

This man that was the overseer at the building the Tower of Babel hath sent him with me, and as I perceive by him came further upon purpose to have a worde or two of my hande for satisfaction about an agreement betwixt himselfe the Mason, and him concerning the building of the Gallies at Hawstead. I write by them both & they are accorded, and that Timent is already satisfied for the things of yt. If he tell me shalke inform presently after Christmas.
 I shalke send when I come to London to see the fruits of this mans labour at Draynes house. If his worke be as substantiall in the Citye as in the Countrey, for if yt falls out otherwise, I hope yt will be so longe before my occasions shall call me thither that I shalke write you maynise that worke that he shalke make an ende of.
 I desire in this end to be remembered to my sister for the last make the hande for me in the same kinde. And thus I rest.

Yours Brother.
