

July 8. 89.

37 ALBEMARLE STREET,
PICCADILLY, W.

Dear Brinkley.

I am getting together material for the article but it is very hard to get forward with other business in hand. I will do my best but do not count upon any thing for the August number.

Yours very sincerely
Edgar Vincent.

35 ALBEMARLE STREET,
PHOENIX, W.

✓

Grand Hotel.
Paris.

Aug 1-59.

MINISTRY OF FINANCE,
CAIRO.

My dear Baring.

I have brought for Egypt - having given full notes for the article to my secretary Mr Mosley who will put them into shape & forward to you. I find that it is difficult to settle down to write in the midst of tiresome diplomatic negotiations.

MINISTRY OF FINANCE.

CAIRO.

Mosley will keep you informed as to date when M. S. will be ready.

Yours very sincerely

Edg. L. T. cent.

V

House Schulz, Jeng:inskay Pereulok, Patriarchie
Budi, Moscov.

October 27
1884

Dear Sir,

In arranging with Mr. Tatou about a chronicle of Russian life for the Contemporary Review, I forgot to mention one point which happens, in the present state of things here, to be of some importance. I shall sign my articles with an initial — B, and it would be advisable to keep their authorship a secret.
I must thank you for sending me the Review, of which I have got the October number. The November issue has not reached me as yet, and I am rather afraid that it may have been delayed in transmission on account of the address, which I gave in English. I shall again to-day try communication. You may want to make to the address written at the heading of this letter.

Yours truly

I Vinogradoff

V
Hoye Schulz,
Georgievsky Pereoulok,
Patriarchie Trudi,
Moscow, Dec. ¹¹/₂₃ 84

Dear Sir,
I told Dr Paton when I saw him in London, that I would send in my article about "Contemporary life and thoughts" in Rassin by the 1st of January. I am sorry to be obliged to ask for a short respite. I am writing my paper, but find the Work somewhat more difficult than I thought at first and should not like to spoil it by hurrying through it.

There will be no inconvenience

I presume, if the article reaches Your office by the 1st of February?
You are certainly well provided with material of all kinds and will not mind that delay.

The December issue of the Review has been received although

There may be a material mistake in the Address: the "Grazievskiy", which is the name of the Street (peroulon) ~~may~~ has been omitted

Yours Truly

P Vinogradoff

Weymouth, Feb. 28 1885
March 12

Dear Sir,

I must plead for mitigating circumstances in order to excuse the delay in sending the promised paper. The fact is
- I have been very unwell for some time and have resumed my work only a few weeks ago. The paper for the Contemporary Review is ready and has only to be copied and transcribed.
- I shall send it off in the course of this week. It will be certainly too late for the April number, but I hope You may insert it in May. I should ask You to let me know by a line or two, when I can get it

Bellevue.

Yours very truly,

W. Vinogradoff

Worcester, March ¹¹/₂₃ 1885

Dear Sir,

I am sending in a registered envelope the paper for your Review and must ask you to let me know, whether you receive it in good order. Would you mind, also, telling me in what respects you might wish the treatment to be changed - whether, for instance, it would not be advisable to give more details. I have left the literary survey for the next article in order to give more unity to the first, and I shall try to get that second paper ready ~~in time~~ ^{in time} three or four months

I hope to be more accurate this time as the winter term is wearing out and I shall have more leisure after Easter

Yours very truly

(P Vinogradoff)

Leaves 12, 13, 14 are written over on both sides

V
Moscow, April 4th 1885

Dear Sir,

I have not received the MS and the proofs, which, as you apprized me, have been sent to me for correction.
They must have come to grief somewhere. I am sorry I did not tell you beforehand, that it would be imprudent, especially under existing circumstances, to send such documents by post to Russia. If war, which I thought to be improbable, ensues I shall be unable, of course, to forward articles on political matters to the Contemporary Review, and to say the truth, I cannot but regret, that even the even the first paper will appear at such a time still, as it has come to your hands already, I cannot protest against its publication, if you see your way to print it in the absence of ~~it~~^{it} and ~~the~~ corrected proofsheets. If war is happily prevented, please consider me to be at your command Yours very truly

P. Vinogradoff

May I ask you to address any communication which you may want to make ^{to me} to the Rev^d H. Bernard, English Church Moscow and not to put my name on the envelope.

V

March ¹¹/₁₃ 1886

Dear Sir,

I am really sorry to have been unable to write for the Contemporary before getting ¹² your kind sum-mary. There have been various reasons to prevent me, the chief of which
- the illness and death of my father - disabled me entirely for a time

Still I consider my connection with the Contemporary as a great honour and shall do my best to justify Your trust.

