Cardinall Farnese, then cheefe doer, and the Cardinall of Saint Angelo his brethren) confirmed unto Duke Octavio the Dukedom of Parma and unto Horatio his yonger brother the Dukedom of Camerino, and appointed him also generall for the churche over fyve or sixe thowsand souldiers which during this time were there taken uppe to serve the churche. To the custodie of the castle of Saint Angelo was appointed a bisshoppe, and afterwards was rewarded with a red hatt. The pope that diede laye buried under a heape of earthe by the walles side within Saint Peter's churche, paled in, untill suche time as a more honorable sepulture were made readie for him, which his fowre nephewes Cardinall Farnese, Cardinall of Saint Angelo, Duke Octavio and Duke Horatio had cawsed to be taken in hand for him by Michael Angelo. During the time of mine abode in Roome Don Diego and the Marquis Capistrano shewed me great entertainment and muche gentlnes. There were besides in Roome that cam after us Sir Robert Stafford, Mr. Frances Peto, Mr. Edward Murphin, Filpott, Christophersonn, Harding Boxwell. The citie of Roome is in circuite abowt the walles xv miles. The walles have at this daye 365 towres where in the old time they were wont to have 734 when it most florished. There are twenty gates now, whereas were in times past xxxiiij. The better half of the citie within the walles is desert and not inhabited, and especiallie the seven hilles, Campidoglio, Palatino, Celio, Aventino, Squille, Viminale, Quirinale, otherwise called Monte Cavallo, by the reason of two horses of marble that were made by Phidias and Praxiteles, sett uppe there. Upon these vij hilles was wont in the olde time to consist all the majestie of the citie, as it may well appere by the ruines upon them. The part of Roome that is now most inhabited was wont to be called Campus Martius, bicause it was a faire plaine feelde and there the yowthe of the citie did accustome to excercise feates of armes. Also Vaticanum on this side the river, where the pope's palaice is and the castle of Saint Angelo which is called Borgo Nuovo and Borgo Vecchio. The river of the Tever [Tiber] is passed from the on side of the citie to the other by five severall bridges. There be seven principall famous churches abowt Roome, as Saint Peter, Saint Jhon Laterane, Santa Maria Magiore, Santa Croce in Hierusalem, these within the walles: and Saint Paul, Saint Laurence, and St. Sebastian without the walles.

There be sundrie faire antiquities to be seene within Roome, as in the Campidoglio in the palaice of the Conservatori, and in Belvedere manie statues, stones and inscriptions. There is also Santa Maria rotonda, called in the old time Pantheon, which is the fayrest and perfectest antiquitie abowt Roome. The Triumphall Arkes of Constantin, Vespasian and Septimius. The Coliseo, or Amphitheater. The beawtifull pillar by St. Petre's church called la guccia di san Pietro. And the ruines abowt the seven hilles the whiche I passe over all: and the particularities therof I leave to the searchers owt of them by the instructions of Lucias Faunus, Martian, and Biondo, which all have written verie diligentlie of the antiquities of the citie of Roome. And by probable reason have ghessed upon manie things for the whiche no certaintie is to bee alleged. Bicause in times past the citie hathe oftentimes bine enlarged and taken in again as occation served. For Vopiscus writethe that in the time of themperor Aurelianus the citie was in circuite fyftie mile. And Pliny saithe that it was in his time twentie miles compasse. In our dayes now it is xv miles abowt the walles, and not half inhabited within.

After Mr. Barker, Mr. Parker, Whitehorn and I had throwghlie searched owt suche antiquities as were here to bee seene from place to place, having bestowed all this time of owr beeing here abowt the same, we thowght it but losse of time to make anie longer abode here. And we taried the longer to see yf the cardinales wold elect a new pope. It was thought Cardinall Poole¹ shulde have bine pope. Yf he had receaved the cardinales' offer overnight as he entended in the morning folowing, he had surelie bine so. And in the morning when all the souldiers of Roome, and a great multitude of people besides, were assembled in the Markett place of Saint Peter's to have seene Cardinall Poole proclaimed pope, he had lost by the Cardinall of Ferrara his meanes the voice of manie cardinalls of the French partie, perswading them that Cardinall Poole was both Imperiall and also a verie Lutheran. So that morning passed withowt anie thing done, contrarie to the expectation of all menn. After the election of Cardinall Poole was thus passed the commune opinion was, that by the reason of the factions Emperiall and Frenche that were among them, they would not so soone agree afterward, for there was no on in the hole Consistorie that was generallie so well beloved as he was of them all, and never declared himself neyther Emperiall nor Frenche. But Don Diego labowred what he colde to make him pope, and so did all the Emperiall Cardinales that were within the conclave, but the Frenche partie was against him. Upon this we determined in the meane time to make a journeye to Naples. And as we cam to Roome together, so not to depart companie untill we cam thither. We sett owt of Roome in a vessell towards Naples the x of Januarye; the same night we laye upon the Tever. The next morning we cam to Ostia, a verie auntient citie, which folowing the cowrse of the river is xxij miles from Roome. And after we had proved where the best passage was, we sailed into the seea, which is a v or vi miles from Ostia. The Tever cummith unto the see with a quiet swyft streame and the force of it is suche that yt driveth the salt water back almost two miles. At the meeting of it with the see where it must needes entre into the salt water, yt taketh on in suche wise that there arrise great waves from the on banke to the other with such quantitie of thicke sandes that in passing over them manie vessells are not communie in great jeopardie onlie, but also sumtime certain are swallowed uppe by the waves, as we were enformed in passing over. After we were thus cum into the see, we sayled all that night after and passed Monte Circello, which is four score and tenn miles from the place where the Tever entrethe into the seea.

This hill is almost an yland within the seea and may bee seen farr of. In a litle port under the hill lye manie times Moores and Turks with their foistes¹ and other vesselles to take the passinger vesselles that goo betwixt Roome and Naples. And we were afterward enformed that this time there laye ix, so that yf we had cum bye yt by daye as we did by night, we had bine all taken slaves. From hense we sayled to Gaieta, which is thirtie miles, with fowle wether and the winde almost against us. This is an auntient towne taking his name of Eneas' nurse so named and buried there, as Virgil makethe mention,

Æternam moriens famam Caieta dedisti.²

This towne is verie strong situated upon a large rock whiche is in maner an yland. It is cownted on of the strongest holdes in all christendom. Above yt upon a verie rock is also a strong castle which lookethe on everie side towards the seea, at the entrie wherof on the left hand is a litle chappell wherin is fastened upon the walles sides a coffin covered with blacke vellute, with the armes of Fraunce barred upon yt. And therin was Charles Duke of Burbon buried which died 1527 at the sacke of Roome. There is also a place within the rocke whiche seemethe that the verie stone hathe bine cloven a sunder as a thing that hathe bine onse joyned together, which is a wondrous strang thing to beholde. Passing throwghe this clyft we cum into a litle larg rowme where is founded a chappell. They say here yt clave in sunder at the verie time when our Savior Christ suffred his passion, and yt is comunlie called la Trinita, to the whiche there is dailie great resort from sundrie places abowt, with much devotion, and speciallie on the holie dayes. Abowt this towne is a verie plentifull countrey, and sundrie kindes of fructes, as olyves, aranges, lymones, figgs, and plentie of wynes. Betwext Gaieta and Naples we were sailing two dayes, which is lx miles by seea: we passed by the iland of Pontia [Ponza], whiche they saye was Pontius Pilate's inheritance. And we sailed by Ischia and Procida, and so cam to the citie of Naples, where we arrived the fift day after owr setting furthe of Roome.

NEAPOLIS. TERRA DI LAVORO.

Naples is a verie beawtifull citie situated betwext the seea and verie pleasant hilles, full of howses, well fortified of late dayes with a strong wall that th'Emperor hathe begonne abowt yt, replenished with sumptious palaces, delicious gardines, and sundrie divises of fountaynes round abowt yt.

There be three strong castles belonging to yt, Castel Nuovo within the citie by the seea side where the Vicere lyethe, and where the most part of munitions and artillarie is: Castel San Martino, now within the walles, a verie rock upon the toppe of the hill, wrowght owt of the hard stone by force of hand, a wondrous matter to beholde. And Castello dell'Ovo somewhat withowt the citie upon the seea side. As for that was wont to bee called Castello Capuano it is no more a castle, but the on part of yt servethe for a prison; the other part above is full of faire chambres and plesant rowmes where the counselles, parlements and tearmes are kept on th'Emperors and the citie's behalves. There are within the citie fowre places called 'Seggi,' which are upon the streetes open on all sides saving on the one side where they joine to other howses. The on is called Seggio Capuano, bicause of the streete that goethe by yt unto the gate towarde Capua, the other Seggio de Nido. The third Seggio della Montagna. And the fowrthe Seggio di San Georgio. In these fowre places do princes, dukes, marquesses, erles, barons, knightes, and squiers gather together to sitt upon and to debate emong them the matters of the citie. There be few princes, dukes, erles or barones within the realm which have not within the citie a palaice belonging unto them. Emong the whiche are most beawtifull the Duke of Gravines palaice, which yf yt were ended may compare with anie in Italie, and the Prince of Salerno's, whiche is also verie faire.

The streetes in Naples are for the most part narrower then in anie other citie, notwithstanding they are of a good lengthe and verie straight. Wythin the citie is an Universitie, unto the whiche scholars repaire from manie places, and the same that was wont to be at Salerno is now browght to Naples and made all on. On the seea side sowthward by Castel Nuovo is the faire pire made in times past by Charles the second, King of Naples, for the safeguard of shippers. This citie is abundant with all things that are behouffull for the lyff of man, and in yt is plentie of delicate wines, as vino Greco, a verie strong wine, which as I beleve is so called bicause of Torre del Greco, where it is shipped to be transported unto Roome and other places, and not because yt cam owt of Greece, as som hold opinion; also Maniaguerra, a sweete wine of a verie highe color, Vernaccia, a strong headie wine, Romanesco, which is dronke for a delicate wine in wynter, Latino, which is a delicate small wine for sommer, and dyverse other. The Vicere and cheefe governor here was Don Pietro di Tolledo for th'Emperor, verie well beloved both in the citie and throwghout the realm. Don Garzia his sonn was captain over sixe gallies belonging to the towne. He hath purchased much landes in this realm and beginnethe to build a faire palice with a pleasant gardin hard by the towne. The citie of Naples is very auntient and was alwais (as T. Livius saith) faithfull and very obedient to the senat of Roome.

Here is within the citie a very bewtifull and large hospitall, wheras are continuallie both gentlmen and poore men and in like maner women which are placed according to their disease and served according to their degree, with a good order and cumlie to behold; great revenwes are belonging unto yt, and a great multitude of people alwais within yt.

After we had taried a season within the citie and searched owt whatsoever there was worthie to bee seen, we thowght it behouffull to mak now and then a jorney abowt the countrey called in times past Campania, and now Terra di lavoro, so muche spoken of and renowed in all writers wherof Naples is the cheef head citie.

This Terra di lavoro (whiche men hold opinion to be so named by the reason of the good and slight tillage) is in lengthe from the river Garigliano on the west side, unto the river Silaro on the east. And in breadethe from the hilles of Abruzzo on the northe side, unto the sea on the sowthe.

It is named of Pliny Campania foelix, bicause of the frutefull feeldes within yt whiche are large and pleasant, and the hilles are abundant with all kinde of delicate frutes, and especiallie that whiche in times past was called Pausilipium, where the precious wines growe. It hath also delectable wooddes within yt, sweete fountaynes and verie helthsom springs, as well for sundrie infirmities of the bodie as for pleasure and disport. And the fertilitie of the countrey is suche that yt dothe not onlie bring further necessarie things for the sustinance of the lyff of man with suche abundance, but also for deliciousnes and for sensuall pleasure in great quantitie.

Dionisius Alicarnasseus agreeing with T. Livius saith plainlie that this is the beawtifullest and pleasantest countrey of the world, sith the aere is not onlie most temperat and delicate, but also the frutefullnes of it is such, that in his time at three severall times of the yere there were frutes gathered; the one was in the springtime, the other in the sommer, and the third in harvest, which he affirmethe to have seene there. Lucius Florus saith that in this fertile countrey the trees spring twise a yere, and that here is to be found all delicaties for the pleasure of man, for that Ceres and Bacchus strive whiche in most perfection shall best abound. Here upon the seea side are noble portes; as Gaeta, Miseno and the temperate fountaynes of Baia, Lucrino and Averno, the pleasure of the seea; the mountaynes and hilles decked with pleasant vines, and among the rest Gaurus, Falerum, Masicus and Vesuus [Vesuvius] more excellenter than the rest, which striveth with Ætna to cast owt fire. There are also on the seea side Formia, Cuma, Puteolis, Neapolis, Erculanteum, and Pompei. Besides this we may discern Capua (the hade of this countrey) which is reputed the third of the most mightie cities, after Roome and Carthage. This much saith L. Florius [Florus].

Departing therfor owt of the noble cite of Naples there appeareth before our eyes this pleasant and sweete countrey, which bringeth further suche necessarie matters for the use of man and beast. And there is gathered great abundance of wheate, barlie and other graine, with sundrie sortes of good wines, so abundantlie that a man wold think it a straunge thing and almost incredible how it were possible to gather owt of on self feelde so great abundance of corn and wine. For so many vines are upon a verie highe tree and the branches of them so dispersed abowt the boowes of the tree, that som times of on of them they make two hoggesheades of wine, as I was enformed by th'inhabitants of the countrey, and indeed a man may judge no lesse (albeit it appeare a straunge matter at the first) yf he behold it well. And of this doth Plinie make mention in the 14 book 2 chapter: declaring it as a wonderous matter.

On the west side of Naples there is a highe way that two cartes may easilee goo together, cutt owt of the rock by force of hand, under the hill Posilipo. Yt is well 700 paces in lengthe and more than 12 in breadethe. At the entring into yt on the lefthand, upon the side of the hill within the precinct of the Monasterie called Santa Maria Piedo Grotto, there is a litle olde house where they say Vergil was buried according to these verses.

Parthenope; cecini pascua, rura, duces.

But of his sepulcher there is no certaintie. Servius saithe that he was buried within two miles of Naples, upon the waye as we goo to Puzzol, over against the mouthe of this grotta, wherupon it is to be thowght it was not far from hense. Within this grotta there is two holes cutt owt on the rock a hie, to lett in light whiche notwithstanding is verie dark, and wondrous full of dust: who first made this Grotta is uncertain, for there are dyverse opinions.

From hense in the hie way to Puzzolo [Pozzuoli] there is a lague called Lago di Agnano, upon the which are certain baynes verie helthfull called Sudatorii: they cause good digestion and resolve raw humors, they lighten the bodie and heale the inward partes, they drie upp fistles and woundes in the bodie, and are verie good against the gowte. By these baynes on the lague's side there is a sandie hill, at the bottom of yt, a certain pitt not farr into the hill nor yet verie deepe nor wide, in the whiche pitt there is a mark sett and what thing soever passethe that, yf it have lyff in yt, yt hath not onlie no power at all to sturr from thense, butt yt fomethe at the mowthe and fallethe to the ground ymmediatlie. After it is thus fallen, take yt owt again and wash it in the lague, by and by it reliveth, yf it abide not long in the lague, for then it helpeth not at all. And this have I seene proved both with dogges, cattis, froggs and other lyving beastes. Byeyond this we cum by certain ruines where as Lucullus was wont to have his abiding place, and there cutt throwghe the rock to lett the sea into the lague of Agnano, for the whiche deede Cicero callethe him Xerxes togatus. By this had Cicero a village called at this day villa di Cicerone. After this we cum to the marvelous hilles of sulphure, upon the whiche are sundrie litle holes that with great force cast owt verie hott smoke and sum flames of brimstone. On the side towards Puzzolo there is an open entrie into a large place which is plaine and compassed abowt with hilles. At the on side of this plaine there is a poole of boyling sulphure water, owt of the which there arriseth a verie dark and black smoke. Yt boilethe night and day, winter and sommer. The forme of yt appeareth to be round, but it entreth farther under the hill then cann be discerned. Whatsoever is cast in here, is pluckt owt again immediatlie after well sodd, and of necessitie there remayneth a part of the same behinde still, for the hole cumeth not furthe again. And yt hathe bine proved that when fowre egges hath bine putt in, there have cum owt but three sodd. Of these hilles of brimstoun speaketh Plini in lib. 35 cap. 14 in this wise :

‘In Italia invenitur sulfur in Neapolitano Campanoque agro collibus qui vocantur Leucogabi, quod e cuniculis effossum, perficitur igni.’

These hilles burn on everie side and caste furthe into the aere great smoke with a verie rank savor of brimstonn, the savor wherof may be felt (when the winde liethe on that side) as far as Naples. Which savor they reckon verie helthsom for suche as have rewmes and have taken cold in their heade. And the boyling sulphure water they saye, is good to mollifie the raynes and jointes, to clarife the eyes, to heale the greefe of the stomake, to helpe barren women to conceive, to drive away the agues and to heale scabbes. Of these hilles of brimstonn the bisshope of Puzzolo hathe great revenues yerelie.

A litle from these hilles we cum to the towne of Puzzulo, situated on the seea side upon a litle hill and almost compassed abowt with the seea. Betwixt this and Baia, whiche is three miles and a sixe hundrethe pases, we may discern xij foundations in the seea for the arches of a bridge, whiche th’Emperor Galligula had made to passe the next way unto Baia : there appeare yet sum of the arches, but they are wonderouslie decayed. About this towne are sundrie howses of pleaser, with their delicious gardines and helthsom prospectes : also diverse antiquities and manie great ruines, as an amphitheater, and a place under ground called labirinto, for the multitude of the chambers in yt. By Puzzulo in the way to Baia there is a spring of freshe water which ariseth with such force owt of the ground and so abundantlie, that for all it is within the seea, yet hathe it no tast of the salt water.

Keeping along by the seea side we com to a place called Tripergola, where there is a hill covered with great sharpe stones which lacketh litle of two miles in height and iiij in compasse. . This hill arrose sodainlie owt of the plaine sandie ground upon St. Michale's daye in the yere of owr lord 1538 with suche a terrible noise and suche violence that it cast stones as far as Naples, not without the great terror of manie a man, yea and abundance of ashes caried by the violence of the winde fell at St. Severino, which is 24 miles from Naples: this hill a good space after burnt in the toppe and cast furthe stones, but yt hath ceased burning of late dayes. After this we cum to Baia, whiche beeing in lengthe is likened unto an arm or a finger: in this place are the notablest ruines to be descerned that are in all the rest of Italye. For of a number of faire and plesant cities as were Baiæ, Cuma, Linternum and such other, there is now nothing but desolation and a sorte of olde ruines. Of this place speaketh Horatius:

Nullus in orbe locus Baiis præluet amœnis.¹

The notablest things here to be seene are these, Piscina Mirabile, which is thought was Lucullus' sommerhowse, Cento Camerele which were under the ground to kepe water in, like chambres passing by narowe dores owt of on into an other. And baynes communlie called Bagni de Cicerone, where at a certain time in the daye and likewise in the night there yssueth owt of the rocke warm water (with a great smoke) according to the increasing or diminishing of the moone. Upon the toppe of these baynes in the rocke, ascending upp by certain stayeres of stone, we find a long hole made artificially within the rocke, sixe foote highe and five brode, which is sommwhat croked; within the whiche yf a man stand on foote he shall feele a hott aere abowt his face and ymmediatlie shall begin to sweat, thinking at the first entree his breath shall be taken from him. But yf he then fall upon his knees and encline to the pavement where he stooode, he shall contrarily feel a verie cold aer. This sweating place in these baynes is said to be verie sovereign for diverse infirmities; yt purgethe the humors, yt comfortithe the heade and the stomak, yt healethe rewmes and catarres, yt breaketh fleame, and yt helpethe muche suche as are diseased of the gowte or the dropsie. There are about this place a two or three and twentie baynes, besides divers other springs of warm water whiche are good for

manie matters. Of the baynes sum are of great vertue for the eyes, som for the hands, som for the feete, som for the sides, som other for the brayne, and manie for the gowte and dropsie. Here is the lague of Averno, and also the lague of Lucrino, which have bine so famous in the olde time. Averno is reported to be 360 fadom deepe, compassed round abowt with hige hilles saving at the entrie into yt, fayned by the poetes to be the way unto hell. Passing this arm or finger of earthe, which is five miles long compassed abowt with the seea on three sides and the fowrthe is five miles brode (whiche is also muche narrower towards the ende of yt, evermore straiter and straiter and at last is less than a mile), we cum unto the ruines of Cuma, where emong other monstrous matters there is a cave or hole under the earthe called Grotta di Sybilla, which is a wondrous thing to beholde, cutt owt of the verie rocke tenn foote brode and as manie high and five hundrethe long, wrowght within wondrous artificallie round abowt which appeareth to be mosaicall worke. There be diverse opinions of yt. . Som say yt was the dwelling place of Sybilla Cumana. And other imagin yt to be the waye under ground from Cuma to Baia, whiche is not likelie there shuld. suche great cost and curious worke be bestowed upon a way to go uppe and downe. The entrie into it hath of late dayes bine stopped upp by the reason that two or three have perished there within. Within the land abowt xij miles from the seea standeth Capua upon the river of Vulturno, which is not the olde Capua so muche spoken of by all writers, but yt is built of the ruines of yt. The olde Capua is abowt two miles from yt, and standethe not upon the river. It is now called Santa Maria Maggiore. There are to be seen great ruines of mightie walles, towres, amphitheaters, gates, pillars, palaces, and vawtes under the grounde whiche is a manifest proff of the magnificence and noblenes yt was of in times past. Round abowt yt is such a pleasant and bewtifull champaign countrey that yt ys not written for nowght how Hannibal prospered alwaies and obtayned victorie against the Romanes untill he had overcum Capua and wintred there. For in this space his souldiars gave themselves to such deliciousnes as well in excesse of delicate fare as other sensuall pleasures, that they were no more soldiars for the feelde but rather knights for a ladie's chamber; after the whiche time he had never good successe in none of his affaires. This Capua is abowt xvij miles from Naples. In the midway there is a town called Aversa, which is said was built by the ruines of the citie Attella by Robert Guiscard when he beseaged Naples and Capua, and named it so bicause yt shuld be contrarie to them bothe.

