The Bigger and Better 1934 CHICAGO WORLD'S FAIR

Illinois Central Electric suburban service is the most important artery of local travel to and from the Fair.

From the important downtown stations at Randolph Street and Roosevelt Road, Illinois Central Electric is the fastest service directly connecting the heart of the downtown district with all entrances to the Fair Grounds. Convenient connections at these stations with elevated, street car and bus lines provide an ideal route from Chicago's West and North Side hotel and residential districts.

Illinois Central Electric provides fast, clean and inexpensive transportation from Chicago's great South Side direct to all Fair Gates. Note also the convenient connections with cross-town street car and bus lines from the Southwest Side. Direct connections at 53rd and 63rd Street Stations with through trains from all the South, Southwest and East.

Only 10 Cents

Direct to every Fair Gate from downtown stations and from all stations as far south as 71st Street (Stony Island Avenue) and 75th Street (Grand Crossing) during the Fair. Similar low fares between all stations.

Illinois Central Electric stations are located at every Fair entrance — no traffic to cross in reaching grounds.

All Through Trains Use Central Station

The above map demonstrates Illinois Central's outstanding advantages in connection with the Fair — all their through trains from the South and West use Central Station, the only terminal adjoining the Fair Grounds—its tracks skirting the Fair Grounds from end to end. It shows, too, how conveniently the Illinois Central serves the great downtown hotels and the shopping, theatrical and business districts of Chicago. As for safety — during the 1933 Fair over 21,000,000 passengers were carried by Illinois Central through trains and Illinois Central Electric without a single serious injury to a passenger.
