

CHESILS,
CHRISTCHURCH ROAD,
HAMPSTEAD.

Jan 30. 1909

My dear Sir Percy,

"The Month" the Jesuit Organ has an article on me so scurrilous that I could assure me that a ground of action for libel could be made out. But he thinks a more effective plan would be to write an article laying bare the malignity of the method. It is not a personal question, but the deadly way the R.C. Church has of crushing its critics by moral assassination, that demands public attention? -

Would you accept an article for the Contemporary on "The Jesuit" in which I could put the facts before the country?

Yours with kindest regards

A. J. Horton

My dear W. Bunting.

I was disappointed not to see you, because I feel very much as you do - that we ought to face more candidly & earnestly Huxley's attacks. I thought Wace was inadequate & the Bishop of Exeter contemptible.
- Do you not think that you might get from half a dozen representative Christians a terse personal answer to the Agnostics position? - If men like Hughes on the one hand & Talbot or Scott Holland on the other, were just to set down why, in spite of this attack, they hold fast to the faith that is in them, the concurrent testimony of many minds would furnish, I think, a better answer than the laboured apologetics which run so readily into mere personalities and arguments ad hominem.

After all, nothing that Husley says touches the Gospel as Hughes is preaching it in his "Social Xing" and it would be a real service to the Agnostics to show them that they are simply assailing outworks, never touching our central position.
- I wish the Contemporary w.

take up the defence on some such lines as these: I dare say you shrink from turning a Review of so broad a character into a distinct organ of Christian apologetics, but when the XIXth Cent hands itself over to the assailants, some one or some organ must be raised up to resist.

Yours very sincerely

P. J. Horton.

My dear Scott Lidgett,

I send you the article. I reckon three pages is your printed page. But if it is too long send me the slips & I will curtail it. Indeed I quite want to print it a little