On the north side of Naples passing by the pleasant palaice of Poggio Reale, where so manie gardines of pleasant and sundrie frutes are, with sundrie conveyances of water, we cum to a towne called Aecerra, eight miles owt of Naples, wherof Livie makethe mention in manie places, also Virgil in these verses.

Talem dives arat Capua, et vicina Vesevo
Ora iugó, et vacuis Clanius non æquus Acerris.

Eight miles beyond this is a towne called Arienzo or Arzento, standing on the side of the hill Tisata, which is above Capua and stretchethe thither, where we passe throwgh them into a valley called Valle de Gardano; compassed abowt with hilles after the form and maner of an amphitheatrum, which was wont to be named Vallis Caudina. Livius described it in this sort in the beginning of his ix^h book: 'After the straitte passe betwext two hilles there is a faire plaine feelde whiche a man may beholde compassed about with two verie highe hilles which are verie rockes in deede and great wooddes upon them.' The waye is throwghe the middle of this feelde; and so cummeth to the passag where these two hilles joine on the other side, whiche is a muche narrower waye and a great deal more troblsom then the cumming in was before. At this narrow passage there is latlie built a litle monasterie called Santa Maria del giogo for a memorie of the olde shame that the Romanes receaved there by the Samnites, as Livi makethe mention. Somwhat by yond this monasterie there is a litle walled towne called Arpaia, 4 miles from the above named Arienzo: After that we cum to Monte Sarcio, six miles from thense, whiche is a prettie walled towne, and Livi makethe mention of yt. Then we cum to the river Sabato, that goethe into Vulturno, which we passe over twise upon two faire bridges, and so we arrive at the citie of Benevento, 34 miles owt of Naples. This is a verie auntient citie. It was first built of Diomedes, and onse yt was named Maleventum. Yt is situated at the verie end of a hill and from the castle whiche is on the toppe of the hill yt is alwais descending into the plaine. Yt standeth in the confines of Terra di Lavoro, Abruzzo and Puglia [Apulia]. Yt is belonging to the chamber of Roome. I was informed for a truthe, beeing there together with Mr. Edward Stradling, that there were within the towne and in other places abowt yt, which are belonging to the towne, to the number of 18 thowsand menn that were banished owt of Naples and other partes of the kingdom: and here they may live in safeguard, for that the Emperour hathē nothing to do with yt. The whiche seemed to me a verie strang thing, being as it is within the hart of the kingdom and the king to have nothing a do with yt, to punish trayters and such evell disposed parsons as move sedition and rebellion against him. There be within the citie manie faire antiquities and emong other there is a round churche called San Stefano with the gate of brasse which is not muche inferior to Santa Maria rotunda in Roome. Yt hathē (like unto that in Room) a hole in the toppe which letteth in all the light that cumethe into the churche. There is also a verie bewtifull triumphall arke of the Emperour Nerva, which for the bewtie of the fine marble and for the good workmanshippe may be compared to anie in Roome: Yt is now on of the gates of the citie communlie called Portaurea. On bothe sides wherof is the inscription verie legible:

Imp. Cæsari divi Nervæ filio
 Nervæ Traiano optimo Aug:
 Germanico Dacico Pontif. Max. trib.
 Potest. XVIII. Imp. VII. Cos. VI P.P.
 Fortissimo Principi Senatus P.Q.R.

The countrey abowt under the citie named Valle de Benevento a verie pleasant and delectable plaine, verie fertile and wondrously inhabited, and full of clere and bewtifull springs of freshe water.

Cumming back again from thense there is on the left hand the towne of Nola, a famous citie in times past, within 14 miles of Naples, which hath a goodlie plaine countrey round about yt, closed on the on side with the hill Tisata that cumethe from Capua, and on the other with the hill Vesevus, communlie called Monte di Somma. Betwext Nola and Naples there is standing on the side of Monte di Somma a towne called Somma, according to the name of the hill. This hill is on all sides verie frutefull except it bee in the toppe, whiche is full of great sharpe burnt stones. There growethe upon yt verie perfect Greeke wine whiche is communlie called Greco di Somma, and all kindes of delicate frutes. This hill burnt in Plinie's time, who went abowt to serche owt the cause of yt and was smodred in the smoke. On the east side of Naples about 8 miles owt of the citie is a towne called Turre del Greco at the verie rootes of Monte di Somma by the seea side, so called bicause it was in times past built by a Grecian. And here is the wine Greco shipped to be transported into sundrie places of Italie. Betwext Naples and this towne is a faire palaice called Pietra Bianca, where Don Francesco Deste, the Duke of Ferraræ's brother, was then, about the which are sundrie pleasant places. From Turre del Greco unto Turre della Nuntiata [Torre Annunziata] are also 8 miles, which is a pretie litle castle upon the seeaside. From thense to Nucera [Nocera] is other 8 mile. This is a ruinous towne and is rather like a sort of villages together in a vale betwext hilles, then a towne: yet is there bothe a duke of yt and a bisshoppe belonging to yt whose name was Paulus Jovius,¹ which diede aftereward in the yere of our Lord 1553, a famous writer.

Departing from hense we passed throwghe the vale and cam by Cava and Vietro, and so over the rocks to Salerno, which is 9 mile from Nucera. Yt standeth upon a hille's side by the seea verie pleasantlie, gardines & prospectes about it in great quantitie bringinge furthe all kindes of frutes in grete abundance, as oranges, lemons, pougarnettes, citrons, melones, figgs, and such other of all sorts: also diverse kindes of wines verie delicate and precious.

Here was wont to be a famous schoole, but of late dayes it hathe bine removed to Naples, not withowt the great displeaser of the prince, called Fernando di Sanscurreno, whiche delited muche to entertaine all kind of strangers. Above the towne there is a faire castle upon the rock where the prince liethe, which hathe manie goodlie prospectes and helthsom aeres about it, as well towards the seea as the hilles about, upon the whiche groweth almost nothing but rosemarie.

MY JOURNEY INTO SICILIA.

After I had well vewed whatsoever was to bee seene bothe within the citie of Naples and in the countrey about the same, I tooke a journey upon me to goo throwghe the dukedom of Calabria by land into Cicilia, both to have a sight of the countrey and also to absent my self for a while owt of Englishemenne's companie for the tung's sake. And the xith of Februarie I departed owt of Naples on this journey as followethe :

Here beginnethe the pleasant vale called valle di Diano, which taketh his name of a castle therbye called Diano. At the entring into this vale on the right hand there is a cave or denn within the rock whiche is abowt 30 feet in height and 50 wide; this cave is full of running cleere water, and in the middle of the water there is an altar which they call Altare di San Michael, and the water is so abundant abowt it, that it appeareth to be a litle lague. Of this great abundance of water hathe a river his beginning called Negro, which makethe a great rumerous noise untill he cumethe into the middes of the vale. This vale is xx miles in lengthe and iiij in breadthe. The hilles abowt it are so inhabited as it is wonder to behold. Yt bringethe furthe marvelous plentie of corn and all kindes of frutes.

) 3	From thense to Sala	iiij ^{ml}
ϑ	From thens to Padula	iiij ^{ml}

To this town of Padula stretchethe the principalitie of Salerno. This is a faire towne situated at the rootes of the hill. It belongethe to Don Francesco Deste, the Duke of Ferraræ's brother who married the Ladie Mary Cardona that was wiff unto Anthony Cardona Marques of Padula, who died in the yere 1513. And now th'Emperor for his good service hathe confirmed yt unto Don Francesco. Withowt this towne of Padula there is hard by the walle's side a monasterie of charter friers called San Lorenzo di Padula, which is walled abowt and seemethe as bigg as the towne of Padula, which hathe within yt pleasant gardines and faire rowmes, with princelie conveyance of things all abowt yt. . This monasterie may dispend in revenues three pounds of gold a day, which ammountethe to fourescore and fowretine crownes the pound, and in English money it is above thirtie poundes. On pound of gold they receave a day to the proper use of themselves, all costs and charges besides born and discharged. They are in number as manie friers as there are dayes in the yere, that is to say three hundrethe three score and fowre. They have in the monasterie officers' servannts attending upon them and dailie laborars two hundrethe.

Here we cost¹ from the vale uppe the hill after we cum to Montesano, which standeth at the rootes of the hill.

) From Padula to Casal Nuovo xij^{ml}

This towne is on the side of the hill and belongethe to the said monasterie of San Lorenzo.

After we have goone a mile from hense we enter into a great thicke woode called Bosco del Pellegrino, whiche is verie jeopardous to passe. For there do the banished men of the kingdom lie manie times for their praye, and many a man is there robbed and slaine in the yere by them.

) From Casal Nuovo to Lago Negro viij^{ml}

) From thense to Luria [Lauria] viij^{ml}

Here be sharpe mountaynes to passe and wonderous to beholde on all sides with infinit springs of water. . This towne, th'inhabitants saye, belongethe to the prince of Salerno. And after we are cum a vi or vii miles from yt, we enter into an other woode not all thing so jepardous as the first, called Bosco di Castelluccio or as som say, Silva de Lusillo.

∅ 4 From Luria to Castelluccio viij^{ml}

This towne belongeth to the Baron della Crone. After we are past this towne we cum to a river called Lauso [Lao], whereupon standethe a litle towne named Laino, throwghe the which this river runnethe: wheras the Dukedom of Calabria beginnithe which dothe alwais appertain unto the King of Naples' eldest sonn. After we passe this we enter into verie sharp and stonie hilles.

) From Castelluccio to Rotonda xiiij^m

This is a pretie towne well compact abowt a round hill, and bicause the howses are on all sides joyning together and stand bound on by an other, therfor (I think) it is so named. After we have goone a good while from hense we cum at lengthe to descende from the hilles throwghe a strait, sharpe, roode and stonie waye, which a man wolde judge to have been cutt owt of the rock by force of hand, for it is on both sides as yf a man shulde enter into a gate. When we are doone these hilles we cum into a faire plaine, and on the right hand there is upon the hille's side the towne of Murano.

☉ From Rotonda to Murano xij^m

θ 5 From Morano to Castro Villare iiij^m

Th'Emperor made duk of this town, Giovan Battista Cariati, Count of Cariati and surnamed Spinello, who had Don Pietro de Toledo in great indignation which was vicere of Naples, for keaping his syster as his concubine, making him beleave he wold marye herr.

This towne is situated at the end of the aforesaid plaine, and at the departing owt of it we descend a wondrous way downwards from the hill. By the way upon the right hand we may see Altomonte on the hill, within a mile wherof are the wonderous mines of salt. And a litle by yonde them are marvellous hige hilles upon the which is continuallie great abundance of snowe, which by the heate of the sonn dothe congele and becommethe cristall, wherof there is great abundance upon those hilles.

In the vale that is over against Altomonte is manna¹ gathered in the sommer time which fallethe from the aere in the night: and so much more abundantlie yf after a great raign the daye before there folow a cleere night. This manna is gathered upon trees that have leaves like unto a plumme tree. There is two sortes of yt, the on fallethe upon the leaves (which is the prefectest) and the other upon the bodie and bowes of the tree. And of this they mak great merchandise.

Δ From Castro villare to thentrie into the vale of

Grati, whiche is so named by the river . xxij^{ml}

This vale is verie long but somewhat narrowe. In the middle of yt runneth the river Grati, whiche is augmented on everie side with other litle riverse that cum into yt, as the rivers Finito, Settimo, Sordo, Busento, and Saunto, which is the river that in times past hathe bene so famous, called Acheron. The vale is a goodlie plaine peice of grownde, with hilles on bothe sides which are wonderous frutefull and marvelouslie inha[bi]ted with townes and villages.

θ 6 From thentrie into the vale to Cosenza . xxij^{ml}

Following a long the vale we arrive at lengthe at the end of yt, where we enter into part of the towne Consenza called il Borgo, and so passe the bridg over the river Grati to cum into the citie, which dothe appeare to be but a strete in lengthe. This citie is the head of all Calabria, called in times past Consentia by old writers. The greatest part of yt standethe upon the side of the hill Appennine which cummeth throwghe the middle of Italye, built upon seven litle hilles. And for this the armes of the towne are vij hilles. Upon the toppe of the hill on hige towards the sowthe there is a strong castle, unto the which the towne and the places abowt is subject. The countrey abowt is verie frutefull and hath abundance of corn, frutes and good wines. In the hige churche called the Archbisshopricke there is a coffin by the walle's side with the armes of Fraunce upon yt, where (they of the towne saye) liethe the body of Charles the Great, sometime king of Fraunce. Upon the toppe of the hill by the castle there are sundrie olde ruines in great quantitie of auntient buildings. In the Borgo on this side the river there is a greate churche of S^t Dominik wherein is this epitaff upon a tumber.

Ultima preclarum quem tulit Esperia.

Prætor erat Calabris vita, set febribus ante
 Heu quam Præturæ munera functus obiit.
 Quo pietate prior nemo et ferventior æqui ;
 Famam orbs, ossa solum, spiritus astra colit.

Livi makethe oft mention of this towne, and in on place he saithe how the people called Brutii were yelded to Hannibal, and C. Servilius Consul made a peace with Consentia and the other people.

The river Grati, called in old time Cratis, hathe his beginning about a six miles above Cosenza on the est side owt of a plentifull fountain of water. When it cummith to the towne yt is faire and larg, and there entrethe into him before he cummethe under the bridge the river called Busento ; which two waters, as th'inabitants report, have two sundrie vertues. For thone, that is to say Grati, yf a man washe his heade or silk in the water of yt, the heare and the silk becum an auburn or flexie colowr. And the water of Busento on the other side makethe yt to becum sumwhat black and of a dark colowr : according to these verses of Ovid in the 15 booke of Metamorph :

Cratis et huic Sybaris nostris conterminus oris,
 Electro similes faciunt, auroque capillos.

And the water of Grati is counted verie helthsom for manie infirmities. It is not verie cleere by the reason that it cummeth with such a force downe from the mountaynes of a great height.

§ 7 From Cosenza to L'Aielo [Ajello] . . . xvj^m

After we passe Cosenza we ascende uppe upon verie highe hilles and emong them we travell so long till at last we arrive at Aiello, which standethe upon a hill and hathe a verie strait, sharp and stonie way unto yt. Above the towne is a fair large castle where the count liethe that is owner of the towne, and yt is almost as hige above the towne as the towne is from the valleye where we ascende situated upon a verie rock. Owt of this castle there is a faire prospect over all the hilles and plaines abowt. From L'Aielo towards San Biasi we cum upon a highe hill nighe unto the place called Golfo di San Eufemia, where the countrey is but xx miles in breadethe and a man may discern upon that hill the sees that are on both sides of Italie, that is to saye to Golfo di San Eufemia, and the golf on the other side called Golfo di Squilacci. In this countrey they burn no candles and litle oyle, but their light is a kind of wood whiche burnethe like a torche, beeing kept drie. The wines here are to extreme colde to be dronk of suche as are not accustomed to them. Before we cum to St. Biasi wee ride throwghe a woode verie thick and jeopardous to passe called Bosco di Santo Mazzio, whiche hathe bine most famous for robberies and murtheres committed in yt, of all the rest within the realm. For the theves did not onlie robb in great companies within yt, but also yf they sawe a number ride so stronglie together that they thought not themselves able to mak their part in good, they had emong the trees certain peices of artillarie to discharg at them, whiche were the deathe of manie a man. But now all the wood that was anie thing nige unto the high waye is burnt downe, and the trees remaine full of coles, withowt eyther leaf or bowe abow them, and some lying upon the earthe half burnt. This was done by th'Emperor's commandment when he passed bye there. At owr cuming owt of this wood we may discern a faire plaine and a bewtiful countrey, full of plesant places abundant with sundrie kindes of frutes. And on the left hand we may see the towne of Nicastro with the countrey abowt yt well tilled and verie plentifull, which is a great delite to beholde.

∅ From Aiello to San Biasi xx^{ml}

This towne belongethe to the Count of Nicastro.

Δ 8 From thense to a river called Scala xvj^{ml} θ From thense to Montelion Duke¹ viij^{ml}

This hath been an auntient towne in times past, as it dothe appeare by certain great ruines there and old statutes.

∅ 9 From thense to Seminara xxx^{ml}

This is a pretie towne well inhabited and a plentifull countrey round abowt yt, of corn, fruts, wine, and in especiallie olives great abundance. Yt belongethe to the Count. When we bee past Seminara we ascend uppe the Appennine upon the which we may beholde the plentifull and frutefull countrey abowt yt, all tilled full of vines and frute trees. Travailing thus upon the Apennine we may discern Vulcano, Strongoli [Stromboli] and the yles there abowt within the see, and also Mongibello laden with snowe within Sicilia.

) From Seminara to Fiumara del Moro x^{ml}

¹ The word 'Duke' has been added later, and probably is the name of an inn.

Before we arive here we descend somewhat from the Appennine a verie steepe and narrowe waye. This litle towne is situated upon a rock with water round about yt, belonging to a barron that takethe his name of it. After we arrive at Fiumare del Moro we yet descend more into a valley, whereas is great abundance of the trees called mori, with the which silkewormes are fedd; and by them paradventure the towne taketh his name. In this valley full of frutfull trees on all sides, we ride bye abundance of vines, arange trees, and limones. Here we leave the Appennine which keapethe more within the land and goeth to Reggio. Upon the side of him cumming downe we may easlie see into Sicilia and plainlie discern the straigt that is betwext it and Italie. In this valley we folowe the litle river that cummeth from Fiumare del Moro untill he enter into the seea.

Δ From Fiumare del Moro to Catona iij^m

Here standethe hard upon the seea an olde decayed towre by the which is a verie beggerlie house made for an ynn called Catona, to receave such as take passage from thense to Messina, and when there want passingers, to lodge the bardge menn that are continuallie there with their vessells readie to transport passengers unto the other side, which is but sixe miles over. This passage is much used of the people of the countrey to and fro. From hense to Reggio, which is counted the verie end of Italie, are vij miles, goeing still in the plaine valley betwext the Appennine and the seea. This towne hathe often bine vexed, spoiled, and destroyed. And not long sith yt hathe receaved great damage by Barbarossa:¹ yt is abundant with faire litle rivers and clere springs, and besett in everie place with pleasant gardines replenished with all kinds of frutes, and in especiallie aranges, which are so plentifull there and of suche a biggnes that they are most desired in Sicilia above all other for a great delicacie.

⧫ 10 From Reggio to Messina xij^m

There is in this towne on of the fairest portes in Europe, standing as well for the Levant and all those quarters as for the Ponent. The towne standethe somewhat upon the side of a hill, betwext the hill and the port. Upon the hill there are two or three faire castles, kept by Spaniardes. Yt is more in lengthe then in breadethe. The cheffest thing for antiquitie I sawe there, were the heades of Scipio and Hannibal when they were yong menn, in stone. The verie same (they of the citie say) that in times past were sent unto the communeweale of Messina by the senate and people of Roome in token of the good will towardes the towne, for the fidelitie and great good will they alwais bore to the Romanes ; presenting them with the heade of him that had done so muche goode to Roome, and also of him who was the cruelllest enemye that ever Roome had. These remaine straightlie kept in the towne house of Messina, and not to bee seene, withowt yt be for friendshippe, to straungers. For a new worke and that not finisshed at my being there, I saw a fountaine of verie white marble graven with the storie of Acteon and such other, by on Giovan Angelo,¹ a florentine, which to my eyes is on of the fairest peece of worke that ever I sawe. This fountain was appointed to be sett uppe before the hige church where there is an old on alreadie. Here is an old palaice belonging unto the Kings of Sicilia, and now most part of it is built a new from the grouound : upon the front of the palaice is this inscription :

Regia sum regum studijs fundata piorum,
 Æquoreum lustrando sinum lithusque decorum.
 Exhibuit formam quam vides nunc Fridericus
 Rex pius eximius summæ virtutis amicus.

After two dayes abode in Messina and [having] vewed what was to bee seene there, I departed from thense towardes Siracuse.

Δ From Messina to Ali by the sea side . . . xv^{ml}
) 1 From thense to Tauromina[Taormina] . . . xv^{ml}

Cicero makethe oft mention of this towne in his orations against Verres. Yt standethe upon a hill not farr from the seea, and about yt are verie auntient ruines. By yonde this towne as we go to Catania are growing a great number of canes of suger called cannemele. Yt is a plaine countrey full of marisshes untill we cum upon the rootes of Mongibello, called in the old time Ætna : which we do long before we cum to Catania.

