Dear Sir
Mr G. W. Cox (the well-known author of "Anglomology" & many other works) expresses his wish to have a paper from him inserted in a leading magazine, advocating a ^{question} cause which for years I have been bringing on the attention of scholars, viz. ^{the proposition that} whether the original Homer, as known to Pindar and the tragic poets, and I may add, to the painters of all the earlier Greek times, was ~~not~~ very different from the Homer that we possess, and which is first definitely quoted by Plato.

This is not a popular view; but it is a question of immense importance to Literature; and the appearance of an "Introduction to Homer" by Professor Jebb, and my critique upon it, perhaps opens the way to what is strictly an impartial inquiry into Truth.

Should you — as I anticipate to happen — regard with favour the idea, a line to me, or to The Revd Sir G. W. Cox, Bart.

Seavingham Rectory,
York, will be sufficient to set the scheme in motion.

Believe me

Dear Sir

Faithfully yours

F. A. Pley.

Dear Sir,

In reply to your letter of the 29th inst with regard to my article "Entertainments for the People". I have made enquiries of the servants here, and have myself made search throughout the house, but without success. My vocation is not a literary one, except as a dramatist, and it is the only article for a magazine that I have written, so that it would be not easy for me either to mislay it or forget its arrival. It was written in the first instance to give as a lecture at the Liberal Social Union. I shall hope that with further search it will turn up because I have, unfortunately, no other copy having destroyed my rough draft long since.

Yours Faithfully,

Wm. Oael

Percy W. Bunting Esq.

P.S. In June 1888, I am reading to the New Shakespeare Society, a paper on the 'Merchant of Venice, in relation to its dramatic treatment on the stage.' Would you care to look at it to see if it would do for publication?

My dear Sir

You will be interested in my article on the "Oxford Movement" in the Contemporary May 1883.

I mistook the liberty of asking whether it would be consistent with your arrangements to accept another article on a different subject to which I have devoted great attention -

The Early history of the Anglo Saxon race - prior to their Settle went in England.

It is a subject on which nothing is at present known; but an outline of the real history would begin in the article from Hermetic times to the times of Augustus.

The length would be a sheet, and if one of course would be fully correct and concise.

I should not care about re-nunciation, but would wish to reserve the copyright for re-publication of the article, in some other form.

The paper could be sent in a few days.

I remain dear Sir

Yours very faithfully

W Paterson.

Dear Sir

Your letter reached me here today.

The Trustees of the Peel papers are desirous now as soon as possible to publish, and with that view I am giving to the task they have entrusted to me all the time I can spare from other claims.

This alone would put it out of my power.

While so engaged, to write such an article as you do me the honour to request.

But also the Trustees have so often, both in past years and lately, thought it necessary to refuse applications to make use of the letters, that were I under present circumstances to propose doing so, as you suggest,

by way of anticipation, I feel sure they would not approve.

Regretting that I cannot meet you wishes I remain
Yours faithfully

My dear Mr. Bunting,

I beg you to forgive my not writing to you with my own hand. I am greatly pressed this morning, and yet I did not wish your letter to go unanswered. I wish I could respond to your request for an article on the Congo for the November "Contemporary," but it happens that this month I have an excess of work, owing to an accumulation of engagements to speak, and of articles which I had promised to write on public matters and had deferred from month to month. Now they all fall due, and they must be done during the next three weeks. Otherwise, I should have been glad to do something in your famous Review to help the cause for which I have tried to do some work over a number of years.

Thank you for giving me the opportunity and for thinking of me in this connection.

Believe me to be,

Yours very truly,

Edwin Herbert

My dear Sir Percy Bunting,

Will you first please forgive my having forgotten your knighthood in addressing my previous letters? It was very stupid because I was perfectly aware of the fact, and pay tribute to it, is do all for now.

I have delayed replying until I could, at this last week-end, plan the remainder of the month, and I find it is absolutely impossible for me to attempt anything beyond what I have already engaged to do, nor could I attempt anything for January. You can imagine that at this particular time every moment is heavily mortgaged.

With much regret,

Believe me to be,

Yours very truly,

I have posted to your Winnipeg address an article on "The Po-called Protectionist Party in New South Wales".
I do not know, my dear Sir, whether or no my subject will suit the Contemporary's audience but I should think it would be acceptable to a majority of English & Foreign readers as the fiscal legislation in Australia must have an interest for the whole world.

There are two subjects Percy W. Huntington Esq to which my eyes are turned I trust they would suit you (1) "The observations of Parliamentary Government in the Colonies" (2) "The next move in Australian Federation"

With one thing & another
- the result of a long business life - I am much occupied, but I may find for these and one or two other things

Yours
V. sincerely

My dear Mr

I received today your letter of May 6 (one month and one day a century to the 120 days of a generation ago) containing cheques for eight pounds.

I should never think of sending to an English review an article on our "controversial politics". But it seemed to me that the manner in which a great

Percy W. Mountney Esq change was made in our present policy would be of interest to the millions concerned in the vast volume of commerce between England & these colonies.

I have for some time been engaged upon a work of some bulk - 2 vols octavo - entitled "Fifty Years in the making of Australian History." I am bringing it to a conclusion & hope it will be published about October next. I must confine myself to this book until it is finished

- I hope very soon.

Respectfully
Henry Parkes

My dear Sir

I should like to publish the papers I have written on Australian federation in a volume with an article connecting them and dealing with the question up to the present time. Have you any objection to my including the articles of this character which were published in the "Contemporary" some time ago.

These are some subjects which I have been thinking of Pray W. Huntington

which I think would suit the general reader of your Review.

1 "The New Life in West Australia" [A wonderful transition now going on]

2 "An Australian View of the House of Lords question"

3 The New Nations of the Future in the Pacific

My dear Sir

I duly received your letter authorizing Draft for £15..15..0.. for article on "Union of the Australians" for ~~which~~ ^{which} I thank you.

I am very sensible of your good opinion of my paper & the interest you express

Percy Willcome Bunting in my political fortunes.

You see I am still at the head of affairs. I did not court the Labour Vote: my opponents did. But the Labour Party decided to vote for me on a motion giving me a majority of 23 - equal to 100
