

Richard Smith
March 20, 1864.

Gazette Office
Lia. March 20th 1864

My dear Mr. Barrett.

I wrote you on Monday last with reference to Ky. affairs, thinking it might be important to have the President advised of the situation. I now enclose two letters I received from Dr. Stanton of Danville (one of the professors in Danville Seminary, with Dr. Breckinridge) a true man, giving the inside history of the Brambleton rebellion. The President ought to read these letters. They look long, but if you concurne them you will be sure to go through with them. I expect to go to Washington the latter part of the week, but as I am Brambleton has gone on, I thought it important this inside history should be laid before Mr Lincoln. The letters you receive are private - not to be published or shown except to true Union men. Bramlette is a dangerous and unreliable man as you will see - hypocritical too. He backs down square, because he was frightened. The Union men are now all right, and all that is necessary ~~is~~ is to sustain them by enforcing the laws. Please have these letters for me as I realize them, giving as they do the inside of the Bramlette rebellion.

Fuly yours
Rich'd Smith

laid before Mr Lincoln. The letters
you receive are private — not
to be published or shown except to
true Union men. Bramlette is
a dangerous and unreliable man
as you will see — hypocritical too. He backed down square, because he was frightened. The Union men are now all right, and all that is necessary is to sustain them by enforcing the laws. Please save these letters for me as I value them, seeing as they do the inside of the Bramlette rebellion.

Fuly yours
Richd Smith