Θ 2 From Tauromino to Catania . . . xxx^{ml}

This towne is placed upon the seea side at the rootes of Mongibello Yt standethe most by fisshermenn, that travaill the seea day and night. It hath bine a famous citie in times past, but now there is litle to be seene abowt it, except the ruines of an old aqueduct which browght water above ground from a farr of. And, saving of late yeres, there could no water be found abowt the towne, which hath bine the decay of this aqueduct. The towne of Catania is built with ruggie heaveie stone full of litle holes, which th'inhabitants saye have in times past bine cast owt of Mongibello. True it is indeed that such kinde of stone lie in great quantitie abowt the hill, which to look upon a man wold judge no lesse but they cam owt of fire: and before we cum to the rootes of this hill we find none of them abowt the countreye, but there is suche abundance that they wearie both mann and beast to travaill upon.

This hill Ætna or (as it is now named) Mongibello [was] verie famous among the writers of old time; th'inhabitants of the towne of Catania call yt by no other name but their hill, yet is yt from thense to the verie toppe litle lack of xxx miles, as they tolde me, alwais ascending, yeven from the towne, thowghe not much at the first. It is a verie uneasie waye by the reason of the great quantitie of great and sharpe stones that are upon yt. The hill is round, bigg, and nige none other, the toppe is alwais laded with snowe, and speciallie in the winter time, for then (they saye) within sixe mile of the toppe yt is covered for the space of sixe monthes: and except a mann waite a time in the month of Julie or August, yt is not possible to go to the toppe. The verie toppe is flatt and compasseth a great matter more then it appeareth a far of, whereas in the on part yssueth owt smoke at a wide hole manie times to be discerned when there blowethe a sowthe east winde, abowt the evening like unto a litle cloud. The other part is alwais covered with abundance of snowe, which in the sommer time meltethe awaye and there makethe a great lague where beastes wandring abowt the hill refreshe themselves. But it is never without great quantitie of snowe neyther winter nor sommer.

Mine intent was beeing here in Catania to have made a journey to the toppe of the hill, but th'inhabitants persuaded me to the contrairie, saing that the snowe was so thick, the way so troublesom, and the cold so extreme, that I shuld not be able to bring my purpose to passe. (And again which was worst of all) there was no lodging to be had: and to goo and com back again but from the hither most part of the snowe which liethe upon the hill, they said it was not possible in a daye. Th'inhabitants of the towne saye that in times past the hill was accustomed everie three score or foure score yeres at the farthest, to cast owt great streames of fire like unto a river, which cam from the toppe of the hill unto the verie walles of the towne and manie times put the towne in great perill, burning all that part of it that was next unto yt. I demaunded the question of them whie it raged not so still keaping his accustomed due time; and this fonde answer was made me. 'Bicause (say they) we have now a protectrice and defender from yt, called Santa Agatha, to whom the great churche of the towne is dedicated, and when soever anie likelihoode is of this kind of rage, herr holie bodie (which is here reserved within the churche) is ymmediatlie browght furthe in procession, and incontinentlie yt asswageth, or at the least it refrayneth, thowghe not altogether from flaming, yet from annoying the towne in suche sort as it was accustomed in time to fore.' And this they say hath bine onse done in the memorie of man. But th'onlie occation whie it neyther ragethe, burnethe, flamethe nor smokethe at this present as it hath done in thold time, is, that matter within wantethe, which in these manie hundrethe yeres hath done nothing but consume: and therfor at this present it neyther flamethe nor yet castethe owt such quantitie of stonies enie more. But smoke it dothe a litle now and then, which a man shall see arise from the toppe like a litle white cloude. This hill may be seene well an hundrethe miles by land and two hundrethe by sea. It raignethe seldom eyther winter or sommer but it fillethe the toppe of it with snowe, as I have wondred myself lying upon the sea, to see with a litle mistie raign in the evening, what abundance of snowe was augmented upon the hill by the morning.

From Catania to the passage of a river [Simeto]. viij^{mi}

This is on of the fairest rivers in all Sicilia, called by none other name vulgarlie but fiume de Catania. It is large, deepe and of a somewhat sweeft stream. His beginning is partlie owt of Mongibello, but principallie owt of the hilles by yonde that.

This is the towne so famous in all writers both greeke and latin, which hath bine esteamed on of the principallest cities of all Greece. This it was, that Dionisius the tirant was king of, and wherein he played so manie tiranicall partes. The name of it doth still remaine, but the bewtee and majestie of it is cleane decayed. No part of it is now inhabited but onlie that which was wont to be the least part of the citie, called the iland. And indeed it is an yland, saving that at the entrie where the gate is, there is a litle peace of grownd of a xl foot broode. After our entrie at the gate, we cum into a large greene, and by yonde that is the towne, situated upon a rocke, built thick together. Over against this rocke on the other side, which a man wold not judge passing xx score, is the maine land of Sicilia; and in at that straite cumethe the seea whiche makethe a verie large and bewtiful haven within the land of a great compasse. At this narrow passage of the seea into the haven is a strong castle kept by the Spaniardes, within the which is a lantern to bee seene a farr of. The auntientest thing within the towne is the highe church built upon olde great pillars. Undernethe the rocke there issueth owt suche abundance of water and so sweeftlie that it is straunge to behold: and it cumethe not xl foote from the rocke but it entrethe into the haven. This springe or litle river that I may call it findeth all the towne with water, and thither they bring asses with great earthen pottes upon their backs to fetch it home to their howses. It issueth from under the rocke as thowgh it had some trouble by the way, as the water hath that cummeth from an hige mountain emong great stones. The colour of it is like unto water when it is sodd. In drinking it hathe a tast above other waters somwhitt like unto whay. Of the origion of it there have bine sundrie opinions. For sum have ghesseed that it cummeth from Arcadia, where it entrethe into the earthe and goethe under the seea and so ariseth again in this place, according to Ovid, lib. v. Metamorph: [line 573]

Delia rupit humum: cæcisque ego mersa cavernis
Advehor Ortigiam:

The Siracusani that inhabited the citie were also called Arethu-sides by the name of this fountain, as Ovid makethe mention 4 Fast.¹ Utque Siracusas Arethusidas abstulit armis Claudius. Sum other say it cummethe owt of the yland of Sicilia: which in my opinion is unliklie, bicause the towne or the yland of Siracusa is invironed on the land side with drie rocks and betwext those rocks and the towne there is a plaine where we enter into the towne. And again it is to great abundance of water, and issuethe owt to swiftlie, to have his beginning in the litle rocke upon the whiche the towne standethe invironed with salt water. Not farr from this fountain there are certain springes within the seea which arrise owt of the bottom and discover on the toppe withowt anie tast at all of the salt water.

Withowt the towne there are sundrie ruines abowt the port, which compasseth above xii miles, where the cheef of the citie was wont to bee, which was divided into seven townes. The principall matters to be seene there, is the fore front of a church dedicated to Jupiter, which standethe upon a litle round hill and was in the middle of the citie. A theater cutt by force of hand owt of the verie rocke adjoyning to the citie, in the toppe wherof yssueth the owt at a hole owt of the rocke a faire spring of freshe water. There is also a hole or cave in the rocke like a vawte a xxx foote brode, which th'inhabitants say hath no end; for diverse have gone so farr that for lacke of aere their torches have gone owt, and for want of light and aere wold go no farther. This cave is a straunge thinge to beholde, being by art cutt into the hard stone. Here are the ruines of Dionisius' palaice to be seene, and also of the Latomiæ that he made to punish trespassers.

In on part of the hill there is a great deepe pitt and brode, where I beleve they had their stone in thold time to build the citie. When I had taried three dayes in Siracusa attending for passage to Malta, there arrived sodainlie in a night the galies of Malta, upon the whiche I met with an Englishman called Richard Lucas a gonner upon on of them, who perswaded me to goo back again to Messina with them by seea, saing I shuld find nothing at Malta worth the sight, withowt it were the knights there, wherof they had store upon their galies. These galies went to Messina to be rigged, dressed and vittayled to accompanie Andrea Doria² on his journey to wynn again the towne of Aphrica [Tunis] upon the seea in Barbary, which Dragout Rais¹ the famous rover upon those seeas, had a litle before taken by force and fortified: the whiche he browght to passe with great honor in the moneth of September.

We departed owt of Siracusa the second day of Marche and were driven by force of wether to drawe to the port of Augusta, which is xxiiij miles from Siracusa. In this port we laye ij dayes, for the wind was against us. Afterward we sett forwardes and sailed to Messina fourscore miles from thense.

By the arm of land that compassethe in the port of Messina is the perilous place of Charibdis, much spoken of in times past, which by the beating of the see against the said land is a great surgess, over the which we cam with oure galie, which was beginning to turn abowt: but the slaves putt to great labor, so that at last we passed it, withowt daunger, and arrived in the port of Messina, where after iiij dayes abodd I sett forwardes in a shippe towards Naples. And as we passed owt of the faro of Masseno where the lantern is, which is a two miles and half brode betwext Calabria and Sicilia, we cam by the other jeopardous place called in times past Scylla, which is nothing elles but a great rocke that leaneth owt into the seea on the side of Calabria, against the which the salt water, driven by the violence of the windes, reboundeth backe again with great force, not withowt the hasard oftentimes of manie vessells. This rocke is holowe undernethe and makethe such a terrible noise (the water beating in and driven owt again) that it hath caused the poetes to faine in this sort—Ovid.²

And Virgil making Elenas to speake to Ænæas admonishing him of the perill that was here, and faining the shape of Scylla (which is a bare rocke withowt anything upon yt) saith in this sort—Æneid, lib. 3: [line 426]

Prima hominis facies, et pulchro pectore virgo

Pube tenus; postrema immani corpore pistris,

² The pentameter, with 'rabidos' for 'rapidos,' occurs Ovid, Am. iii. 12, 23; but the hexameter does not resemble the line given here, which is faulty.

When we were past the farno of Messina and sailed all that daye and the night folowing, there arrose a litle after midnight suche a contrarie winde that we were driven from the yland of Strongoli [Stromboli] back again, and recovered the port of Melazzo, abowt xxx miles from Messina by Seea. In this port before the towne of Melazzo we taried for better winde xiiij dayes, withowt cumming to land at all in all these dayes. Bicause the maner is here and likewise in all other ports towards the levant, that no man shall be suffred to take land withowt the master of the shipp bring a certificat from whense he cummeth, the which we did not, thinking full litle that we shuld be driven upon that coast again, after we were onse departed. Neither had our master anie certificat from Barletta, wher he laded corn for Naples, and therfor neythur he nor anie of his companie cold not be permitted to cum a land, neyther at Messina nor here. When we wold have anie victualles or anie thing elles we had neede of, there were certain of the shipp appointed to go to the verie edge of the shore, and there to call to on that is appointed there for that onlie purpose, who causeth it to bee browght thither ymmediatlie, and after the bargain is made, the victualles are laide downe upon some stone, and the bringer goethe from yt: thin goethe on of the shippe to receave yt and laethe downe so much monie for yt, as ther covenant was betwext them, and so convayethe it to the shippe.

The occation of this is bicause the plague rayneth so muche in the parties of levant, that they are loth to practise with anie that cummeth from thense. But if anie man cam from the Ponent they make not the matter so straigt.

This towne of Melazzo seemethe to bee strong for that it hath bine newlie fortified all abowt. Yt standethe upon a hill above the seea. I have bine informed that at suche time as Principe Doria was wont everie sommer to sette furthe his armye bye seea, to find owt the great Cowrsar Dragouth Rais, he hathe bine seen to entre into this port and the rovar Dragouth to cum furthe of it at the verie same time, withowt anie stroke geven. When I demanded the question what was th'occation therof, they answered me that on rover wold not take another. But the Prince spent everie yere the'mperor's monie to entertaine good fellowes that lacked wages, and not to come to anie handstroke.

Here abowt upon certain rocks within the seea groethe plentie of course corall bothe redd & whitte. When the wether was faire and had winde at will, we departed from Melazzo and coasted the ylandes abowt Sicilia, and cam by Lipari, whiche is a plentifull peece of ground and a prettie towne standing a hige upon a hill. There is a place within this yland that a fewe yeres sith did burn : and the fond opinion of menn is that bicause it was very noisom to the countrey, the maydens upon a time vowed to drinke nothing but water, wherupon it ceased, and burnt no more never sins. Also Vulcano which castethe owt with great abundance thicke and darke smoke whiche hathe a verie evell savor.

Besides these, Salina which compasseth litle more than a mile and a half, and bringeth furthe fruts of sundrie sortes, which amount to viii hundreth ducats a yere, as I was enfowrmed. After this we cum by Panaria and Strongoli [Stromboli], which is a litle hill and sharp in the toppe, where as with a sowtheast winde, arrisethe a wondrous great flame everie half quarter of an howre, with such flasshes of fire that cumming by it at midnight being verie darke, we might in the shippe decern on another as well as by day light. Abowt this yland is almost nothing to bee seene but all ashes, emong the whiche are pumishe stones which are so light that they flee upp with the flame and so fall in the ashes. Yf they be taken before they towche the salt water they are verie good and perfect : there is greate abundance of them that falling into the seea are caried upon the coast of Calabria, and manie times left upon the drie land. We cam towardes Naples betwext the yland of Crapi [Capri] and Capo di Minerva, that is on the other side of Baia, which two points of earthe make the golf that cummethe in to Naples. Betwext Naples and Sicilia it is reckoned as much by seea as by land, that is three hundrethe miles.

We cam to Naples the xxvj^b of Marche, within xvij dayes after owr setting owt from Messina. In the shippe I cam in there was an Englishman a gunner there, called Jhon Orpinn, who was married in Naples.

After mine arrivall in Naples I found there newlie com thither Mr. Edward Stradling, Fraunces Williams, Jhon Handfoot, and Thomas Grinwaye. Mr. Parkar and Mr. Barker were departed, whom I found not afterward untill I cam to Siena again. Being thus in Naples we made a journey together to Salerno, which they were desirous to see, and we departed in a bote to Castel Mare, which is xvij miles. This towne standethe at the rootes of the hill that goethe owt into the seea to make the promonterie of Minerva. Here is great abundance of faire springes of water, and the countrey verie plesant, and plentious of good frutes. From hense we passe to Nucera, which is viij miles, and from thense to Salerno as manie. When we had seen Salerno sufficientlie we entred into a bote to go a long the faire coast of Amalfi, which is praysed to be on of the pleasantest peices of ground in all Italie. This coast is xx miles in lengthe, which is all of sharpe and hige hilles, on the side wherof such plentie of townes, villages, and howses of pleasure are planted so thicke together, that a man wold judge them, passing along by them on the seea, to be all together but on citie. These plesant places are marvelouslie inhabited, where a mann shall see all kindes of frutes in great perfection, as arange, limones, citrons, cedar trees, olives, plummes, pougarnetts, cherries, and such other, which shuld be long to repete. Besides these, vines of great estimation and such abundance of savorous flowres that it is no less pleasure to behold them then to smell to them. The aere is verie temperat, and is open on the seea almost on everie side. On the toppe of the hill there is a towne called Rovello, which appeareth the afarr of to be verie faire. Benethe that on the hilles side is Maggiore, of a bewtifull building, and Minore, two faire townes. The seeas went so hige and the winde was so contrarie that we were driven of force to land at Minore, which is x miles from Salerno. Here is wonderous plentie of perfect good vine greco which I marvailed much to see sold so good chepp: for a caraffa which is abowt a quart Englishe was sold for viij cavallucci, which is scarce iij farthings. From hense we went a verie narowe and straite waye upon the side of the hill to Amalfi, two miles of, which is a pretie citie plesantlie built and faire to beholde with the castle above it belonging to the duke, and all the coast abowt it. Here was a garison of Spaniardes, which issued owt abrode manie times to take suche banisshed menn (called forusciti) as lijing upon the hilles did great damage to the inhabitants of the countrey. At owr arrivall understanding the Marques of Capistrano, the duk's sonn, to bee in the castle with his mother the Dutchesse (for the olde acquaintance, frendshipp and familiaritie I had with him in Siena), I thought it belonging to thoffice of humanitie to do my dutie to him, at whose hands in time before I had receaved so great curtesie. When he sawe me and Whitehorn cumming into the castle to him he did not onlie gentlie receave us with loving entertainment, but also browght us in to the Dutchesse his mother to do the like towards us. And while we were sitting in communication together, he had privilie willed on of his menn to bring uppe into the castle to him the rest of owr companie remaining benethe in the towne, where we supped all together, everie mann served his mess severallie at the table to himself in sylver verie honorablie. And there had he with him at supper the Captain of the towne the better to entertain us all. When suppar was done everie mann was browght to his rest: Whitehorn and I were had into a chamber hanged with clothe of gold and vellett, wherin were two beddes, th'on of silver worke and the other of vellett, with pillowes bolsters and the shetes curiously wrowght with neelde [needle] worke. . In another chamber hard bie lay Stradlinge and Grinwaye. And bicause there was not provision sufficient within the castle, Handfort and Frauns Williams were ledd to the Captain's howse of the towne, where they laye sumptuously, and were greatlie feasted. In the morning we wold needes depart contrarie to the Marquesse will: who understanding by us owr entent was, (the better to see the countrey) to go over the great hill, had privilie appointed a dosen of souldiers Spaniards to attend upon us, and to conduct us through the jeopardous places there abowt, where those kinde of banished menn were most likelie to bee. When they cam sodainlie to us at our departure declaring unto us the Marques's will, we refused that their gentle offre occationed by him. Not withstanding, when we were departed (seeing them returne backe again) he gave straitte commaundment to two or three to folowe us in all hast with their peeces charged, and not to leave us till we cam to the toppe of the hill, and there to see us provided of things necessarie. This was a darke, mistie and rainie morning.

~ In Amalfi in the great Church called San Andrea there are the bones of Saint Androwe, by the which is a vessell which (they say) is alway full, and distilleth owt of those bones a certain oyl, called by th'inhabitants manna (as they say), which is given to pillgrommes and straungers by a preest appointed therto, and yet the vessell is alway full nobody adding anie thing to it.

To passe to the toppe of this hill of Amalfi it is a steepe, hard, stonie, narrowe, werisom and troublesom waye, for we ascend alwaies upon degrees and stayers of stone sett there by the menn of the countrey to passe to and fro.

When we cam to the toppe of the hill there we found readie provision made for us against owr cumming, bothe fruts of all sorts to present us, and also horses to ride onwarδες upon owr journey. Which horses we refused, saing that we could better go downe a foote then cum upp.

From Amalfi to the toppe of the hill it is reckened viij miles, and hitherto did the Spaniards conduct us.

At the bottom of the hill we passed over the river Sarno, communlie called Scafaro, which passage belongethe to the Duke of Amalfi, and so cam to Torre della Nunciata, which is from the toppe of the hill viij miles, where we laye that night. The next daye we arrived in Naples again xvj miles.

Beeing at Amalfi the Marquess understanding we had not as yet seene the yland of Ischia, willed us in anie wise not to depart owt of the countrey untill we had seene yt: for he assured us it was on of the strongest places and worthiest to bee seene of all christendom: and overnight cawsed a letter to bee written unto the captain of the towne (which he sent me in the morning) to shew us the same, as cumming from him, for he is nige of kinn unto the Marquess of Pescara, to whom it belongethe. So we made this jorney to Ischia by seea, which is xviii miles from Naples: where after owr arrivall, presenting unto the captain this letter from the Marquess, we were lovinglie receaved and gentlie entertayned. There went with me thither Mr. Stradling, where we laye that night. The next daye we were shewed the situation, strengthe, fortification and ordre of the towne of Ischia. The maine yland is xx miles in compass, full of great hilles and villages, the towne is seperated from the maine yland and is an yland of it self, saving that on the side towards the maine yland it hath a bridge made of a heape of stones within piles to go in and owt at. The towne standethe upon a rocke and the castle on hige upon the verie topp of the rocke. Beside the castle, there is a litle privie staiere cutt owt of the stone to go upp and downe at yf neede bee. At the entrie into the towne we must passe iiij or v gates, and somme of yron. After we are passed the first gate, we go through a vawte or entre that is cutt owt of the rocke for passage, in the which we continue untill we cum a hige upon the rocke where the towne standethe, where there is a verie open aere to looke all abowt both by seea and by land. Within the towne there be iiij or v larg sestornes cutt in the verie rocke to receave and keep the raigh water within them, which by pipes and conduites is conveyed into them. And indeede in all points we found the towne no lesse then the Marquess had said. Three miles from this towne, there is an other yland adjoining to yt, called Procida, which is nothing so big as this, nor the towne so faire, nor so strong. When we had seene whatsoever was worthe sight in the towne of Ischia, we departed towardes Naples again in a vessell, owr leave first taken of the Captaiñ, who had so gentlie entreated us at owr being there. And thus on neyther-side of Naples was there anie thing left unseene that was worthie to be seene.

This realm of Naples is verie plentifull of all things behouffull for the lyving of mann. For yf in the countrey of Calabria (which by the reason of so manie sharpe hige hilles and stonie rockes is communlie adjudged the worst and barronest part of the realm) ye find such great abundance of necessarie things (besides other dilicaties of pleasure), as is wheate, barlie, and all other graine, wine of all tastes, oyle, sugar, honie, waxe, salte, bothe owt of mines, and made of salt water, gold, sylver, wolles, silke in great quantitie, manna a verie rare thing and precious, saffron, olive trees, figg trees, arang trees, lymons, citrons with a number of other plesant fruts; what judge ye maye ye find in the other partes of the realm, which are plaine feeldes and dailie tilled, as Terra di lavoro and Paglia [Apulia], which for the fertilitie of the ground are esteemed the best partes in the realm. The citie itself is replenished with all things, so good cheape in respect of all other cities in Italie, that it is wonder to see, and in especiallie the great quantity of fruts that are there. It is communlie called Napoli Gentile, by the reason of the great Nobilitie owt of all partes of the realm within it, which (as I have said) have their severall palaces there. At owr being here there arrived a shipp which had browght in herr from Manfredonia iij hundrethe brass peecs great and small, which had the armes of the Duke of Saxonie and the Landegrave upon them, and upon som of them the pope was made like unto a devell. These peecs and manie mo were taken when th'Emperor had the victorie against the Germanes, and most of them were conveyed to Naples by seea. The most of them that cam this time to Naples were hackbutts a croke.¹ But some of them were faire great peeces, bothe canons, culverines and sacres. Here I taried for the companie of Mr. Stradling and Grinwaye a monethe after my cumming owt of Sicilia. The xxvijth of April we departed owt of Naples and that morning arrived there from Genoa the Prince Andrea Doria with xl galies, to go on his jorneye towards Aphrica, and to take the xij galies that were in Naples with him, which towne of Aphrica [Tunis] (as I have said) he tooke in September folowing.

