permit me one of the humblest of your friends to address you in my rough way and manner the ground you have taken on the Leocompton Constitution meets with the approval of all in this part.

Since our Representative in Congress has turned any thing in the shape of Books or seeds from the Patent Office and we think the farmer is as much entitled to them as any part of community we would feel highly favored if you would remember the Riley Boys in Speech

New York, January, 1858.

Dear Sir:

The coming Anniversary of the BIRTH-DAY OF WASHINGTON, will be celebrated by the Order of United Americans of this State, in accordance with their usual custom, on Monday, February 22nd next, at the Academy of Music, in this city, when an Oration will be delivered by the HON. ERASTUS BROOKS.

You are respectfully invited to unite with them on that occasion.

The Order of United Americans, now established as a conservative political element, which while it would abstain from partizan influences, should be Nationally, American, and as such would encourage and inculcate a growing love of our country and its institutions, maintaining a united hostility to every antagonistic influence, however remote and from whatever source.==It next to organize a united body of men associated for this object, who would serve as a check upon demagogues or partizan rulers, by maintaining a balance of power capable of controlling their influence and directing their movements.

The principles of this Order have been placed before our countrymen for many years, they have commended themselves to general public favor, and largely increased its members throughout the United States. Many of the most distinguished men of the country are included amongst its members.

We hope it may be convenient for you to honor us with your presence.

We are, very Respectfully, Your Obedt Servts, Committee.

Wm. J. A. Douglas:

Mr Sir: I have had the pleasure of reading your speech on the Kansas question, and beg leave to say that it has convinced me that you are in the right. From a hasty perusal of a sketch in the National Intelligencer, I was inclined to believe you had taken a wrong step; but a stray copy of your authorized edition of the speech came into my possession a few days since, and after perusing and studying it at leisure, I have come to the conclusion that you are right. We are entirely unknown to each other, but it may be gratifying to you to know, that a momentary political enemy, has now become, personally and politically, Your friend. //
