By the 1350's, little change had taken place in the structure of leet court activity. Details on the names of chief pledges were by then available and were recorded systematically thereafter. Individual default from the tithing had also grown significantly, so that the list of offenders was made at the end of each section. Whether this was in response to more rigid enforcement or increased geographical mobility, either long or short term, is difficult to ascertain.

The Wortham Leet Court of 1352 shows the names of the capital pledges:

A Omnes capitales plegii de Wortham videlicet Rogerus atte Stile, Johannes Cristmesse, Robertus Cristemesse, Robertus Langhous, Johannes Bronn, Johannes Manewyne, Johannes Huberd, Willelmus de Skeryng, Johannes filius Willelmi Stannard, Johannes de Dersham, Willelmus Wymer, Ricardus Ingold, Johannes Flemmyng jur' qui dicunt super sacramentum quod dant de certo v s. et ballivus domini Regni habet de consuetudine

This section deals with fines for failure to be in a tithing or default of court:

this cannot be located to fol. 11 verso 8-72