) From Naples to Patria xv^{ml}

Hard by this towne of Patria appeare the old ruines of the citie of Linternum, where Scipio Aphricanus dwelt in exile owt of his country. It is not farr from the seea. By this place is a lague where we pass, which is called Lago della Patria and in sum place it is two miles brode, and insom other a mile, half a mile, and more and less.

Emongtheruines here there is a fountain or spring of sowre water, whiche th'inhabitants saye is good for the headache, and yf a mann drink unordinatlie of yt, yt makethe him dronke as wine dothe. .

Before we cum to Mondragone we pass through a great woode which is verie parellous for theves and robbars.

) From Patria to Castel Mare di Vulturno x^{ml}

3 From thense to Rocca di Mondragone v^{ml}

) From thense to the passage of Garigliano x^{ml}

Most writers saye that after we are past this river we cum into Campania or Terra di lavoro.

This river was named in times past Lyris.

At the passage of it we may discern the old ruines of Minturne, where the generall counsell was kept in the yere of our Lord 297, where there is to bee seene a theater almost hole, and a sumptuous aqueduct with dyverse other antiquities.

¹ A hackbut a croke was a hackbut or arquebuse supported on a rest by a hook of iron fastened to the barrel (Meyrick, Anc, Arm.). A sacre or saker was a piece of ordnance of three and a half inches bore (Halliwell).

) From Garigliano to Mola x^m

This towne may be so called from the abundance of milles within yt that are driven by the force of the swyft springes that cum owt of the hilles there. The countrey here abowt is faire and pleasant, full of bewtifull gardines. Here it is thowght was Ciceroe's villa Formiana, which he speakethe of 2 lib. de oratore, that Scipio and Lælius beeing wearie of studie refresshed their mindes with sportes and pastimes. And Martial also makethe mention of yt.

O temperatæ dulce Formiæ littus.

And a mann that markethe the old sepultures, the ruines of great buildings and the number of epitaffes graven in stone, may soone judge that this place hathe bine muche inhabited in times past.

I drue owt certain epitaffes that I sawe there in gardines, wherof this was one, graven in a peece of marble a foote and a half long and a foote brode :

Divi Trajani nep. Divi Nervæ
Pronepoti Tito Ælio Hadriano
Antonino Aug. Pio Pont. Max.
Trib. Pot. xj Cos. iiij P.P.
Formiani publice.

And in another peece of marble like unto that :

Equo Public. Præs. Coh. III
Aug. Thrag. Equit.
L. Brutius Primitivo Pater et

And in suche an other, this that followeth :

From Mola and Castellone to Fundi xxiiij^m.

All this waye we go upon Via Appia, which was made of faire larg stone. This towne standethe in a plaine, with a frutefull countrey abowt yt, where are verie delicate wines, which Martial could not have kept till they bee old, as he saith :¹

Hœc Fundana tulit fœlix autumnus opimi
Expressit mulsum consul et ipse bibet.

So dothe Strabo and Plini also praise the wine of this countrey marvelouslie : this citie was sacked by Barbarossa, captain on the sea for the Turke, anno 1534. It belongethe now to the prince of Salmone.

☉ From Fundi to Terracina x^m¹

Beefore we cum to the towne we passe the Marisshes and cum to a straitte passage betwext the hill and the seea cutt of the rocke by force of hand. And there entre we owt of the realm into the Pope's land.

This towne is built upon a rocke besides the hige hilles, compassed abowt with fennes and marisshes that the passage is verie dangerouse except a mann know the waye. Upon the hill there be manie antiquities, and emong other a mann may behold a faire theater. Suetonius makethe mention that Tiberius th'Emperor being at supper upon a time here abowt Terracina at the Prætorium, there fell sodainlie from the rocke above certain great stones which slewe dyverse of his frindes and servantes : and it was so sodainlie that Tiberius himself had much a do to skape. The countrey abowt is faire and pleasant, full of vines, and other trees of sundrie frutes. By yond Terracina in owr waye from Naples to Roome there is a river called Astura and a castle upon it of the same name, where Cicero fleeing owt of the handes of M. Antonius, was taken by Popilius (whose lyf he had saved before) and there most cruellie cutt of his head ; as Livi and Plutarc write of him. And here we may see Monte Circello [Circeo] upon the left hand by the sea side, which is verie hige to behold a farr of.

☉ From Terracina to Piperno xvj^m¹

This is a verie auntient citie placed upon a hill, and was wont to be the beawtifull and glorious citie of the Volsci. Yt reserveth his old name still. This citie hath bine verie famous as well for the auntientie of yt, as for that the prediceors of themperor Octavius Augustus had their beginning here. The wine here abowt Velitri is muche praysed.

This towne standethe upon a hill emong thicke wooddes and trees. Not farr from yt is a great lague. Sum imagin this to be yt that was wont to be called Villa Mariana, nighe unto which dwelt Lutius Murrenna. This towne belongethe to the house of Colonna in Roome.

‡ From thense to Roome xij^m

The countrey abowt is faire and plaine on all sides, full of antiquities, aqueducts and such other.

In Roome was now pope Giovan Maria Cardinall di Monte, called Pope July the third, elected the vij of Februarie last past.

This yere being 1550, the yere of Jubyley was celebrated in Roome, which is everie xxvth yere. And ymmediatlie after the pope was created he gave the first stroke at the wall in St. Petre's church (according to the maner) called the golden gate, and is kept mured uppe untill the yere of Jubilie. And as the pope his owne parson gevethe the first stroke here in St. Petre's Church, so be there cardinales appointed to the like in the other vj principall churches abowt Roome: then the first stroke ons geven, there be masons readie to digg it downe, and so it standethe open all that yere: at the yere's end it is closed upp again. Whosoever will receave the full indulgence of this Jubilie must visit the vii principall churches of Roome all in on daie (which he shall have inough to do) a foote. With these and like fond traditions is the papall seate cheeffie maintained, to call menn owt of all places of christendome to lighten their purses here, at pardons, indulgences, and jubileis to stocks and stones. But suche fond folishnes was never better spied owt then it is now, nor less observed in all places, thowghe manie perforce bee kept blinde still. And especially in Roome itself where they have bine so used to yt, that they are wearie of yt a great number.

We arrived in Roome the last daye of Aprill, and from thense we sett forwardes towards Siena the vith of May, the verie same journey I cam before by Viterbo and Bolsena, which is rekoned an hundrethe miles, where we arrived the ix^h of May.

At my return to Siena I found there Mr. Parkar and Mr. Barkar. And after I had settled my self sumwhat to my book ¹ I continued there but a while, beeing sent for by letters from my brother to repaire towards th'Emperor's Court to him with convenient speede.

At this time was Don Diego in the towne, who cam from Roome to declare unto the lordes of the towne th'Emperor's will, how for the less charges unto his Majesty and for the better saveguard of the towne, his pleasure was to build a fortress there, upon a hill within the towne, which full sore against their willes, agreed thereunto. The place was assigned by Saint Domenico and the plott cast owt before I cam awaye; the which fortress in the yere 1552 was cast downe to the earth again after the French armie was entred into the towne, and they restored to their accustomed freedom and libertie, as Claudio Tolomei declared in his oration to the French King at Compeign, beeing sent unto him ambassador from the citie to render due thanks vnto him for setting them at libertie.

I departed owt of Siena the xix of Julye to Florence, where I found Mr. Peto and Whithorn. From hense I went to Bologna and so to Ferrara, where at Frankolini, five miles of, I tooke bote and so cam to Chioggia, which is an yland within the seea, built as Venice is. From hense cum all the abundance of mellones that in the sommer time are in Venice. Afterward we sailed to Venice, which is xx miles. In Venice I rested a daie with Mr. Jhon Arundell, where I visited Mr. Edmund Harvelle's wyff, whom she had buried ² that sommer, complayning greatlie of the loss of so

From Venice to Augusburg are lvj dutch leagues, which are two hundrethe and three score and tenn miles.

I arrived in Augusburg the vth of August; where th'Emperor laye being a litle before returned owt of the lowe countreys. The King of Romanes his brother, the Quene of Hungarie regent of Flaunders his syster, the Prince of Spaign his sonn, the Dutchess of Lorrain, and dyverse other of the nobilitie of Germanie and Spaign.

Here I found my brother attending for Sir Richard Morisine's cumming, who was appointed by the King and the Counsell to succede him in his roome with th'Emperor.

Th'Emperor had now made great alterations in this citie, bothe of politike government and also of the exclesiasticall jurisdiction, exiling and banisshing the preachers owt of the precinct of th'Empire. And as all things maintaynedd with force endure not long, so was this alteration but for a time; for when he thowght him self at the point to have browght his pretended purposes to pass, he was then farthest of, and they tooke no place. At this time he wold have had the King of Romaynes, and Maximilian, his sonn, King of Boeme, to have agreed to make the Prince of Spaign, his sonn, Emperor after his decease, and during lyff to be coadjutor with him in the Empire. The whiche demaund did neyther lieke the King of Romanes nor his sonn, as ever afterward a mann might gather by their countenance, for they seemed to bee alwais sadd and pensive of the matter. Here the Emperor gathered to gather the Counsell of the Empire.

During the time of mine abode here I translated into Englishe the Tragedie of Free Will, which afterward I dedicated to my Lord Marquess of Northampton.

When Mr. Morisin was arrived and my brother had taken his leave of th'Emperor, the Prince of Spaign and the rest of the nobilitie of the Cowrt, we sett owt of Auspurg the xith of Novembre.

Uppon Sunday, the xxi of June, Mr. Garter and Mr. Chester browght the robes of the Garter for the French King into the Quene's great chamber, which was appointed for the same ; and there my Lord Marquess and the Cunstable (being Knight of the Garter) did putt on their robes, and Mr. Garter the King's Majesty's cote of armes, and going before the two knights browght the French King's robes into his Privie Chamber, wherin entred my Lord of Elye and no mo of the commissioners of England. There my Lord of Elye made a preposition or oration unto the King for deliverie of the order of the Garter from the King's Majesty, whereunto the Cardinall of Lorrain made answere of thanks in the French King's behalf. That ceremonie done my Lord Marquess delivered the George, Garter, robes, and collar unto the French King, where was delivered unto Mr. Garter the French King's gowne of his backe, which was of blacke satin with xlvijij paire of agletts of gold sett full with pearles, esteemed worth l pounds, and a chaine of gold of two hundreth French crownes.

At the cumming furth of the King owt of his Privie Chamber everie gentlman and nobleman tooke his place before the King unto the chappell. First the gentlmen of Fraunce and England, and then the noblemen of Fraunce and England, and after them the noblemen of the order of Fraunce, and the Commissioners of England, where Sir Jhon Mason tooke the highest place as appertayned unto him, being Ambassador resident. Then before the two knights of th'Order, which were my Lord Marquess and the Constable, went Chester, wearing the King's Majesty's cote of armes. And after them, before the King, the Sargeants at Armes and Mr. Garter. Then cam the King betwext the Cardinall of Lorrain and the Cardinall Chastillon; and after the King such as were of his Privie Chamber. In this manner they cam to the chappell, where was song a solemn Mass after the French fasshion, with holie water and holie breade, etc. After service was done they returned unto the King's chamber of estate, wheras dined with the King my Lord Marquiss and the Cunstable. The other nobles both of England and Fraunce dined together in a great chamber at on table apointed for them.

Uppon Tuysdaye, the xxxth of June, the French King removed his Cowrt towards Nantz, wheras upon Sunday, the xij of Julye, he made his entrie. All this time my Lord Marquess, with certain lordes with him, was with the King, and all the rest of the lordes and other of the traine remayned at Nantz against his cumming.

The Castle of Chasteubriant standethe upon the hill full of pleasant wooddes, delectable walkes, faire springs of freshe water, freshe gardines and orchards replenished with all sorts of savorie fruts, bewtifull prospects all abowt, and verie helthsom aere. It belongethe to the Cunstable of Fraunce. The palaice is verie princelie, both for the building and also for the conveyance of roomes; bequethed unto him by Mons^r de Chasteubriant when he died, full litle thinking he shuld then have departed owt of this world.

TH'ENTRIE OF THE FRENCH KING AND QUEENE INTO NANTZ, THE HEAD TOWNE OF BRITAIN.

The French King (as the maner of Fraunce is) is after his coronation receaved with great triumphe in to all the cities of his realm, for the first time of his cumming: and for that he had not as yet bine in Nantz sith he was made King he entended to make his entrie ynto yt now, at my Lord Marquess being with him, which was in this maner:—

First there cam fowre bands of souldiers, which were abowt a thowsand in all.

foote, and after them the provost of the towne, accompanied with 1 on horsebacke, and som what after them xxv townesmenn on horsback.

Fowrthlie, a great quantitie of friers and priestes in maner of procession; after whom folowed xx of the Gard on horsbacke, and the Gard Swisers on foote in good ordre.

Fiftlie, xxvij great gentlmen and lordes, as the Ringrave, my Lord of Urmund, the Cardinall of Lorrain, the Cardinall Chastillon, and an Italian Cardinall sent to the King by the Pope, called Cardinall Crispio; and next unto them the Master of the Horse, Deputie, and Mr. Cunstable, and after them the King on a horse verie richlie trapt with imbroderment of silver, riding under a canapie born by iiij gentlmen. Next to the King rid the Prince of Rochsurion with Mons^r Danguien; and after them the Lord Marquess of Northampton, having on the on side of him Mons^r Delmal, and on the other side Mons^r Denemurs. Then folowed other Erles of England and Fraunce, the Erle of Worcester, the Erle of Rutland, with other French lordes and gentlmen to the number of xl; after them cam lii of the Gard on horsbacke, and last of all a great multitude of people.

An howre or therabowt after the King was thus entred the Quene made herr entrie, having before herr 1 Swisers of the Gard and after them the Captain of the Castle with his band, wherof were xxxij vellute cotes, and a great number of noblmenn and gentlmenn on horsbacke. Three pages of honor, they and their horses all in white vellute imbrodered with redd and sylver: wherof the on caried behinde him the Quene's great Caskett coverid with white vellute and imbrodered with redd and sylver; an other ridd on a doble horse for the Quene, all imbrodered sutable as beefore: also there were two spare horses for the Quene, all trapt and imbrodered as the rest.

The Quene herrself rid in a littar born upon two great horses, and upon them two pages all with colowrs and imbroderies sutable with the rest. And so was the Quene herr self. Ymmediatlie after the Quene folowed xx gentlwomen, of the which fowre were apparelled all in blacke, and xvj all in white damaske, white hatts, and great white fethers in them. And thus rid the Quene with her traine through the towne towards the Castle, after the King. The old and the yong Quenes of Scottes cam not with the Cowrt to Nantz, but remayned behinde at Chasteaubriant to go an other waye.

Upon Friday, the xvij day of Julye, my Lord Marquess and all the hole traine removed from Nantz towards Angiers [Angers] by land, costing¹ the river of Loyer; folowing the French King, which was departed before. At Chasteubriant the French King shewed my Lord Marquess great plesure and disport, sometime in plaing at tenice, sometime in shooting, sometime in hunting the bore, somtime at the palla malla, and sometime with his great boisterlie Britons wrastling with my lorde's yemen of Cornwall, who had much a do to gete the upper hand of them: and everie night ther was dansing in the great hall, and sometime musike in the King's Privie Chamber. He shewed him the like at Nantz with skirmisshes sometime uppon the river with bottes and vesselles furnisshes warlike.

Mons^r de Mendotsa fell sicke at Abvile and there remainyd, not being able to bring my Lord to Boulaign, where he first receaved him to conduct him to the Cowrt. From Paris to Boulaign are xvi postes.

My Lord arrived at Boulaign the x of August, where shortlie after he tooke shippe; and in the morning betwext iij and iiij of the clocke he arrived at Dover, which was a long and troblsom passag. From thense he tooke horse and arrived the next daye at the Cowrt, leaving his traine behind him. The King lay then at Hampton Cowrt, wheras was small resort of menn, by the reason of the sicknes that raignyd this yere in the realme. We that were of his howshold went by water to Gravisend to Assher [Esher], besides Hampton Cowrt, where my Ladye laye all that sommer. In this monethe of August were created at Hampton Cowrt by the King, the Erle of Warwicke Duke of Northumberland, the Erle of Wilshire Marquess of Wynchester; the Master of the Horse Sir William Herbert Lord Herbert and Erle of Penbruke; and there were made knights Sir Henry Sidney, Sir Nicholas Throgmorton,¹ Sir William Cecil,² Secretarie, and Sir Jhon Cheeke; also the Marquess Dorsett created Duke of Suffolk.

by force of wether in England, where she was honorablie receaved, first by my Lord and Ladie, with manie other nobles, both lords and ladies, at Hampton Cowrt; afterwards she was conducted by water in the Quene's barge to Polle's Wharf, where she tooke land and cam to the Bishoppe's palaice, richlie appparelled for herr. The next daie after she was browght to the Cowrt at Westminster, accompanied with erles' and barons' wyves, where the King receaved herr in the Hall, and ledd her uppe into his chambres, richlie hanged on all sides. At herr departure she was conducted owt of the citie by most of the nobilitie, with their bandes of menn of armes in good ordre, and with a great number of ladies and gentlwomen.

This season cumming uppe and downe by water and attending at Hampton Cowrt for the Quene's arrivall, it was the occation unto me of a quartan ague, which held me a good space after.

After the Quene's departure we removed from Assher [Esher] to Winchester Place, in Southwarke, which my Lord Marquess had of Doctor Ponett,¹ then Bishoppe of Wynchester, in exchaung for an other howse of his in Lambeth. Here laye my Ladie all this winter.

About the month of Octobre my Lord of Sommersett with other lordes and knights was committed to the Towre; to the custodie wherof, with Sir Arthur Darcy, was appointed my brother, then being on of the Privie Counsell to the King's Majesty and Master of th'Ordinance. Within vj weeks after he was browght to his arraignment to Westminster Hall, where he acquitted himself verie wiselie of whatsoever could be laid at his charg: notwithstanding by the Duke of Northumberland's meanes he was condemned of fellonie and quitted of treason. The fellonie was that he pretended the death² of the Duke of Northumberlande, beyng a pryvy counsellor, which by stattute was made felony.

This forsaid jorney of my Lord Marquess into Fraunce was as well to conclude a marriage betwene the King's Majestie and the French King's eldest dawghter,³ whom we sawe and saluted at Bloys, and to ratifie and establishe the peace and amitie betwext the two princes, as to bring unto the King the Order of the Garter.

At ovr being in Fraunce the French King made great provision for war against th'Emperor; the cheef occation whereof was the citie of Parma, which th'Emperor would have kept in his owne hands from his sonn in lawe Duke Ottavio, that had married his bastard daughter, which, perceaving his father in lawe's entent, forsoke him cleane and fledd to the French King, who sett him in full state and possession of Parma again. And he did not onlie now turn French, but also all the house of Farnese, which in fore time were so great frinds to th'Emperor (for all he had cawsed Pier Alois, their father, to be slaine in the citie of Piacenza, and so recovered the towne to himself).

The French King, understanding how royallie the Marshall of Sant Andrea, his Cheef Commissioner into England, was rewarded by the King's Majesty at his return, and the rest of his commissioners that went with him, he sent afterward unto my Lord Marquess, by a gentlman of his that he sent to the King on his behalf, two standing massie cuppes with their covers, of the value of two thowsand crownes, which is on thowsand marks, for an augmentation of his first reward. This yere after long siege laide to yt Duke Maurice entred by composition into the towne of Magdenburg [Magdeburg].

The xxij of January the Duke of Sommersett was beheaded openlie upon the Towre Hill, to no small grief of the lokers on. So were also Sir Thomas Arundle, Sir Michell Stanappe [Stanhope], and Mr. Raff Vane, with Sir Miles Partridge hanged, for being forged upon them that they pretended the Duke of Northumberland's deathe. My lord Pagett was disgraded of the Order of the Garter, which after the King's deathe was restored unto him again, and he made of the Quene's Privie Counsell in as ample maner as ever he had bine in fore time. The v day of Februarie I went into the country with my brother William¹ and his wyff to Marden. At this time was my brother appointed to goo in parson to transport and paye in Flaunders a certain sum of money borrowed there in fore time, to the which journey he prepared himself and my brother William with him, and returned again before Easter. My quartern was th'occasion of my taryng at home, and when I had remayned a season in the countrey I returned again to London the xxvi of April, after I had bine ridd of my ague, where I prepared myself to goo into Fraunce and there to applie my booke¹ for a season.

The xviiij of May I tooke my leave of my Lord and Ladye at Horsleye, where they laye with my Ladie Browne, afterward married to my Lord Clinton.