My dear Mrs Bunting,

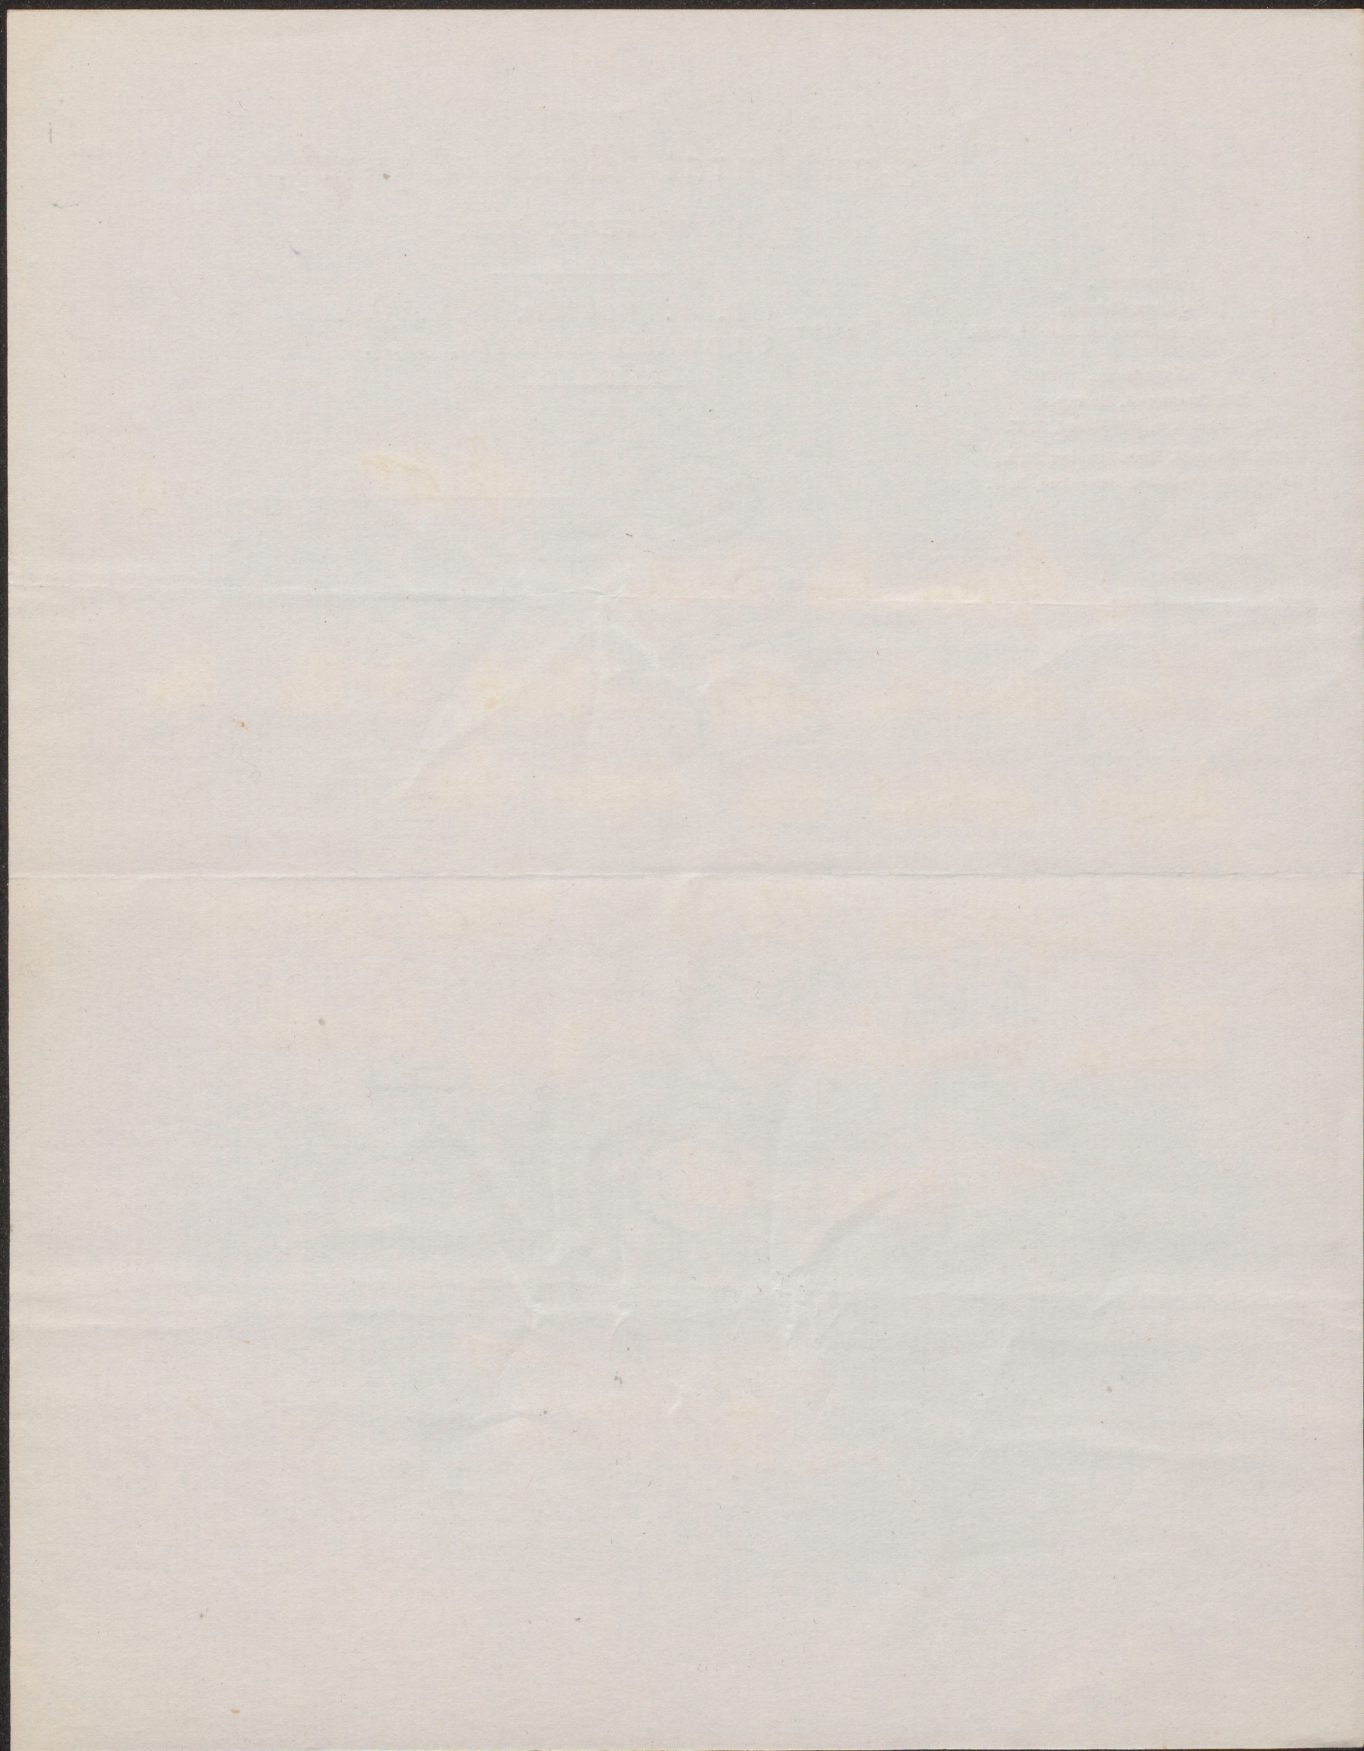

I have reduced the article I think to the ten pages, without any serious loss.

I am glad you like it. Please give my kindest remembrances to Lady Bunting

Yours very truly

R. F. Horton

Although Dr Horton has struck out so much his friends think it a great mistake as the whole article is so bright and an unusual testimony and witness to facts in the Court of that great Empire.

Dear Sir,

My thanks
for yr. letter.
I have not written as fully as I could & there now appears

a chance of my being able to do ~~so~~ a little later.
Under the circumstances therefore I think it best to trespass
on yr. indulgence

and to keep back the article till I can go into greater detail

Dear Sir

The receipt of my article in type shows me that I am taking your good nature to a very great extent

in asking you to allow me to delay its appearance for a little: but matters have progressed so much within the past few days
that it is imperative for me to hold back for the present. I would really be defeating the effectiveness of its publication by proceeding at this point I must rely on your kind acquiescence in my request

With very sincere apologies for thus travailing

Dear Sir

I have come into possession of some new facts this morning w^h suggest the desirability of my postponing my article for a month or two. When I shall probably be able to make it

of additional interest. As matters are so

situated I write ~~to ask~~ you to let me withhold the MS for the present in the hope that I may be allowed to submit it to you when brought up to date

Dear Sir,

I am hoping that the fact of my not having heard from you
is an indication that you have determined to use my article as the time however is running very short I am forced to write and ask if you will let me hear definitely from you tomorrow

Dear Sir,

I have written an article on the Paine Commission
