The entrance to the above place is east of the saloon on the first floor, and it is also the entrance to the Cabaret in the rear.

Upon reaching the hallway of the second floor, we saw a woman called Tully take bottles of beer from a dunny elevator which is located at the south end of the hallway. Just at this time a woman called her, + she took the beer to the rear.

I heard a man + a woman talking in a front room.

Walking to an annex, east, on the same floor we saw a Mexican looking man sitting at a table with a woman in a pink house dress.

Tully returned + told us that she didn't have any girls.

Upon reaching the first floor Inv. R. tried the door leading to the Cabaret and found it locked.

The saloon was closed and dark and on account of a heavy glass partition about a foot from the window we were unable to see inside

At one o'clock just as the people were leaving, investigator I called Charley over + pointing to a man about 5 ft 7 - 150 lbs, black curly hair, + wearing eye glasses, asked him who his was. We were admitted by a woman, who on a previous visit said her name was Myrtle. Another woman present, I remember seeing on a previous visit.

Myrtle said she was afraid to open the door at first thinking that one of us was officer "Slater".

While we were talking to her in the dining room she called out to a woman who was in the kitchen, telling her to let the boys in. The woman got up + opened the kitchen door leading to the porch, and three sailors came in. Myrtle then said that every was alright.

The sailors were then served with bottle beer (Edelweiss) one of the sailors gave Myrtle a dollar bill.

Inv. S. + myself were served with whiskey for which inv. S. paid 50¢

As we were leaving Myrtle told us that 2 or 3 people had told her that Inv. S. was an investigator.

Inv. S. denied it strongly + gave her one of Stahl's Card saying that he would take care of him. Just then a heavy set man came in from a room, + taking the card from Myrtle's hand took it up saying that he would handle him (meaning inv. S.)

We then made our exit