From the xviiij of May until the xvj of June I continued in London, tarijng till my brother were dispatched from the Cowrt, being appointed commissioner by the King to go to Calice. And when it was determined Sir Richard Cotton should goo with Sir Anthonie Selinger² in his place (who helped me afterward to conveye over two gheldinges which I browght with me into Fraunce to Mr. Frances Caro), I departed owt of London, and at Dover passed the seeas with Sir Anthonye Aucher and Sir Henry Palmer. At Calice I had a pasport of the Lord Deputie, the Lord Willowghbye, to pass into Fraunce, and likewise of the Treasurer, Sir Maurice Denis, to pass withowt searche.

after I had receaved my stuff I retourned by the river to Paris again, by reason of my sore fote.

After I had convayed my stuff to Paris and settled myself there, the first thing I did was to translate into Englishe the third booke of the 'Cowrtisan,'¹ which my Ladie Marquess had often willed me to do, and for lacke of time ever differred it. And from thense I sent unto Sir Henry Sidney the epitome of the Italian tung which I drue owt there for him.

This done Mr. Henry Kingsmeale and I applied ourselves to the reading of the institutes of the Civill Law, being bothe lodged in a house together.

The menn of most fame and renowme in this Universitie of Paris were these: Silvius in phisike, Orontius in the mathematiks, Ramus in humanitie and philosophie.²

This yere the French King had taken Metz, in Lorraine, and Siena and Mirandula, in Italie. In Siena the Spaniardes were driven owt by the helpe of the towne, and the castle that was built there by th'Emperor was cast downe to the earthe; for the which entrie of the French partie Don Diego was blamed and somewhat in displeasure with th'Emperor.

After Duke Maurice, lijng long with his siege before Magdenburg [Magdeburg] (which is a citie in Saxonie and holdeth alwaies of the Duke that is Elector), had browght it into th'Emperor's subjection, as other cities of Germanie than were, bicause they of the citie wold neyther receave th'Emperor nor his Interim, nor yet Duke Maurice for their lord, Marquess Albert of Brandenburg, the Duke of Mechelburg, and the Lantgrave of Hesse, his sonn, and Duke Maurice with certain other princes of Germanie annexed together, perceaving their kinn and friends in captivitie and Germanie thus daile oppressed and browght from the accustomed libertie into untollerable bondage, laide their heades together and entred into a new confederacie, that like as all this business had bine sturred in Germanie partlie by som of their meanes, so they shuld among them bee the first to seeke a present remedie for so great an evell before it enlarged anie farther and bredd to a greater scabb. They entred into a new confederacie privilie to forsake th'Emperor and to serve the French King, his ennemie, thinking by that meane to obtain the sooner wherby to maintein their warres and to bring their purpose to passe. The which their device, not long after the towne was yelded and the duke peaceblie entred with good favor, they putt in practice. And as it was divised betwext them Albert went privilie into Fraunce to open this practise of theirs unto the French King, and to persuade him to this kinde of enterprise to aide and sustaine them with his helpe in the same, and to take upon him the stile of the defensor of the libertie of Germanie, promising him to do him good and faithfull service in that quarell against th'Emperor, who sawght nothing but the distruction of all Germanie, and to make this free nation an inheritance to him and to his for ever: offering him sufficient hostages in that behalf.

When the Frenche King perceaved it to bee no lie that they were at defiance with th'Emperor, thinking the sooner to compasse his purpose and ambitious desire (the which for all that he was never the neerer of), [he] gave them verie gentle entertainment with faire woordes, promising them golden mountaynes and (paradventure in hoope of a greate deale to ensue from yt) discoursed somewhat with them. When Albert with speede was returned and had declared how acceptable their service was to the King, who promised them large entertainment to do him service in Germanie, Duke Maurice and the rest with their powres marched towardes Auspurg [Augsburg], where they entred at last before th'Emperor's menn which he had sent thither to defend the towne. And albeit they arrived there before Duke Maurice, yet they of the towne desired them to stay a while without the walles untill they of the citie were at a point among themselves, which was nothing elles but to prolong the time untill Duke Maurice cam (for they had intelligence that he was not farr of), who ymmediatelie after his arrival entred into the citie, and th'Emperor's menn retired backe again as they cam without doing anie thing. When he was thus entred he restored the citie to his accustomed libertie again, thrusting owt th'Emperor's garison, and undoing whatsoever the Emperor had done in fore time at his being there, and displacing all such as th'Emperor had there putt in authoritie. Th'Emperor was departed from hense to Ynsbrucke when this sturr was in Germanie, entending to go from thense to Trent, where the generall Counsell was appointed to bee held. Before his departure owt of Ausprucke he thowght to make all things sure there, placing such in authoritie within the citie as made most for his purpose, banisshing and exiling the chieftest preachers of the towne, enforcing them to take their othe not to abide within the precinct of th'Empire, and leaving there to his thinking sufficient garison.

When Duke Maurice had restored the preachers again (who counsailed him in no wise to dissolve the popish churches sett upp there by the Emperor's commaundment), and made this new alteration in the citie, leaving sufficient power there to the preservation of the same, he went towardes Fietse, a towne of the Cardinall of Auspruck, the which he took ymmediatelie, and the Duke of Mechelburg with him, by whose meanes he wann in a moment a certain sluice of importance within half a league of Fietse, which was upon a rocke in a verie narrow passage. The Emperor lijng in Ynsprucke thowght himself sure inowghe bicause his trust was in that sluice, which was indeed on of the strongest holdes in all Germanie and wonn by a wonderous pollicie. But when he heard it was taken, and hearing the newes of the sodaine approache of the Duke (the which he wold not almost credite before he in a maner sawe it), with all his Cowrt he removed in post hast in the night towardes the Archdukedom, caried in a littar, and never staide before he cam to Villaco, in Carinthia, where he remayned a season.

Duke Maurice cam to Ynspruck, where he touched nothing that belonged not to the Emperor. Withowt the towne on the other side of the river there dwellethe on the hilles side in a faire house a gunnfunder, on of the best in his science of all Christendom, a verie discreate and sober parson. This mann (as he told my brother the tale) had a xx great peecs of artillarie in hand for the Duke of Alava, which he minded to carie into Spaine. Upon these peecs the Duke had cawsed to bee graven the armes of Philipp, Lansgrave of Hess, with his stile, which was the Emperor's prisoner, and all for a certain vain glorie that menn shuld beleave he had gotten them in the feeld by prowess of armes. The Lansgrave's sonn, who was in Duke Maurice hoost, seeing those peecs there with his father's armes upon them, ceased upon them and tooke them away with him, geving to the gunnfounder's wyff an hundrethe crownes to drinke.

Th'Emperor perceaving to what a narrow point he was now driven to, and that withowt a peace made betwext Duke Maurice and him he shuld never be able to cum into anie part of his dominions again, sowght all meanes possible for a peace, and cawsed the King his brother and sundrie others to labour diligentlie in yt. Duke Maurice at lengthe by faire persuasions was overcum and agreeede a Diete to bee had at Passa or Bassa, a towne that holdethe of the Duke of Bavire, but it belongeth to the Bishoppe, great frind to the Duke. In this towne at time appointed were assembled on the Emperor's part the King his brother, Maximilian, and the Duke of Bavire, and on the Elector's and other princes' of Germanie's behalf, their debities and Duke Maurice himself. They agreed here and sealed to certain articles bothe for the restoring of the accustomed religion throwghowt Germanie and other kindes of auntient liberties, and also for the reconciling of the Duke and the Marquess unto th'Emperor again, with such as were their confederates. When Marquess Albert heard of this he was sore displeased with Maurice, not so much for that the conditions agreed upon were not large, inowghe (for having th'Emperor at this narrow point he might have made him to agree to whatsoever he had listed), as for that Duke Maurice did it upon his owne heade, in the name of the holle Empire, unknowen to him, the which he owght not to have done, considering in what a confederacie they two were annexed together for the libertie of the hole Empire, and indeed hitherto had proceaded jointlie together.

For the Marquess at their departure from Ausprucke did no less good beefore Noremberg, which he entred into at length by composition, then Maurice had done in persuing th'Emperor. Upon this occation he fell owt with Duke Maurice, calling him 'Schelm,' which is a verie reprochfull word in their language, and reviled him with opprobrious woordes, that he wold, so contrarie to his othe and honestie, enterprise such a matter withowt making him privie to yt, which of duty he owght to have done. Wherupon he warned him to provide for him self, for he swore he wold be revenged or it shuld cost him his lyff.

After the peace thus concluded the Marquess thought Germanie no place for him, but ymmediatlie sett forwardes with his powre towards Ulm, where he culd not entre, but was kept owt by th'Emperor's menn there within. When he was past all hoope of entrie, he spoiled and rased most part of the countrey abowt. From thense he removed and tooke Spier and Woormes, and the Duke of Mechelberg with him, which was at Franckfurt slaine¹ with a great peece, where he was in like maner kept owt and not suffred to entre but by composition such as he left at the sieg entred. Then he left Germanie and marched towards Fraunce (taking Trier and Mens in his waye, where he receaved a good portion of treasure), thinking to be greatlie welcummed thither. All this while that Maurice warred thus in Germanie against th'Emperor, the French King was with his powre drawing thitherwardes, and having taken Metz, under the cooler to pass throwghe yt, went towards Strasburg, thinking to have obtained it by a like pollicie; but he was deceaved, for they wold not suffre him nor anie of his to entre the walles; wherupon he was constrayned to retire again. The peace was not so soone concluded betwext th'Emperor and the Duke, but th'Emperor removed from Villaco and cam to Ausprucke, where he graunted libertie to the Duke of Saxonie and the Landesgrave, his prisoners. And whereas they were under his custodie in former time he in maner now committed him self into their hands. By this breache of Duke Maurice with him he was not onlie disapointed of his purpose in Germanie, but also the wicked Connsell, that he had appointed to have bine held at Trent, where all matters of religion shuld have bine concluded according to his will, was stopped and hindred; for there were alreadie assembled together, besides cardinalls and other prelats, lx bisshoppes, whiche were glad and faine to repaire to their hommes again in hast when they understoode Duke Maurice was so nighe drawing thitherwardes. In Ausburg at the Emperor's return that waye he made som alteration, though not so much as he had done at other times, and displaced certain preachers whiche he had no great fansie to.

From hense he departed, going by Strasburg and gathering on all sides as much powre as he was able to make, towards the siege of Metz, where he had assembled lxxx thowsand men.¹ And perceiving how litle he prevailed at the siege eyther by battrie or by assawte, dailie liesing of menn, being in the deepe of wynter, and that a verie sharp winter (for he laye continuallie at yt the space of iij months), he levied his siege and withdrew himself unto the lowe countrey towards Brusselles.

Marquess Albert continued not a moneth in Fraunce, but he was wearie of the French King's entertainment, and desired nothing so muche as to bee dispatched owt of his service with honestie. For he perceived verie well what a gelowsie and suspect he was had in, in that he could not onlie not be suffred to entre into the citie of Metz after it was taken, nor yet so muche as to withdraue him self owt of th'armye into anie secrete place without great espiall; and sawe before his eyes a manifest prouf of the French King's pretended libertie, which tourned to a private proffitt, keeping the free cities of Germanie in his owne hands with force of armes, abusing their gentlnes under the cloke of the defense of their libertie; and recompensing their true dealing with fraude and treson.

Upon this Albert renounced openlie his entertainment and letted not to declare that he was not a prince of his worde, for he perfourmed not one of those large offres which at the first he made to him, and therefore he entendeth to depart and serve him no longer. The French King answered plainlie he shuld not so depart, wherupon ymmediatlie he sent Mons^r Delmal, [D'Aumale] captain of the light horsmen, with Mons^r de Rohan to withstand him and to stoppe him the passage.²

Albert escaped notwithstanding and valiantlie acquitted him self in escaping from emong them, for he tooke them bothe prisoners with the loss of vj or vij hundrethe of their menn.

Mons^r de Rohan by the reason of a controversie betwext the souldiers that equallie chalenged him, was there slaine by th'on of the two, bicause the other shuld chaleng no part. Mons^r Delmal was after a yere raunsomed again for iij score thowsand crownes. After this so luckie a chaunce of Marquess Albert, th'Emperor for all his displeasure he owght him, knowing him to be a good mann of warr, retayned him in his campe, this time of his necessitie. For whether at his first cumming owt of Fraunce he was desirous of th'Emperor's wages to come to an accorde with him again, or th'Emperor willing to receave his service and desirous of his parson (which seemethe most likelie), he cam to th'Emperor's speache. But first it was indented before he wold cum to that, among other things, and graunted: first, that his late revoking from him with Duke Maurice shuld not bee laide in his dishe as a reproche nor cast in his teethe from thens furthe; again, that he might cum fornished into th'Emperor's presence with his menn and all kind of weapons appertayning to a man of warr; morover that he might not come before him like an offender in anie point wherbie he should bee constrayned in capping or kneeling to make anie other a doo then other princes use communlie to do in his presence; also that his Majestie, whereas he had geven to the Bisshoppes of Bamberg and Wurzburg by the virtue of his lettres patents (for displeasur conceaved against him) free libertie, releasing them of all homage and whatsoever was due unto him, wold (being now reconciled again) graunt him his great seale on the other side to calleng this his right of them again, in as ample maner as ever he hathe done in foretime.

These capitulations and other like were agreede unto, and the Marquess, during the time of this siege and long after, did th'Emperor as worthie and faithfull service as anie noble captain he had in all his hoost.

When the siege was levied Albert thought it a meete time then to seek all means possible day by day how he might kepe promise with Duke Maurice and be revenged of him, making great sturres in Germanie and gathering a powre to invade upon him. Duke Maurice on the other side levied all such powre as he was able to make to defend himself and joyned with the Bisshoppes of Bamberg and Wurzburg.

There were manie skirmishes on bothe parts, but in long time the victorie was uncertain. At length after long continuance of warr on both partes, not knowing who shuld have the upper hand nor by anie likelihoode to whether part victorie wold or might encline, being utterlie determined the on to persue the other unto death, Duke Maurice was slaine with an arkebuse in a battell¹ by on of Albert's men in the chase (as it was reported for a certaintie), after he had wonn the fiele and slaine and discomfited and hurt iiij thousand of Albert's menn. In this battell was assembled on bothe sides all the poure they were able to make.

It is not without susspition that th'Emperor, to kepe these two princes thus at debate, still for feare least they might happen to cum to an accord (which shuld not have bine greatlie to his proffitt), fedd Albert with money largelie, whiche is credible inowghe; and the King of Romanes did the like to Maurice.

This battaile was in the yere of our Lord 1553, abowt the monethe of June.

After Maurice deathe, Friderick Duke of Saxony sent his sonn Jhon William to th'Emperor for restitution of suche possessions as he had taken from him and were given to Maurice with the Electorshipp.

OF THE HOUSE OF BURBON.

The House Burbon, which hathe in times past bine a part and portion of a sonn of Fraunce, hathe bine dyvided into three parts and Howses: that is to saye, into the House called by name Burbon, principall of th'armes, the which of olde time hathe enjoyed the Dukedom of Burbon. And their mansion place hath ordinarilie bine in the Castle of Molines [Moulins], in Burbonois, in the hie waye to Lions, going from Paris thither.

The second House yssued owt of the House of Burbon is the House of the Lordes of Vendosm, the head wherof is the Duke of Vendosm, which hath married the King of Navarre's dowghter and onlie heire (¹ by whome he had yssue Henry, nowe Kynge of France and Navarre, 1592).

The third House yssued owt of the House of Burbon is the house of Monpensier, and owt of that cam the Duke of Burbon, which was Constable of Fraunce and died at the sacke of Roome. This Duke had before his departure owt of Fraunce married the dawghter of Madam de Beauger, syster to King Charles the Eight. This Madam Beauger was married to the Duke of Burbon, which was the chief of the armes of the House of Burbon, and of herr this Duke had no heir male, but onlie a dowghter, which was married to the late Burbon that was Cunstable, which afterward fled owt of Fraunce after the death of his wyff, under the name of whom he enjoyed during herr lief the dutchie of Burbon, bicause his said wyff was the onlie dawghter of the head of th'armes of Burbon.

As towching the House of Vendosm, owt of yt yssued the late Duke of Vendosm, Knight of th'Ordre and Governer of Picardie (as at this present is his sonn), who died at Amiens retourning from the campe at Hesdin, which had to his brethren the Cardinall of Burbon and the Erle of Saint Pole, who had to their syster the old Dutchesse of Guise. Their father died a yong mann, who had married the Ladie Mary of Luxemburg, Countess of Saint Pole and Anguien, and ladie of manie lordshippes in Flaunders, Arthois and Henalt.

OF THE STATE OF MILLANE.

Concerning the controversie abowt the state of Millan: yt is to be understood that Jhon Galeatso, Duke of Millan in the time of King Charles the Sixt, married, in Fraunce, a dowghter of his to the Duke of Orleans, which dowghter was his onlie lawfull heir.

It is true that herr father had in deede a bastard dowghter, which was married to a captain, a lieutenant of his, called Sforzia, which after the death of his wyve's father (being then in those parties) placed himself in the Dukedom of Millan, setting the Duke of Orleans cleane beside it, which had married the true and lawfull dowghter of the said Duke Galeatso.

Of this dawghter of Millan yssued the father of King Lewes the XII., and by his mother's side Millan appertayned to him. Wher-upon this Lewis, being his sonn, made warr for the said Dutchie of Millan before he was king, the which he enjoyed as much before as he did after he was king. He left of him onlie two dawghters. The eldest was married to the last King, Frauncs, and was mother to the King that now raignethe, who claymeth a title to the said Dutchie of Millan by succession on the mother's side, which was eldest dawghter to the said Lewes the XIIth, whose father cam of the dawghter of Millan. The other dawghter of King Lewes the XII. was marid to the Duke of Ferrara, and is mother to the Dutchess of Guise.

OF THE STATE OF SAVOY.

Concerning Savoy and Piemont the King claymeth the Dutchie of Savoye, first because his father's mother was elder syster to the Duke of Savoye, the which countrey is not under the law salike, but wemen in their inheritance succede before the menn in case they be elder thin the menn, as the cronicles witenesse.

Secondarilie, the King saith his father claymeth the succession of his mother, who for all she was eldest child yet had she not a foote of ground of that herr heritage.

Thirdlie, the King as tutor to Mons^r de Nemours' children, who was brother to the late King Fraunces' mother and to the Duke of Savoy, requireth that the children may be better looked to and recompensed, alleaging that the part or portion that was geven their father is nothing reasonable.

Furthermore, as towching the countrey of Piemont, the king saith that King René of Anger [Anjou], Erle of Province, did but laye in mortgage for a certain time for a sum of money lent to him upon it to make a journey to Naples. And the cronicles themselves make mention that Piemont and the countie of Nice, laid in gage for the said money, have alwais bine in the patrimonie of Province, which was geven to King Lewes the XIth and other kings his successors. Wherupon the French kings as erles of Province have come by these countreys of Piemont and Nice, and such as injoye these countreys are their vassalls. And the Duke of Savoy nor his sonn hathe not bine willing to conquerr them again.

OF THE STATE OF LORRAIGN.

Concerning the House of Lorraine ye must understand it is descended from Godfray de Bullion, that conquered the realm of Jherusalem.

This House hathe bine aliéde as well to the Howses of Fraunce, England, and Austriche as to the House of Anger. They have injoyed Province, Piemont, and th'erldom of Nice. And the House of Savoy hathe not to do with Piemont but onlie for lending of money to King René of Anger, who borrowed it to drive owt the Arragonesse owt of his kingdommes of Naples and Sicilia.

Of the Howses of Anger and Lorraine restethe onlie heyre René of Lorraine,¹ father unto the late Anthonye of Lorraine, and Lion after the deathe of his father Claudius of Lorraine, which was called by the name of Guise.

Jhon of Lorraine, which was called Cardinall of Lorraine, great frend to the late King Fraunces. Lewes of Lorraine, which was Count of Vaudemont and was poysoned at Naples with Mons^r de

Lautrec, and Fraunces of Lorraine, that died at the battaile of Pavia.

Anthonye of Lorraine, that was Duke of the countrey and chief of the armes, married the syster of the Duke of Burbon that fledd owt of Fraunce, and had by herr Fraunces of Lorraine, father to the yong Duke of Lorraine, Count of Vaudemont.

The maner of Fraunce is that after the descease of the father, his landes and gooddes are equallye dyvided unto his children: the stile and title of honor (yf it bee a prince or a mann of honor) onlie reserved to the eldest sonn, with a litle peece of land besides the siniorye for superioritie's sake, called in French 'vole de chappon': that is to say, as muche as a capon is able to flee at a flight, which is a verie small matter. And so much hathe the elder brother now then the yonger brethren.

At the beginning of this yere Sir Henry Sidnay cam to the Frenche Cowrt (being than in the citie of Paris at the Lover) [Louvre], sent by the King and his counsell to move a peace betwext him and th'Emperor, and to th'Emperor's Court for the like entent was sent Sir Andrew Dudleye. And after his answere geven him he retourned again into England withowt having done anie thing in the matter.