my connection with the Pigott

letter which I w.
like to offer you for the June issue of the 'Contemporary'

If you would care to go into the matter with me perhaps you will

so far favor as

are one or two matters I would like to explain when submitting the Mss. I he.

article should attract attention

Dear Madam,

Pray forgive too further questions as to my 'E. J. Mignot' Paper.

- (1) When does the 'Contemporary' appear — 1st or 15th of month?
- (2) Will you confer on me the right of translation into French?
I have to write and tell the Archbishop's French friends, as to both these points as soon as possible - They could do some substantial good, & believe, if they were ~~not~~ to translate as proposed.

With apologies for giving so much trouble

Yours faithfully

Dear Madam,

Thank you for the 20 Pulls of my 'Mignot' article, duly received; and for the cheque, value £6.10, directly to hand from yourself. I am well pleased with all this, that you have so kindly responded to me.

I transferred the French translation rights, as given me by yourself, to the 1662 Louis Lacger,

Directeur au Grand Séminaire,

Hei, Tarn, France.

I told him he was thus at liberty to publish the whole or part, in a French translation; or to publish an abstract or summation of the article; or, finally to do nothing, and even to relent others from doing anything—since any one wishing to take any steps in the matter for France would be referred to him.
I thought this the wisest arrangement, seeing that M.

Lacger was the close friend and death-bed attendant of the late Archbishop, and that, on the spot out there, he would know exactly what it would be best and wisest to do.

I am indeed proud to appear alongside of Mr Nicol Mac-nickel's admirable Indian Paper.

Yours Truly

F. von Hügel.

If ever I have the honour to write for you again I must see to my name appearing as Baron F. v.
Hügel: this, because my dear brother, Baron A. von Hügel does my views.