I thought of writing an article upon the literary movement within the last year to match the paper about the political evolution.
But Your proposal is more in keeping with the "interest & actualité," and

I am setting to work to answer You.

I cannot say when the paper will be ready, but shall try to have it done in a fortnight or three weeks. Still I hope You will not be very hard upon me, even if it comes later. Although one of the burning Crej's leaves to home gone by, there ~~is~~^{is} plenty more of a similar to come, if one judges rightly.

I think of coming over to England for my holidays in June and hope to make then your personal acquaintance

Believe me
Yours very truly
I Kinogradoff

V
Ranienbaum, 1887⁶
July 2/20

My dear Sir, Your note has found me at last in the neighbourhood of Petersburg. I am setting to work to write the article for the Contemporary, but, if you will allow me, I shall ~~please~~ give a review of the literary movement in Russia and not of politics.
The political situation in home ~~affairs~~ as well as in foreign affairs is very unsettled just now. and I should like to leave it for the next article.

Yours truly

P. Vinogradoff

Please address any note or communication to the University of Moscow.

address : Poste Restante Venice.

17th July 1891.

Dear Sir.

I have to thank you for your kind letter of the 14th & hope to send you the article on San Marino in ten days or a fortnight.
~~Also~~ If I do not hear to the contrary I will assume that it may be some 5000 or 6000 words in length, as that seems the average length of your minor articles -

To Percy W. Bunting, Esq.
Lc. &c.

I have the honor to be,
Dear Sir,
Your very faithful obliged,
Herbert Vivian

address. Poste Restante
Venice

Dear Sir -

1891

I venture to enquire whether you will accept an article on the Republic of San Marino, which claims to be the oldest state in Europe & to have maintained its ancient constitution unchanged for nearly sixteen centuries. I have just been spending a week there and have made a careful study of the archives of the Republic, the manners and customs of the people, and the history of the Constitution.

I have obtained copies of the principal works that have appeared with reference to San Marino, including Delfico's large history in three volumes, and Malapola's exhaustive account of Cardinal Alberoni's attempt to seize the place. I have also obtained from an old inhabitant lively personal remembrances of Garibaldi's visit (when ^{he was} pursued by the Austrians), of Victor Emmanuel's blockade & other recent political events.

I am confident that I could write you a bright and ~~entertaining~~ ^{entertaining} article on that unique state, which much attracted and interested me during my stay.

I have the honour to subscribe myself,

Dear Sir,

Yours very faithful & obedient

Herbert Vivian

(late Proprietor & Editor of "The Whirlwind.")

5th July, 1891.

Wm. the Editor of the Contemporary Review

Poste Restante, Venice, 29th August 1876.

Dear Sir -

Your letter of the 24th has been forwarded to me & I think I have really been somewhat hardly used. I certainly should never have written a long article, like the one you have returned, had I not understood it to be definitely accepted in advance. As to the style, style is entirely a matter of opinion; this article is written in my usual style, with which you were acquainted when you agreed to accept the article.

I thank you for the friendliness of your criticisms. I fancy what you call juvenility -veracity of style means certain abrupt turns of phrase (e.g. qualifying faribaldi as a bandit) which I have always ~~used~~ used deliberately.

I dare say you are right about the history being dull, but that I could remedy.

Is it any use my rewriting that part, striking out the "juvenile" phrases, & sending you the article again? I should be much obliged if you would let me have a line here to say so.

Yours faithfully & obliged

Herbert Vivian.

To Henry Bunting, Esq.

the first of the series of letters from the author to the editor of the "Lancet" in 1855. The letter is dated London, 1st March 1855.
The author is Dr. John Snow, and the letter is concerned with the question of the
contagion of cholera.
The letter is a very interesting one, and
shows the author's
views on the subject.
The letter is written in a very clear and concise style, and is very well organized.
The author's arguments
are very strong, and
are supported by
facts and figures.
The letter is a very good example of the author's style, and
is a very valuable contribution to the history of the
contagion of cholera.

the first of the series of letters
from the author to the editor of the "Lancet" in 1855. The letter is dated
London, 1st March 1855.
The author is Dr. John
Snow, and the letter is
concerned with the question of the
contagion of cholera.
The letter is a very interesting one, and
shows the author's
views on the subject.
The letter is written in
a very clear and
concise style, and is
very well organized.
The author's arguments
are very strong, and
are supported by
facts and figures.
The letter is a very
good example of the
author's style, and
is a very valuable
contribution to the history of the
contagion of cholera.