The xiiijth of Februarij Duke Horatio Farnese was married to the French King's bastard dowghter, which was a verie honorable and solemn mariage. The feast was kept in the house of Burbon, not farr from the Lover, in the which was a great halle hanged with faire tapistrie, upon the whiche were sett uppe sundrie scutthions of the armes of Fraunce, Orleans, Farnese, and Urbin; and among them were certain tables with these inscriptions in them in grete letters:—

At this mariage besides the King and the Quene and the Ladie Margaret, the King's syster, there were that were latlie com from the defense of Metz bothe pryncs and other lords, as the Duke of Guise and Marquess of Beef, his brother, Mons^r d'Anguien, Loys Mons^r his brother, Mons^r de Nevers, Mons^r de Namours, Mons^r d'Ambugny, also the Cardinall of Roane, the Prince of Ferrara,

After I had taried in Fraunce the space of ix monthes and settled my self to my studie, I receaved letters from my brother to repaire ymmediatlie upon the sight therof unto him, being appointed with my lord the Bisshopp of Norwiche ¹ commissioner and ambassador towards th'Emperor on the King's Majesty's behalf.

And as they went into Flaunders so there cam into Fraunce Doctor Wotton ² and Sir Thomas Chaloner, ³ to entreate a peace betwext these two princes, where they laboured a long time with-owt anie good doing in that behalf on eyther partie.

Here I arrived the xxij of Aprill.

I found my Lord of Norwiche, my brother, and Sir Richard Morisin¹ here, newlie settled together, attending for audience with th'Emperor, whose astate was so uncertainlie spoken of abroode that no man could for a great space gather by anie meanes the truthe in what case he was. For not a fewe thought plainlie by sundrie probable imaginations that he was dead. Manie beleaved he was owt of his right witts and that his senses failed him. Sum affirmed (as it was indede) that by the continuance of his infirmitie, encreasing rather dailie upon him then diminsshing, he was browght in such case not able to be spoken withall. At lengthe, I being appointed to sollicite the matter with the Bisshoppe of Arras for them all, they had verie favorable audience the viij of June, contrarie to all menne's expectation, which thought him not in case able to attend to audience. He was indede verie feeble of his bodie and pale of his face; sitting in a chaier, laijng his feet uppon an other lesser abowt a foote or more from the grownd. He declared him self verie reformabl and flexible to this the King's Majesty's most godlie entent, but the French demaunds werr so farr owt of the way and so unreasonable that he could not of his honor condescend to a peace.

Cardinall Dandino arrived in Brusselles the xv of Maij, legate from the Pope for the verie same effect and purpose, which had his audience the daye after owr commissioners. And as he cam to the Emperor, so Cardinall Capo de Ferro was sent into Fraunce.

About this time was Tournane [Térouenne] and Hesdin taken by the Emperor's armie, wherein were manie noblemen and gentlemen of Fraunce, and especiallie in Hesdin, where Duke Horatio, that had this yere married the King's dawghter, and the Duke of Bullion with dyverse other were slaine, to the no small discomfiture of the French partie.

The vth of July the Prince of Piemont departed owt of Brusselles towards the campe as generall over th'Emperor's armye, with whom went Mr. Willam Pelham, who was retayned in wages by the ladie Regent, and did him great good service in his campe, my brother being a suter unto him for him.

At this season was Montalcino beseaged by th'Emperor's armie in Italie, Don Pietro di Toledo, vicere of Naples, being generall. The towne was marvellouslie defended by the French partie, captain wherof was Ascanio della Corna, who chaunced afterward to be taken in those parties prisoner, and was committed to the galies. Don Pietro died there, and Don Garzia, his sonn, succeeded him in his charge.

Newes cam to the Cowrt of the great battell betwext Duke Maurice and Marquess Albert, which encreased joye on all sides.

The xith of July there arrived in Brusselles Sommersett, heralt at armes, with the heavie newes of the King's deathe, who died upon Thursday, the vi of this monethe.¹

And the xvj of the same the commissioners had audience with th'Emperor in morning apparelle, unto whom they declared these heavie newes, according to the tenor of their letters from the Counsell.

The xixth July th'Emperor sent for the commissioners, declaring unto them that he understoode they went abowt in England to dispossess the Ladie Marie, his kinswoman, of the realm, to whom it belonged after the descease of the King. And sith she was made heire apparrant unto the King bothe by the will of herr father and also by Act of Parlement, they shuld not deprive herr of this herr right by the private affection of a fewe parsonnes, and without just cause whie. Wherupon he demaunded of them what shuld be th'occasion of it and upon what consideration it was done. Wherunto they answered the matter was unknowen to them, and the occasion whie it shuld so bee. Notwithstanding there was at their cumming furthe of their doores towards his Majesty a gentlman arrived in post owt of England which may chaunce to have browght with him in his letters from the Counsell somewhat where bye to answeere his Majesty in that behalf, the whiche for lacke of time they had not as then looked upon. And thus they departed.

Mr. Shelley² taried abowt a ix or x daies for audience with th'Emperor on the Ladie Jane's behalf, which before his setting furthe of England was proclaimed Quene. But after he understood for certaintie that the Ladie Mary had obtayned herr right and was proclaimed Quene of England, he departed again without eyther delivering of his letters of credence or speaking with the Emperor according to his commission.

Upon Friday, the xvijth of August, my Lord Warden, Sir Thos. Cheyney,¹ arrived in Brusselles, accompanied with Sir Anthonie Browne,² Sir Jhon Parat, Mr. Crippes, Mr. Henry Poole, Mr. Harvie, Mr. William Thomas, which was with us before, and went into England to tarie a space there, and Mr. Norrye, heralt at armes. Uppon Sonday folowing he and the rest of the commissioners had audience with th'Emperor.

Wheras it was appointed in the King's dayes that my brother shuld have succeeded Mr. Morisin in his room to have bine resident with th'Emperor, it was now the Quene's pleaser to have the Bisshoppe of Norwich tarie there. And likewise Dr. Wotton in Fraunce, to succeade Sir William Pickering for Mr. Chaloner.

The xxiiijth of August the Quene of Hungary, regent of Flaunders, made unto my Lord Warden and the rest of the commissioners a sumptuous and costlie diner; and ij dayes after they departed with all their companie towards England, leaving the Bisshoppe of Norwiche behind with th'Emperor. The iiij^d of September we arrived at the Court in Richmont, the which daye being Sondaye the Lord Cowrtney, latlie before delyvered owt of the towre, was created Erle of Devonshire, being ledd betwext the Erle of Arundle, Lord Steward of the Quene's house, and the Erle of Shrewesbery.

Here spake they with the Quene's Majesty, shewing herr their rewardes geven them by th'Emperor. The Lord Warden a cheine of ij^m crownes, my brother and Sir Richard Morisin two chaynes of on thowsand crownes the peece.

Uppon Sonday the first daye of Octobre was herr Grace crowned solemplic in Westminster Church by the Bisshoppe of Wynchester, latlie before delyvered owt of the towre, with th'assistance of all the nobilitie of the realm, which sware fealtie and homage unto herr Majesty, everie nobleman in his degree, beginning at the Bisshoppe of Winchester and the Duke of Norfolke and ending at the Lord Pagett, then yongest baronn.

At this coronation were manie bisshoppes, the most part of them restored verie latlie to their bisshoppricks again; and also a great companie of noble wemen, as the Ladie Elizabeth, the Ladie Ann of Cleve, the Dutchess of Norfolk, the Marquess of Exeter, the Marquess of Winchester, and almost all other countesses and noble menne's wyves of the realm, with a number of knights' wyves.

The coronation Mass and other ceremonies endured from x a'clocke in the morning untill iij and past in the afternoone.

This yere were condemned and suffred death¹ the Duke of Northumberland, Sir Jhon Gats, Sir Thomas Palmer; and arraigned and condemned the Lord Marquess of Northampton, the Duk's fyve sonnes, the Bisshopp of Canterburye, the Ladie Jane, Sir Androw Dudley, and Sir Henry Gats.

The example of constancie and verie mirrour of true magnanimitie in these owr daies to all princes,² died this yere Jhon Fridericke, Duke of Saxonie, a mann for his singular virtues, faithfull meaning, and true dealing with all menn, no less praysed emong his ennemies than his lyff missed emong his frendes, and lamented of bothe. And such a on as with stowtnes of mind alwais prefarred an uncorrupt and stedfast lyving before the continuall threatenings of a shamefull death, whiche he was manie times nige unto. So that neyther threatnings nor faire promises of libertie or great worldlie siniories were of anie force at all to make his mind and conscience to annye manne's appetite or desire flexible or easie to be entreated.

My brother was this yere commaunded to make himself readie to goo in commission with the Erle of Bedford to conduct the Prince of Spaine into England; but that determination of the Quene's and the Counsell's of this jorney of his was no more spoken of after Sir Thomas Wiatt was onse uppe in Kent, who at Temple Barr yelded himself to Sir Morice Barklet uppon Ash Wenesday, and afterward³ he, the Duke of Suffolke, the Lord Thomas his brother, the Lord Gylford, and the Ladie Jane lost their heads.

During the time of the Ladie Jane's imprisonment in the Towre there visited herr manie times Fecknam, with sundrie other, to convert herr to the faithe of the Catholike Church, bourding² herr to renounce herr true and Christian faithe. And among other times they had this communication together, written and penned with her owne hand:—

A DIALOGUE OF THE COMMUNICATION BETWEXT THE LADIE JANE DUDDLEY AND MR. FECKNAM.³

‘FECK. What thing is required in a Christian?

‘JANE. To beleave in God the Father, in God the Sonn, and in God the Holie Ghost, iij parsonnes and on God.

‘FECK. Is there nothing elles required in a Christian but to beleave in God?

‘JANE. Yes: we must beleave in Him, we must love Him with all owr sowle and all owr mind, and owr neighbor as owr self.

‘FECK. Whye then faith onlie justifieth not nor saveth not?

‘JANE. Yes, verilie; faith (as St. Paule saith) onlie justifieth.

‘FECK. Why St. Paul saith that yf I have all faith withowt love it is nothing.

‘JANE. True it is. For how cann I love him in whom I trust not, or how cann I trust in him whom I love not? Faith and love goo bothe together, and yet love is comprehended in faith.

‘FECK. How shall we love owr neighbor?

‘JANE. To love owr neighbor is to feade the hungrie, clothe the naked, and give drinke to the thirstie, and to do to him as we wold to owr selves.

² ‘Bourding.’ To bourd, to say things mockingly (Murray).

³ This dialogue between Lady Jane and Fecknam has been printed by Foxe in his Acts and Monuments. I have noted where there is any material difference between the two versions.

‘JANE. I denie that, and I affirm that faith onlie saveth; but it is meete for a Christian in token that he folowethe his Master Christ to do good works; yet we may not say that they proffitt unto salvation, for when we have all done we be unprofitable servants, and the faith onlie in Christe’s Bloode saveth.

‘FECK. How manie sacraments bee there?

‘JANE. Two, the one of the sacrament of Baptism and the other of the Lorde’s Supper.

‘FECK. No, there be seven.

‘JANE. By what Scripture find yow that?

‘FECK. Well, we will talke therof hereafter. But what is the signification of your ij sacraments?

‘JANE. By the sacrament of Baptism I am wasshed with water and regenerated by the Spirit, and that wasshing is a token to me that I am the child of God. The sacrament of the Lord’s Supper is offred unto me as a sure seale and testimonie that I am by the Blood of Christ, which He shed for me on the Cross, made partaker of the everlasting kingdom.

‘FECK. Whie, what do yow receave in that Supper? Do ye not receave the verie Bodie and Blood of Christ?

‘JANE. No, verilie I do not beleave so. I think that at that supper I receave neyther fleshe nor blood, but onlie bread and wine. The which bread when it is broken and the wine when it is drunken puttethe me in mind how that for my sinnes the bodie of Christ was broken and His Blood shed on the Cross, and with that bread and wine I receave the benefitts that com by the breaking of his bodie and the shedding of His blood on the Cross for my sinnes.

‘FECK. Whie dothe Christ speake these woordes, “Take, eate: this is My Bodie”? Require we anie plainer woordes? Dothe not He say that is His Bodie?

‘JANE. I graunt He saith so. And so he saith, “I am the vine,” and, “I am the dore.” But is He ever the more for that the dore or a vine? Doth not St. Paul say that he callethe those things that are not as thowghe they were? God forbid that I shuld say that I eate the verie naturall Bodie and Blood of Christ. For then eyther I shuld plucke awaye my redemption, eyther elles there were ij bodies, or ij Christes, or elles xij bodies.¹ On bodie was tourmented uppon the Cross, and then yf they did eate an other, than eyther He had ij bodies, eyther elles, yf His Bodie were eaten, it was not broken uppon the Cross. Or elles yf His Bodie were broken uppon the Cross it was not eaten of His disciples.

‘FECK. Whie is it not as possible that Christ by His power could make His Bodie bothe to be eaten and broken, as to bee born of a woman withowt the seede of man, and as to walke uppon the sees having a bodie, and other such like miracles as He wrought by His power onlie ?

‘JANE. Yes, verilie, yf God wold have done at His Supper a miracle He might have doone so. But I say that then He minded to worke no miracle, but onlie to breake His Bodie and shed His Blood on the Cross for our sinnes. But I pray yow answere me this on question. Where was Christ whan He said, “Take, eate : this is My Bodie” ? Was He not at the table when He said so ? He was at that time alive, and suffrid not untill the next daie. Well, what tooke He but bread ? what breake He but bread ? and what gave He but bread ? Looke, what He tooke He brake ; and looke, what He brake He gave ; and looke, what He gave they did eate. And yet all this while He Himself was at supper before His disciples, or elles they were desceaved.

‘FECK. Yow ground your faith uppon such authores as saye and unsay both with a breth, and not uppon the Church to whom you owght to geve credit.

‘JANE. No, I ground my faith uppon Godde’s woord and not uppon the Church. For yf the Church be a good Church the faith of the Church must be tried by Godde’s woord, and not Godde’s woord by the Church¹ bicause of antiquitie. Or shall I geve credit to the Church that taketh awaye from me the half part of the Lorde’s Supper and will not lett no lay mann receave it in bothe kindes² but themselves ? Which thing yf they denie to us they denie part of owr salvation. And I say that is an yll church and not the spouse of Christ, but the spouse of the Devell. Yt alterethe the Lord’s Supper and bothe takethe from yt and addeth to yt. To that Church I say God will add plagues, and from that Church will He take part owt of the booke of lief. Do they learn that of St. Paul, when he ministred it to the Corinthians in bothe kindes? Shall I beleave that Church? God forbedd.

‘FECK. That was done of a good entent of the Church to avoid an heresie that sprong of yt.

‘JANE. Whie shall the Churche altre Godde’s Will and ordinance for a good entent? How did King Saule? The Lord defend.

‘With these and such like persuasions he wold have me to have leaned to the Church. But it wold not bee. There were manie mo things wherof we reasoned, but these bee the chief.

‘JANE DUDDLEY.’

CATHARINE HER SYSTER.¹

‘I have here sent yow, good syster Catharin, a booke, which althowghe it bee not owtwardlie trymmed with gold, yet inwardlie it is more woorthye then precious stones. It is the booke, deere systir, of the lawe of the Lord. It is His Testament and last will which He bequethed to us wretches, which shall leade yow to² an ymmortall and everlasting lief. Yt will teach yow to live, and learn yow to die. Yt shall wynn yow more than yow shuld have gayned by the possession of your wofull father’s landes. For as yf God had prospered him yow shuld have enhereted his landes. So yf yow applie diligentlie this booke, seeking to direct your lief after it, yow shall be an enhereter of such richness as neyther the covetous shall withdrawe from yow neyther the theves shall steale, neyther yet moothes corrupt. Desire with David, good syster, to understand the lawe of the Lord your God. Lyve still to die, that yow by death may purchase eternall lief. And trust not that the tendernes of your age shall lengthen your lief. For assone (yf

Bee penitent for your sinnes and yet desparre not. Be strong in faith and yet presume not. And desire with St. Poul to be dissolved and to be with Christ, with whom even in death there is lief. Be like the good servant, and even at midnight be waking, lest when death commethe and stealethe uppon yow like a thief in the night yow be with the evell servaunt found asleepe, and leaste for lacke of oyle yow be found like to the five foolish women, and like him that had not on the wedding garment, and than yow be cast owt from the mariage.

‘Rejoice in Christ, as I trust I do; and seing yow have the name of a Christian as nere as yow can follow the steppes¹ of your Master Christ, and take upp your Cross. Laye your sinnes uppon His backe, and alwais imbrace Him. And as towching my death, rejoice, as I do, good syster, that I shall be delivered of this corruption and put on incorruption. For I am assured that I shall for losing of a mortall lief wynn an immortall lief, the whiche I pray God graunt yow and send yow of His grace to live in His feare, and to die in the true Christian faith; from the which in Godde’s name I exhort yow that yow never swarve, neyther for hoope of lief nor for feare of death; for yf yow will denie His truthe to lengthen your lief, God will denie yow and yet shorten your dayes. But if you will cleave to Him He will prolong your dayes to your comfort and His glory, to the which glory God bring me now, and yow hereafter, when it shall please God to call yow. Fare well, good syster, and put your onlie trust in God, who only must help yow.

‘Your loving syster, JANE DUDDLEY.’

THE TOWRE BEFORE SHE SUFFRID.

‘Good Christian people, I am under a law, and am condempned by a lawe, wherfor I am com hither for to die, desiring yow all to pray for me. And I take God to witness that I never offended the Quene’s Majesty willinglie, but onlie in taking uppon me this thing, the which I was compelled to against my will, and here I washe my hands of my innocencie, desiring yow all to wittniss with me. But I have offended God dyvers and manie wayes in breking His will and commaundments, seeking more the pleasure of this woorld than the following of Godde's commaundment, wherfor God hathe stricken me with this plague for my unthankfullnes towardes His Majestie. But now I am hartelie sorie for my misdeades, beseeching Almightye God to take me unto His mercie, and bring me furth of this wretched lief unto the joyes everlasting of heaven.' And the people said, 'Amen.'

'Good Christian people, I besech you beare me wittness that I die a true Christian in the faith of Jesus Christ, geving Him most hartie thanks that it hath pleased Him to lett me have time to repent me of my former lief, trusting to be saved by the Blood of Christ.' So she desired the people to pray for herr, and said the psalm of Miserere. And when her head was on the blocke she said, 'Lord receave my soule into Thy hands,' taking her death most humblie, like unto a lambe.

She died the 12th of February, and likewise the Lord Guilford.

And in the later end of July he returned to the service of the French King again, accompanied with xxx horses.

Here we found the King of Romanes¹ with the Archduke Charles, his youngest sonn, at the Diet (which had continued long before), bothe for the uniting of Germanie in religion and for aiding th'Emperor and the King against the commune ennemie, the truce being now expired.

The princes that were at this Diet, by their agents and not on in person, stode exceeding much upon their religion, which was the onlie point and stay therof, bearing in mind the Diet had at Passa by the King and the Duke Maurice, and the conclusions there agreede upon, bothe in the Emperor's and in the Empire's behalf, as in the yere 1552.

Here, the first of September, my brother spake with the King, who gave him gentle audience. In this diet was entreated also by the stats of th'Empire that Protestants shuld be intermedled with the rest of the Chamber of th'Empire, to th'entent that all shuld not consist in the Papists' hands onlie, concerning rule and government towching the astate of th'ole Empire.

Also that the bando imperial to banishe and exile within the precinct of th'Empire, and to confiscat their goodes that trespass, shuld not be withowt the authoritie and consent of the Princes Electors; least for everie trifling cause of displeaser menn shuld be banished owt of th'Empire.

It was furthermore decreed that enie parson, of what condition soever he be of, that will forsake Poperie and becum a Protestant shuld depart owt of the countrey he dwellethe in, in saftie with his goodes and lyving, to remaine where he lustethe within the Empire, and in this decree was containned the King's own countrey of Austria, and belongethe as well to prests as to the laytie, saving that priests shall not enjoye their stipend and revenue yf they forsake their prishood, but onlie their movables.

The xxvi of September the Diet ended with an oration made by the King for a small conclusion of the same unto the stats there assembled in the towne house after the maner.

And the first day of Marche the princes themselves promised to meet the King at Ratisbona at an other Diet for farther matters at the King's request, who the day after his oration made departed owt of the citie of Auspurg towards Inspruck, there to remaine during this wynter.

A league from this towne the Mose and the Wall meete bothe in on, and at a village called Herwart [Heerwaarden], less than an English mile from the place where th'on cummeth into th'other, they depart again, eche of them his owne waye. And from thense we cam downe the Mose (leaving the Wall on the right hand) the space of two leagues, where we entred into a great ditch that browght us against the streame owt of the Mose unto Hertzogenbuss, a league in lengthe, which is on of the cheffest townes in Brabant.

θ From Tiel to Hertzogenbuss, Host iiij^{le}

Here we sold owr bote and rod by land to Antwerpe.

As we cam downe the Rhine we passed manie custom houses, where all bottes of marchandises, uppon paine of deathe, must pay their custome and toll, and are from Mentz downward xxj.

After ix dayes' abode in this citie we departed from thense to Brusselles, where the Erle of Devonshire was taking his journey toward Italy, and the Lord Hastings into England.

About Allhaloutide Mr. Michel Blount, Mr. Skidmore, Kemis, and I departed from Antwerp toward England. From London I went to Evesham,¹ and there lay a season, untill my brother cam thither.

This yere died the Bisshopp of Winchester, Stepan Gardiner, Chaunceler of England; and great persecution there was for Godd's Woorde.

About Candlemas cam my brother to London out of Flaunders, and shortlie after tooke his journey into Worcestershire; at his departure thens I went with him to Bissham, which was at Easter.

This yere were Peckham, John Throgmorton, Daniell, and certain other hanged for treason.

In the Whiteson weeke I returned to Evesham, where the Bisshopp of Worcester cam shortlie after in visitation to set up imags, etc.

In Lent I cam to Bissham, there to continew. At Midsommer cam to Bissham Sir William Cecill, my Lady Bourn, my Lady Cecill, with her sister, Elizabeth Cooke. Immediatlie after their departure thens tooke my brother his journey toward Evesham, and from thens to Bathe. I remained at home to see his new building go forward.³

Upon Christmas Day I fell sick of a burning fever, which helde me till Twelf Day.

³ The 'new building' to which reference is here made was not completed till 1561. It no doubt included most of the Tudor work on the north and south of the Hall. In the Tapestry Room, south of the Hall, the arms of Thomas Hoby, impaled with those of his wife, are carved over the fireplace.

Upon Twelfday was Calice lost, where they within were taken prisoners, and Sir Anthony Aucher, Knight Marshall, slaine with his eldest sonn, Jhon.

The xvij of Aprill my brother Philipp went from Bissham to London, there to seek the aide of phisitions, where he made his last will and testament, and made disposition of all his lands and goodds.

The xi of Maij I came to London, being sent for to set my hand to a recognisance, and retourned again the xij, taking my way by Wimblton, where I communed with M^{rs} Elizabeth Cook in the way of mariage.

Whitesonday, the xxix of May, departed my brother out of this lief to a better, at iij a clock in the morning, leaving his executors, Sir William Cecill, Sir Richard Blount, and me, who took upon me after the will ¹ was proved the administration of his gooddes.

The ixth day of June he was buried at Bissham, being conveyed thither by water.

Monday the xxvij of June, the mariage was made and solemnised betweene me and Elizabeth Cooke, daughter of Sir Anthony Cooke, knight. The same day was also her syster Margaret, the Quene's maide, married to Sir Rauf Rowlet, knight, who shortlie after departed out of this lief.

The rest of this sommer my wief and I passed at Burleighe, in Northamptonshire.

At Michelmas was I at the findinge of my brother's office at Worcester. From thens I retourned to London, where I founde my wief newly retourned out of Northamptonshire.

The xvij of Novembre died Quene Mary betweene vj and vij of the clock in the morning, and betwene ix and x was proclaimed at Westminster the Lady Elizabeth, Quene of England, France, and Ireland. The same day died Cardinall Poole, betwene vij and viij at night, who had brought up all poperie again in England.

This yere died also Charles the Vth, Emperour, and in his place was elected Ferdinando, his brother.

Upon Christmas Day fell I sick of a sore plewrisie.

This yeer cam to the Court Mons^r Monmerency, the Constable's eldest sonn, to confirm the peac betwene England and France.

The Queene was visited with sundrie messagers from great princes, as th'Emperor, the King of Suevia,¹ and divers other.

The viii day of July I came to Bissham with my wief, there to remaine.

The ix day of August I entred into a siknes that continued upon me the space of iiij weeks.

The xij of November my wief went from Bissham to London, and there continued iiij weeks in phisicke for her great belly, which was supposed to have bine a timpanie or dropsie.

The xx day of March was my wief, at midnight, delivered of a boy, being Wenesday.

The iiijth of Aprill he was christened and named Edward. Godfathers and godmother were the Lord Windesore, the Lord Darcie, and the Lady Williams of Ricot.

The xiiij day of Maij my brother Richard married.

The iiij of June was Sir Nicholas Bakon, Lord Keeper of the Greate Seale, and Sir Anthony Cooke, my father in law, at Bissham.

The xxv day of August died my Lady Hoby, late wief to my brother Sir Philip Hoby.

The xxx of the same the justics of the shire meat the Queene at Bagshot, comming toward Windsore.

The viij day of September dined at Bissham the Lord Marques of Northampton, the Erles of Arundell and Hertford, the Lord Cobham, the Lord Henry Seimer, Sir Roger Northe, the Lady Katharin Grey, Lady Jane Seimer, the Lady Cecill, M^{rs} Blaunch Apparry, M^{rs} Mannsfeld, the Queene's maids.

The xx of the same I departed toward Evesham and taried there xv daies.

The v of Noviember I removed from Bissham to London, and there remained xiiij weeks.

There continewed for vj weeks in the Deane of Powle's house, sent from the Lords of Scotland, the Lord James Duglas, Erle of Moorton, the Lord Alexander Keningham [Cunningham], Erle of Glen Kerne [Glencairn], and the Lord William Matland of Ludington [Leithington], with an honorable traine, emong other things, to be as suters for the Erle of Arrane to the Queen's Majestie. At which time died the yonge French King, the Scottishe Queene's husband.

All this yere there was great suspicion of warres betwene Fraunce and England, bicause of the sieg of Lyth [Leith] against the French in Scotland, and the taking of the same, but after the French King's death this suspicion ceased.

The iiij day of June Powle's steple and the churche set on fire and burnt with lightning.

The xxvij day of Maij was my wief delivered of a wenche betwene vj and vij of the clocke, at afternoone.

The xxxj of Maij she was christened and named Elizabethe. Godmothers and godfather were the Lady Fraunces Gresham, the Lady Elizabeth Nevell, and Mr. Jhon Doyle, Esquier.

This yere were the garden and orchard planted at Bissham, and the gallery made with noble men's armes, etc.

This yeere was the water brought in lead from Puddings¹ to the house, and the fountain placed in the garden at Bissham.

Christened the xixth of the same, Mr. Deane of Westminster ¹ being godfather, Mr. Thomas Throgmorton's wief and her aunt Katharin Cooke godmothers.

PREFACE

THE accompanying Narrative and Correspondence have recently been acquired by the British Museum, and are now to be found in 'Additional MSS.' 35, 251, fol. 26, &c. Imperfect as these papers are, they throw strong light on the relations between Rupert and the King of Portugal, proving beyond doubt that the latter had deliberately arranged for the reception of the Prince's fleet and for giving to the port of Lisbon a character hostile to the Commonwealth.

PRINCE RUPERT AT LISBON

HAPPENED BETWEEN THE KING OF PORTUGALL AND HIS MINISTERS ON THE BEHALFE OF THE KING OF GREAT BRITTAINE
AFTER THE ARRIVALL OF HIS MA^{ty} THE KING OF GREAT BRITTAINE HIS FLEET IN THE PORT OF LISBOA.

HIS Highnesse Prince Rupert comming into the said port, with his sayd Ma^{tye} the King of Great Brittaines his fleet, about the end of November in the yeare 1649 was there at first receaved and entertayn'd with all possible expressions of love & frendshippe,¹ and to omitt such passages as are nothing materiall or pertinent to the purpose we intend—at his very first arrivall there, was sent unto him by the king's command a certaine paper signed by the Secretary of State, containing certaine articles of treaty and agreement concluded on betweene his said Majesty the King of Portugall,² and one S^r Arnold Dulisle on the behalfe of the King of great Brittain about the liberty of portes for the fleet of his said Ma^{tye} King of great Brittain in the Dominion of his said Ma^{ty} the King of Portugall; in which paper among others these Articles following were assented to,

That his said Ma^{ty}s the King of Great Brittaines's fleete under the command of his Highnesse Prince Rupert should have the libertie and protection of the portes of the kingdom of Portugall during all the time he should thinke fitt to stay there.

should have power to make adjudication of such prizes as should be taken at sea by his Ma^{ty}s fleete; and after such adjudication to sell and dispose of the same, in any of the portes of the Kingdome of Portugall.

That no inquisition should be made in what fashion or upon what titles they brought any such goodes to be sold, because it doth not belong to his majestie (the King of Portugall) or his ministers to judge of the qualities or titles of merchandizes which confederate nations with that Crowne doe bring to sell in the ports thereof.

That in case any shippes belonging to the enemies of his said Ma^{ty} the King of Great Brittain, should happen to come to any of the said ports, whilst his said Ma^{ty}s fleete was there, they should be detained in the said harbour three naturall dayes, after his said Majestie's the King of Great Brittain his fleete was put to sea: See the treaty at large in Charta A.¹

Upon the assurance of this agreement the Judge of the Admiraltie for his Ma^{ty} the King of Great Brittain did legally proceed against certaine shippes surprized by his said Ma^{ty}s fleete in the open sea, and with it brought into the Port of Lisbon; and after . . . [dis]cussion and examination of the businesse all formall[ities o]f law being duly observed condemned them and the goods in th[em] as lawfull prizes to his Ma^{ty} the King of Great Brittain: saving onely that he ordered all such goods aboard a certaine shippe of London called the Roebucke, bound from Brasile to Lisboa (but in the way intercepted by his Majesties fleete) as did belong to Portuguez, or such English as had beene ancient inhabitants in Portugall, and had no trade or commerce with the Rebells of England contrary to his Ma^{ty}s proclamations, should be restored to them.

After these sentences were given there passed a decree from the said Judge to give possession of the said shippes and goodes for condemned and confiscated as aforesaid, to his Highnesse Prince Rupert as his Ma^{ty}s speciall assignee in that behalfe; for him to sell and dispose of the same for his Ma^{ty}s use as he should think fitt. And his Highnesse Prince Rupert in vertue thereof did contract and agree with certaine Portuguez merchantes for the taking all the said goods of his hands at certaine sales betweene them concluded on:

See the agreement betweene the Prince and the Portuguese merchants.

Whilst this businesse of the saile of the goods was in agitation there came a letter from the Secretary of State to the Prince his Highnesse bearing date the 23 of December 1649 demanding restitution of the shippe the Roebucke; upon pretence that it was a shippe in the immediate service of the King of Portugall, and therefore ought to bee as free as one of his owne shippes; upon the receipt of which letter his Highnesse gave command to the Judge of the Admiraltie forthwith to draw up a paper in Latine, to shew the grounds upon which he had condemned it; that so he might send it to the Secretary of State to give him satisfaction in that particular, which was accordingly done. And the point in controversy cleerly evinced; that the King of Portugall had no manner of interest in the said shippe, but that the shippe did belong to divers inhabitants of the City of London, and that the profit of the freight, and a great part of the lading was to be accountable to them.

See this letter and the answeare thereunto Charta B. the 1 and 2.¹

This answeare was sent in a letter written by the Secretary of State, and the letter contained words to th[is ef]fect; That by the Paper inclosed it might be seen [on what gr]ounds the said shippe, the Roebucke was adjudged . . . to his Ma^{tie} the King of Great Brittain; That in regard his said Ma^{tie} had now a legall title to the said shippe, his Highnesse could not alienate it, without giving an accompt to his Majestie, why he did it. Howbeit notwithstanding any thinge contained in the said paper if his Ma^{tie} the King of Portugall would affirme under his hand, that the said shippe was immediately in his service, or that he desired it might be restored for his sake his Highnesse would immediately restore it, but his Highnesse never received any answeare from the Secretary or any else; either to the said letter or to the paper inclosed.

On the seven and twentieth of January following,² the Secretary did write another letter to his Highnesse, wherein he doth declare, that the interested in the shippes and goods his Highnesse tooke, and those which follow the voice of the Parliament (to hinder the disposall of those goods in this Port) had required Justice of his Ma^{ty} in an ordinary way and that it was impossible for his Ma^{ty} to hinder them but that he would rather be forced to give leave to his tribunals to make use of their jurisdictions, the causes for it being great and the inconveniencies, which by the contrary may happen to unquiet the welfare of the Kingdome being evident, that the Kingdome beganne to present to his Ma^{ty} with great resentment that by no meanes he doe any offence to the Parliament by reason of the damage that thereby might result to their commerce with them, nor to alter the ancient lawes and rites, especially by the prejudice of a third person. That therfore his Ma^{ty} had commanded him to give notice to his Highnesse before he came to imbarque¹ and sequester the goods and to apprehend and proceed against the buyers to gather together his shippes and to procure his speedy departure with all brevities. There weere other things besides inserted in the letter; which are purposely omitted, by reason this is the substance of all that is materiall, and the rest but additional circumstances to it.

See this letter at large, Charta C.²

Upon the rumor of such a letter sent by the Kings command to his Highnesse, (for the interested marchantes to whome his Highnesse gave liberty to goe on shoare, and those of the Rebels in the citty had divulg'd it as much as they could) The Portuguez Marchants that had bought all and receaved part of their goods, (although they had not given full satisfaction for what they had receaved) fly from their bargaine, and would neither receive the remainder nor pay for what they had; in so much that his Highnesse was forced to protest against them, for all the damage he should sustaine by this meanes; and the ordinary tradesmen with whome his [Highnesse by] his officers had to doe for the victualling & furnishing of their shippes [takin]g example by the Portuguez Marchants that had contracted for the goods would not part with any thinge out of their hands but for ready money, so that his Highnesse neither being able to vent his goods nor to have creditt for such commodities as he had occasion to use, the setting out of the fleete was by this meanes much retarded.

His Highnesse finding himself in these streights presently addressed a letter written with his owne hand to the Secretary of State, expostulating with him therein the injuries that weere done to him ; but after some more mature deliberation, conceaving it to be a matter of higher importance, gave command that a Publique Remonstrance should be drawne in the Lattine tongue, that thereby he might give an account to the whole world how highly the Portuguez nation had broken the faith of their treaties and consultations with the King of Great Brittain, and what prejudice was done to the King of Great Brittaines affaires by reason thereof. And with all made all preparation possible to get the fleete under his command out of the port as soone as he could.

The Ministers of State to the King of Portugall having by some meanes gott intelligence of the Course his Highnesse intended, thought it most conducing to the preservation of their honnour to stope the publication of this remonstrance. And therefore before the remonstrance was fully finished, the secretary of state came in person to the Prince his Highnesse, and told him that His Ma^{tie} the King of Portugall was sorry to heare that any such interpretation should be made of the letter written by his commande, and that he should either bid his Highnesse be gone out of the port, or that he should any way intend to breake, and infringe the treaties, and capitulations that had passed betweene the two Crownes, but gave him full assurance that the said treaties and capitulations should in every point be punctually observed ;¹ upon which message his Highnesse gave order to the party that was appointed to draw the remonstrance, to desist from acting any thinge further therein.

Immediately after this his Highnesse made a complaint to the [King] of the injurie that was done him by the Portuguez March[ants . . .] of from their bargaine, and not paying him for what [they had alrea]dy receaved. Wherupon his Majestie excused himse[lf . . .] them to the full performance of their bargaine, in [. . . mer]chants did alleadge that they weer overtaken in it, and . . .²

merchants of the Cittie before him, to whom he proposed two things, first that they should all superscribe a petition to the Kinge, for the sending both the fleets (to wit) that of his Ma^{ty} under the command of his Highnesse Prince Rupert (and that of the rebells) out to sea, that they might noe longer be an hinderance, or interruption to the trade of the Cittie: but his drift being smelt out by the merchants, that by this means he hoped to engage the two fleets to a fight, the greatest part of the best and ablest of them absolutely refused to signe it, as a thing that was noe way fitting for them to meddle in, but was proper for the Kinge and his counsell to determine, to which others added that they would by noe means subscribe such a petition as might be the occasion of the effusion of soe much English blood: the other point he proposed to them was to perswade them not to pay to the now consull any more duties of Consulage, but to reserve them for him that should be appointed by the Parliament to receive them, which proposition was not only rejected by most of the merchants, but gave occasion to the consull to complayne to the Kinge of the insolencie of the man, who being noe way qualified and having noe order from the Kinge, durst perswade men to denie him those duties, which by the King of England's commission weare allowed him, and by the Kinge of Portugall's approbation confirmed and by all the marchants subscribed too: and to have them payed to such a one as should be nominated by the Parliament when the Articles of peace doe say expressly that noe Consull shall be received but such a one as is nominated by the Kinge.

Neither was M^r Vaine only busie in the contrivinge of his designes on shoare, but on board they weare as much busied in returning an answere to his Highnesse declaration; and at length there was a paper scattered up and downe the Cittie in forme of libell (for it was not owned by any mā nor directed to any) soe scurrilously invective against the Prince his person, soe audatiously boasting of the insolenses they have committed in England in [mur]theringe the late kinge, and dispossessionge his sonne, who is theyr lawfull kinge, of all the rights of his crowne, and containing soe little satisfaction to the businesse pointed at by his highnesse declaration, that if any man durst have owned it (as M^r Vaine utterly disclaimed to have had any hand in the contriving it) there would have beene means found out to have made him smart for his insolencie.

Whilest all men are amused expectinge the event of the before-mentioned debates and these other passages a French Vessell coming in to the harbour was searched and ransaked by the rebells shippes; of which misdemeanour the French agent complained to the King, who returned an answare to this purpose, that the French had only suffred a little truble in havinge theyre shippe searched, but the dishonour lay upon him that it was done in his port, but for the future he would take care that noe such thinge should be attempted; yet nevertheless on good fryday beinge the 15th of Aprill, stilo novo, 2 French men of war comminge under saile to enter into the harbour, as soone as they weare espied by the rebells fleet presently 3 of theyr frigots slipt theyr anchors and went towards them and brought them upp to theyr Admirall, the Capptaines of these 2 french vessells comminge on board weare threatned to be detayned theare, unlesse they would give them security not to joyne with P. Rupert: which they refusinge they weare actually deteined. Therupon a great complaint was made at Court by the French Agent, that his m^r beinge a confederate of the crowne of Portugall could not have his shippes goe in and out of the port without beinge examined and having conditions imposed uppon them by these rebells; and desired the Kinge to give present order for the enlargment of the Capptaines and the bringing upp of the shippes. The Kinge heighly resents the affront that was done him by the committinge these insolences in his ports, and there uppon sends a most severe and threatninge message to M^r Vaine to send downe to the Admirall forth with to release the Captaines and to permitt the shippes to come upp, otherwise they should heare of him in another manner then they had done, which command M^r Vaine undertooke to performe, and thereuppon on the Sunday following both the Capptaines and shippes weare released, and with great joy and exultation came upp to the place where the Prince his shippes lay and there cast anchor by him.

A COPY OF A PAPER WHICH MONSIEUR DELISLE, CAVALIER AND FIRST GENTLEMAN OF THE PRIVATE CHAMBER OF HIS MAJESTY OF GREAT BRITAIN, GAVE UNTO THE KING OF PORTUGALL.

In witness whereof we have underwritten this comission with our own hand, & comanded it to be signed with the seale of our arms.

The King of Portugall shall give protection & liberty to the fleet or ships of his Majesty of great Brittain, sent by his Highness Prince Rupert, & to all having his commission to cast anchor in all ports, havens, rivers & roads belonging to the King of Portugall in Europe, Africa & Indies, & other parts of the world under his subjection & dominion, & in case the said fleet or ships bring unto the said places any prizes taken from the enemies of his said Majesty of great Brittain, his majesty of Portugall shall protect & give them freedom to stay there what time they shall thinke expedient & necessary with all security, with out the molestation of any, & that in the said places they shall remain & be in the full power & entire disposing of his majesty of great Brittain & of Prince Rupert.

Such ships as are prizes or any others that are loaden with merchandises as shall be brought into any of the said places by the said fleet or any having commission from Prince Rupert, shall remain there

The contents of these said articles shall be presented to the King of Portugall, & as much as or as many of them as his Majesty shall please to grant to the King of Brittain, so much shall his Majesty of Great Brittain grant & give to his Majesty of Portugall in his dominions.

THE ANSWER WHICH HIS MAJESTY, WHOM GOD PRESERVE, COMMANDED TO BE GIVEN TO THE SAID PAPERS.

According to the capitulations of peace betwene this kingdom & England, any ships of the English nation may come & commerce in any ports of these kingdoms to the westernne Islands,¹ Tanger, & Marzagan,² & for that reason, & out of the desire his Majesty, whom god preserve, hath to give content in all things to his Majesty of great Brittain, his Majesty was pleased to send expresse advice to all the ports of this kingdom, to Algarve,³ the Islands,¹ Tanger, & Marzagan that if to any the said places should come the fleet of his Majesty of great Brittain, or any ships belonging to the said fleet, they should be received benignedly, & be suffered to sell all goods, and as many as they pleased, & by what title soever gotten, because it belongs not to his Majesty or any his Ministers to determine the legality of the title of such goods, which nations in amity & union with this kingdom bring into its ports to make sale of. And his Majesty doth further ordain that there be given for their mony into the said fleete or ships all that they shall stand of necessity of, & if in the fleete come Prince Rupert in person, his Majesty doth command that he be entertained & served with all due respect, & as long as the said fleete or ships remain in the said ports (which shall be by the time they please) his Majesty's command is they have such protection they be injured or damaged by none. And because the commerce with the conquests of this kingdome is by the laws of the land forbidden to strangers & in that conformity are the capitulations of peace & commerce with France, Sweden, Holland & other Princes with whom his Majesty had treatys, his Majesty in that poynt can grant no other thing to his Majesty of great Brittain for the prejudice of example to other Princes, who pretended the same, & were denied, as also the contradiction which the kingdom would make for breach of law in that poynt; But his Majesty doth comand all Governours of his conquests, that if the fleet of his Majesty of great Brittain or any ships thereof put into any the said ports to furnish them of necessarys, that what they want be given them, that they be well received, used & defended if they be in necessity of defence, atvertising notwithstanding they make no sayl of what they bring in, for that is to commerce, which as is above said is not in those parts permitted by the laws of the kingdom.

It remains declared that the fleete or ships shall stay in the ports mentioned in the precedent article the time they please & excepting the visit of health, & of acknowledging the ships with diligence, which diligence cannot be excused, his Majesty is pleased that their goods & what else they carry, be not visited.

As for what concerns this article & the following his Majesty's pleasure is, that the usage or treating is to be given those ships as is used with those of France, Swesia, & Holland, because it is not convenient to make a difference betwene nations that are friends & confederates.

His Majesty makes no doubt, but the officers of the admiralty or any others of his Majesty of great Brittain doe judge the prize they take as they shall think fitting, yea though it be with in the ports of this kingdom. To adjoyne or add one in his behalfe, or to intervene in any respect, ether by him selfe or ministers in such sentences, is neither necessary nor convenient.

THE REPLY MADE BY MONSIEUR DE LISLE.

In answer to the first article of the paper I presented his Majesty of Portugall, whom God preserve, was pleased to grant that during the time the ships of his Majesty of great Brittain my master should stay in his ports they should have all protection & receive no damage by any, I thought it necessary that upon their departure there should be assigned them 3 naturall days before any enemy's ships should follow after, commanding such ships to be detained the said space of time, if any such be then in the said ports.

In the 3 article touching the sayle of goods frank, & free of customes & impositions, I represent anew unto his Majesty that there in these kingdoms loose nothing, rather gain by the facillitating the coming into them of the said goods, which in France & other parts, without esteeming it a curtesie, can be sould for one or 2 in the hundred, because it is ordinary with all, neither can it be matter of consequence seeing the difference of things at present. That if any of the confederate Princes were in such straights & exigency, the king my master would not repayre at some indifferent advantage, that should be made then in that case; and if Prince Rupert his Lieutenant generall, giving order for the sayl of such merchandise as it was desired in the said article, there can be no suspition of a cosonage or fraude to steale the kings custome, such a thought can not be harboured in the brest of such a person. Of this I expect an answer such as the generousness of his Majesty, whom God preserve, doth promise.

AN ANSWER TO THIS PAPER.

I have read unto His Majesty, whom God preserve, this paper & he commands me to answer what your serenity will see in this margent.

So resolved his Majesty, & in the same conformity he will command it to be put in execution.

In this poynt his Majesty resolved that by reason of the prejudice of example to friends and confederate nations, & bycause that the customes of the Alfandega which were borne with the kingdom cannot be remitted, by reason of particular partys which have their rents & interests there, he could not nor ought not consent therein to the senoria, but having respect to the reasons you represented me by word of mouth & are touched in this paper, his Majesty will comand that whensoever goods of the said quality come in, there shall be seene what customes are payd & in respect of the quantity of them, & goods sould, will by way of grace or favour bestow upon the ships or their captains some quantitys of mony & in such proportion that their coming unto these kingdoms & selling their goods here will allways turne them to good account. So that without any hurt or offense by the inconveniencys alleadged, your senoria will still obtain & enjoy what you pretend. God keepe you.

THE PORTUGUESE SECRETARY OF STATE TO PRINCE RUPERT.

(A Cotype.)

SIR,—Juelin de Roquemond, Secretary of the French Embassye expected in this Court, in the behalfe of Prince Maurice told me of his determination to goe to sea with a party of shippes, the rest of the fleete remaininge with your Serenitye, as also of his desire before his departure to have a time allotted him to speake with his majesty. But because it is the generall report in Court, and I understand as much by the message, that Prince Maurice goes to sea to take such English shippes as follow the voyce of the parliament with intention to returne and sell his prizes, and to incorporate his forces with your Serenitye, I am constrained (as well out of my obligation to the good and service of his Majesty, as out of my ambition and desire to serve your Serenity) to tell you that this is much opposite to what was assented unto in my conference with Monsieur de Lisle by order of his Majesty, and hee if present would justify as much, and am confident will averre, where ever hee bee demanded an account; the most principal and essentiall thing I told him, was, that considering the present state of this Kingdome and its commerce it would be noe way convenient to make a warre or shew any hostility, nor yet to give any assistance or favour against those English as followe the parliament; and that his Majesty should rather equally entertaine and receive all of the English Nation, for with it hee had renewed the contracts of peace and amitye that was alwayes betweene the two nations. And upon that ground and supposition your Serenity might confidently send your shippes into these parts, to sell or buy, as all of the English nation did, and that it neyther concerned his Majesty or Ministers to determine the qualities of goods imported, nor to examine the title by which they were gott in. And your Serenitye will understand as much by the forme of the aunswere his Majesty gave Mounsier de Lisle in writing, and I sent your serenitie upon your Serenitye's first arrivall to this port. In that conformity wee proceeded, and doe proceed with your Serenities navye, but that they should in for succour and to repayre in the ports of this Kingdome, then to goe out in hostile manner against other shippes of the same nation, and to returne againe to the same ports to sell goods thus taken, then with newe succour and refreshinge, to sayle out to worke and doe them greater dammage is notorious hostilitie against the English Nation, and contrary to the amitye which the Portuguez Nation had alwayes with it; moreover it is wholye to take from this Kingdome the commerce with England, wherein not onely the King's customehouses in common, but a great part of his subjects are interested, also it is a necessitie which will enforce a considerable number of English nowe livers here to leave the cuntry: And whereas these inconveniencies, in generall and at all times are of moment and concernement, at present there is one of greater consequence, which is that his Majesty by reason of his warres with Castile, and with the Companies of Holland in his conquests, hath need of more shipping, then can bee built in this Kingdome, and therefore useth to freight them of the English nation, as of late for Brasil in the newe companies fleete for Tanger, and every daye for the succour and service of the Conquests; and supposing the premises it is evident that not one will come to Portugal not onely for the aggrivance done, but for the losse and daunger to bee taken.

Then let your Serenitye bee pleased to weigh these reasons, and with them to consider that the joye and pleasure theyr Majesties and his Highnesse conceived and demonstrated at the arrivall and sight of your Serenities, together with the applause and content wherewith all the Court doth entertaine and desire to serve you, doe deserve that your Serenities should correspond with benefits and not with our hindrance and prejudice; a thing not to bee imagined, and not sutable to the greatnesse of your Serenities.

And I thought it my dutye, as a great servant to your Serenitye, before I would deliver Prince Maurice his message to his Majestye, to communicate it to your Serenitye, and because I am certaine that his Majestye will much resent such a resolution, I begge it as a favour, that your Serenities will bee pleased to desist from it, both for what this Kingdome deserveth of you, as for the love and affection of its people to you. God have your Serenitye in his protection.

SIR,—What I told Juelin du Roquemond about the English shippe that came from Maranhão,¹ that his Majesty being pleased to command to peruse and see the complaynt made unto him for the taking of the sayd shippe, all his ministers were of opinion that your Serenetye should have restored her not soe much of favour to the sayd shippe, or satisfaction to the King in whose seas and almost in whose sight she was taken, as that the lawes of justice and amitye did soe require because shee was freighted in this port for the transportinge of two hundred families of Portuguezes from the Island of S^t Marye¹ to Maranhão to succour and populate that plantation, also carryed some amunition and other necessaryes for the defence and conservation of that state, thence returned (according to the securitye shee had given) to demonstrate how shee had performed the premises, and to bring backe the aunsweares and intelligences of the Governour, and in those respects was accounted as a ship of his Majestye, seing shee was in his service both out and homeward bound, that it was against all good amitye that one friend should take from the other the goods of such as served him, especially as long as they were in actuall service, turning that to their losses which in right should bee a benefit and utilitye, and that because his Majestye imagined your Serenitye's officers would have rayased noe doubts in a thing soe manifest, they mought have forborne to make further enquiries and diligences, informing your Serenitye of this veritye und truth.

Neyther is it materiall that this shippe carryed and brought goods of particulars, to gayne thereby her freights, for bee your Serenitye pleased to informe your selfe in the Citye, you shall find that when his Majestye doth freight shippes of strangers or natives, that his ministers may doe it with most advantage of his treasure, they first treat with the marchants that have commerce and correspondence in that Conquest for which they intend to freight, that soe the most part of the charges may lye upon such Marchants' accounts, and soe it happened with this shippe, but nevertheless, as I have already sayd, her principall employment was the King's service, otherwise shee had never gone to Maranhão; and that end or intention as principall is to be looked upon and not the accessorye and consequence of farre lesse consideration.

His Majestye will by noe means consent, that the Justice of his Majestye of Great Britaine bee prejudiced, in the same nature he cannot suffer the prejudice of his Crownes and peoples justice, as it falls out in this case notoriously, and wee beleive that the officers and ministers of your Serenitye will soe understand it, if they looke upon these reasons and informe themselves of the trueth heere alleadged, and soe command restitution of the sayd shippe, being shee can never bee held a lawefull prize. God have your Serenity in his protection. from Court, this 23 of December 1649.

SIR,—There are nowe many dayes past, since the interested in the shippes and goods taken by your Serenitye, and for the sale whereof you have contracted in this port, have required of his Majesty, whom God preserve, theyr right and justice, and, what is of greater consequence, the right of the Parlement, procuringe and endeavouringe to hinder your Serenitye from disposing of those goods in this kingdome, as it hath bin denyed to others of like condition in the countreys of Princes of nearer parentage and alliance to his Majestye of Great Britaine : And because his Majestye, desirous that your Serenitye should goe out of this port with all satisfaction, hath commanded to find out and use some meanes to aunsweare and accommodate the interested with their convenience and without offence to your Serenitye, and that nowe they the sayd interested have recourse to the Counsell and Ministers of the Crowne, requiringe an ordinary course of justice, it is impossible for his Majestye to hinder it, rather hee shall bee constrained to permitt the Courts to use their jurisdiction, to avoyde great inconveniences that by the contrary may redound prejudiciall to the quietnesse and tranquillitye of these kingdomes. With this instruction his Majesty commands mee to tell you from him, that to avoyde embargoes and the sequestration of your goods, as also the arrestinge and proceedinge against the buyers, your Serenitye should reembarke all into your shippes, and with all brevity hasten your departure, because over and above the premises, it is a busynesse much to bee repaired at, that your Serenitye being anchored in this port without power or authority in it to molest such shippes as follow the voyce of the parliament, nor theyrs to offend such as follow the voyce of his majesty of Great Britaine, should command and oblige with your Artillery such shippes as passe to strike and lower theyr flags to your Admirall, as it happened to a shippe lately departed for Italye ; and it being here an inviolable lawe and custome, that noe shippe goe out of port without the privy and licence of his Majestye, your serenitye dispatch one these nights past that caused a considerable detriment to some Holland vessels in union and amitye with us, as is notorious. And now the Countrey with great resentment begins to represent unto his Majesty, that hee can never consent to anything that shall bee offensive to the parliament by reason of commerce nor alter the lawes and auntient customes, especially to the prejudice of a third partye. And moreover doth complayne of what I communicated to your Serenitye in two pages of mine, without as yet receiving any satisfaction. And his Majesty doth expect, that as in what laye in his power hee procured and desired quietnesse and union betweene the parliament and king of great Britane, soe likewise your Serenity would procure and desire the same betweene him and his subjects, taking away all occasions of disgust to a nation that with soe great joye and content received and entertained your Serenity. Bee pleased, Sir, to aunswere this letter with brevitye, his Majesty with care and anxietye expects it. God have your Serenity in his protection. from Court 27 of January 1650.

SIR,—His Majesty having seene and perused the paper your Serenity left in his royall hands, wherein your S. doth aske whether the aunswere given Mounsieur du Lisle doth still take place, or hath authoritye, his Majesty gave me command from him to tell your S. that he never doubted to admit into his ports the shippes of his Majesty of Great Britaine in that form and manner as hee signified and declared unto him by Monsieur du Lisle, and that he wonders much your S. should make unto him such a proposition, there being nothing altered on the behalfe of his Majesty.

If your Serenitye did it by reason that some dayes past I did communicate and intimate to your S. that it was not just and good correspondence, that your S. bound and comming to this Kingdome should upon this barre or neare it intercept and take such shippes as came to it from our Conquests or any others of commerce, and should come into this port with them with intention to make sayle of them in our sayd port, as also should remayne foure months therein with soe considerable a navye terrifying and affrightinge shippes of commerce from comming in to the great prejudice of the Crowne and complaynt of the subjects ; That your Serenity would take notice, that noe such difficultyes could well bee framed out of my discourse and proposition, your Serenity knowes very well that the reasons above mentioned and other thinges done by your S. in this port have bin a mighty hinderance to trade, with the oppression, and irreparable dammadge of this people, directly opposite to what was aunswared Monsieur du Lisle, because in that aunsware in the first place our commerce, amitye and neutralitie with nations in alliance is secured, and made good, as also the conservation of the Kingdome itself. Soe that the shippes of commerce belonging to his Majesty of great Britaine may all come into these ports, and sell what goods they importe, also men of warre may sell what they bring in, but such cannot be admitted if they exceed the number of foure, and those shall onely staye in port some fiteene or twentye dayes to sell their merchandizes, succour and vittayle : with advertence also that such shall not be suffered to come in, if they bring with them any prises taken neare our barres, or that come consigned to our ports, all this being hurtfull to trade, offensive and prejudiciall to the subject, and contrarye to what was assented with Mounsier du Lisle, as above sayd. All which neverthesse his Majestye for this time hath winked at and tolerated of his great love to his Majestye of Great Britaine and of his respect and honour to the person of your Serenitye, whom God have in his protection. from Court 18 of March 1650.

ANSWER BY CHARLES VANE TO PRINCE RUPERT'S DECLARATION.

Although the paper intituled the declaration of his highnes Prince Rupert be so full of notorious lyes, false grounds & improbable surmises that it is not likely to produce any other effort upon serious & intelligent sprits that know any thing of the estate of our affaires, then to move them to a further discovery & contempt of his most illustrious arrogancy ; yet because there are many ingenious men, as well of our owne as of the other nation, who meerey through ignorance in matter of fact, may have their Judgm^{ts} much dazled by the authority of such splendid & majesticall impressions, & chiefly because the present drift of the paper is to raise Jelosies betweene the most renowned King of Portingall & the fleete of the Parlam^t of England ; I shall not think itt time much mispent to give some short anymadversions upon itt, not taking much notice of his filthy & scurrilous Rhetorick, wherewth he endeavours to disfigure the beauty & actions of the great councell upon which the name of God is so gloriously written.

That the Parliament of England for many yeares past hath binne in armes against the late King of England, contending for their owne just rights and native liberties of the people intrusted with them, & which they are bound by all obligations both humane & divine to mayntayne & preserve against all the efforts of tirany what soever, is famously knowne unto the whole world, what issue itt hath pleased god to put to that greate difference by delivering up the power & person of that king into their hands, & which hath since binne donne upon him, & declared against his sonne heir apparent to those evell counsellis which divided betweene the head and shoulders of his father wee are now no waise afraid or ashamed to heare of. The most rayling accusations our adversaries can bring against us will be unto us matter of filling our mouths with the prayses of our god, who hath donne terrible things in righteousness for the good of his people, and hath wrought out for them so great salvation by such unheard of & unparaled wayes ; neither doe wee take itt for any disparagement to us our parliament & nation, that wee are so vile in the esteeme of this Vagabond Jerman, a Prince of Fortune, whose highnes is nothing else but haughtiness, his Principality meere piracye, the plurality of his person an affectation so singular that no reall prince can chuse but smile att itt, who after he was cudgelled out of England from his trade of plundering did in a short time sett up at sea and was even now ready to sett forth of this harbor, & to take pastime with the Leviathan in the great waters, had not the audacious fleete of rebells come in the very nick of time to put an imbargo upon his highnes.

And truly itt is no maruelle if he hath ever since binne so exceedingly transported with choller, & foames so beastly att the mouth, calling us rebells, thieves, professed enemies to all government, thereby endeavouring to render us (as much as in him lies) odious to all nations & princes, espetially to the most renown'd King of Portugall as by the whole discourse may appeare, the present scope thereof being to possess his Majesty with apparition of som strong designe intended by this fleete against this Kingdome. To that end his way is in the first place to make his Majesty believe that this fleete was procured by the sollicitation of the Spanish ambassador, intended to remayne about this coast till another fleete should come to joyne with itt & having had their ends upon the sacred person of his Highness & his fleete to goe with the Castillians into the strays against the french & then to com against this countrey ; this likely tale is made good by the confession of the Spanish ambassador's secretary and by the discovery of som of the counsell of the State unto some persons of quality in England, & all this must be taken for truth, because he, within whose principallity there dwelleth no lye, hath said so, & yet itt seemes his Highness is loath to venture the issue of this ground upon the bare credit of this affirmation, & therefore backs it immediately with an argument of congruity, that may not be denied ; for who will not beleewe there is som great designe in hand betweene us & the Castillians, seeing in the same fleete there is come an agent of the Rebels in England to the King of Castyle, & att the same time another agent unto this King of Portingall, nay rather who will beleewe this man to be in his right witts, that by such absurd & ridiculous consequences as this to put 2 nations of so antient a confederacy together by the eares. This folly himself eftsoone perceeveth & so reinforceth itt with many pretty devises of his owne making, so that the whole argument with the additionall strength being put into a fighting posture stands thus. An agent from England not thought on till 3 weeks before the coming out of the fleete procured by som marchants in London (among whome the 2 Bushells, who have a brother in Lixoa¹ a great freind of the rebels, weare cheife) to be sent thither & there by them to be mayntayned disinterested from the publike body of the parlament is arrived at the same time that another agent is imployed to the King of Spayne.² Ergo there is som great plott & contriving betweene the Parlament of England & the King of Spayne; how true the particulars of these are I leave to the gentlemen concerned in itt, ether to refuse or to make themselves merry, which they shall think best; but who seeth not that this wild logick stands in neede of som boldly att hand to second itt, & they never face without a reserve for such uses itt is nothing with them to devise lyes & frame votes, to create mistrust & if neede be to work miracles even to the transforming of King Tatam³ into a roundhead their study & care is not so much how their devises may be made to looke like truth as how they may be fitted to their purpose, & to their purpose indeede itt would shuite very well at this time if he could make his Majesty beleive that the Parlament of England is so neere (as he most falsely & maliciously affirmeth) upon terms of defiance of making warr upon him; but to leave him to his owne wayes out of which he cannot walke, & to come to a speedy close of this tedious discourse, the playne trueth is that his Highness being not long since driven out of Ireland, where he had deserved the seate of his principallity, & being now by Gods providence shutt up in this harbor, whereby his hopes of making himselfe greate somewhere abroad in the wide world, was so suddenly & extreamely disapointed, is growne desperate, besturring himselfe on every side with his lyes as Ajax in the tragedy did with his whips, & is become as on that hath altogether lost both his courage & witt, else he would never have adventured to impose such sylly gulleries as he hath donne upon a King & Counsell so prudent & circumspect ; nor would have violated his owne honor so much as to begg protection & cry out for helpe at the sight of such an inconsiderable compagny of Roundheads as wee are, & as in his jollity he is pleased to make of us ; for what is itt else but the impotency of spiritt overwhelmed with desperation & feare that hath moved him to such extreame impatience, to breake out into such raving exclamations against our audacious attempt to approach so neere toward his highnesse, with such haynous & horrid aggravations of the manner of our advance & most importunate imprecations of justice & revenge upon us as if to have assayed his person & fleete had binne to trample under foote the law of nations, to overturne the foundations of all rule & right, & to dissolve the very bonds of all humane sosiety in the worlde, whereas his highness hath most insolently & outrageously affronted the power & honor of his majesty, even within the command of his castells, as is well knowne, & yet thinks he hath donne nothing therein but what is agreeable to his owne greatness ; yea the excesse & rage of his impatieny & malice against us is such, & so boundlesse, that he would fayne make his majesty beleive what is scarce possible for a sole enemy to imagine of us, that our designe was not to end in the destruction of him, & his fleete, but to proceede on seizing of his majestie's fleete bound for Brazill, yea upon the citty ittselfe, but whatsoither itt be that either the malice or feare of our enemies ether hath or shall suggest against us, or what art or insinuations soever shall be used by any to make way to those their scandalous & wicked suggestions I am confident his majesty is farr from reaceaving any such impressions as by them are intended upon him, nether doubt I but by this time he is most fully assured both of the sincere & well affection & earnest desire of the Parlament of England¹ a firme & perpetuall league of amity with him & the nation of Portingall, & also of the peacable intentions of this fleete & of our innocent behaviour according to our duty, a prosecution & conformity to the same, & if probabilities may take place I could wish all unprejudiced men to consider whither the Portugalls may not with very good reason promise unto themselves more advantage and security by confiding in us, who are sent out by the commonwealth of England for the protection of trade rather then in them who make itt their trade to spoyle & robb whomesover they meete almost without any discrimination in us who are only english, the most antient allyes affectionat freinds of their nation, or in that fleete whose strength doth most consist of Irish who have ever binne & still are most passionatly & almost superstitiously devoted to the Spanish nation &

party, & itt is a thing that deserves their serious consideration & examination that there is among them on Mucknell a most malicious enemy to the Portingall nation who about five years since being master of the shipp John bound to the East India, did most wickedly & barbarously betray a Porteges governôr, sent for Goa with his wife & kinred & 60 servants whom he had taken att Mazembeke,¹ & afterward inviting him & a great part of his retinew ashoare to a feast at the Isle Johana,² most perfidiously left him there, came away with the shipp & being two leagues off the Island turned the remaynder of his company, near about thirtyfive in number, most mercilesly, into a small boate, to shift for themselves, having first stripped them of all their gould & Jewells, apparrell & goods to a great vlew: itt weare easy upon occation to abound in discoveries of the horrid practices of this generation of men from time to time but that the world is sufficiently full of the crie of them, & for my part I take not so much delight in ripping up the vilenest of others as in clearing up our owne innocency.
