

A VALENTINE.

No fresh Damask Rose,
when held to the Nose,
No Cowslip or Daffy-
down-dilly;

No Hyacinth's bloom, or Pink's rich perfume,

Nor Jessamine sweet, nor the Lily;

These Emblems of Love,
this Knot or this Dove;

This Pair, or this One with a Letter;

This Torch and these Darts, these two wounded Hearts,

Nor Cupid, nor Hymen's round Fetter;

These Arrows and Sheath,
these Hearts in a Wreath;

Nor that with two Doves,
nor this blazing,

On Wings of Desire, thus fanning Love's fire;

At which this fair Maid
And Youth's gazing;

Not all these Devices can match the great Prizes,

Nor can Bacchus or
Venus so brisk,

Afford such a boon
As next Valentine's Noon,

When the Prizes are gained without risk.

Chance without Risk !!
At HAZARD & Co.'s

Offices, Royal Exchange Gate, 26, Cornhill, & 934,

I'm a Tailor, good lbrd,
Just escap'd from the board,
With the times I am angry & wroth,
I'm cross-grain'd to day,
Things go the wrong way,
And I can't cut my coat to my cloth.

I'm a Baker, you see,
By the shape of my knee,
And I'm crusty as well as yourself;
In riches some roll,
But for me, on my soul,
I could ne'er get a crum of the pelf.

The shoe pinches tight,
And affairs are not right,
Tho' I peg more & night in my stall;
My sole it quite melts,
For we're off of the welts,
And I fear I shall soon lose my awl.

I'm a panes-taking man,

Fate's scissors, I dread,
Will sever my thread,
Before better times will be seen.

I've a motion d'ye see,
To which you'll agree,
An escapement from care I *esp*y;
That you'll hold up both hands
To do Fortune's commands,

Valentine for the Ladies.

BY A TRUE LOVIER.—TUNE, "VICAR AND MOSES.

DEAR Madam or Miss,
Whoever reads this,
I beg you'll attend to my tale:
On VALENTINE'S MORN,
As sure as you're born,
The planet of Luck will prevail.
Fol de rol, &c.

The little god, Love,
Has decreed from above,
That a Patron he'd be to the day;
And Fortune, so kind,
Has promis'd, tho' blind,
That she will not be out of the way.
Fol de rol, &c.

When the news he was told,
SAINT VALENTINE bold,
Jump'd for joy nearly out of his skin;
He shook Cupid's fist,
And Dame Fortune he kiss'd,
And hop'd all true lovers might win.
Fol de rol, &c.

But unless you discern,
You have yet got to learn
What FORTUNE and LOVE have in view;
Why, a Lottery'll be drawn
On next VALENTINE'S morn,
And the Prizes may tumble to you.
Fol de rol, &c.

Then all true loving hearts,
With your doves and your darts,
You may doubt what I say, if you please;
If a partner you wish,
Buy a Ticket of BISH,
For no charms are so sterling as these.

ALL Trades complain the times are bad,
And as to Cash,—it can't be had.
The Farmer says his lands lie fallow;
The Chandler cannot melt his tallow;
The Miller cries, do what he will,
His grinding don't bring grist to mill;
The Cobbler, though he straps to leather,
Body and sole scarce keeps together;
The Tailor, ne'er to cabbage loth,
His coat can't cut to suit his cloth;
The Doctor writes no recipe,
His patients can't afford a fee;
The LL. D. and Politician
Pronounce that man the best Logician,
Whose rhetoric can shew the place
Where they can meet with Henry Hase:
And though no Scholar, you'll confess,
'That I have made a shrewdish guess,
When I have shewn you BISH's Scheme,
Of universal talk the theme:
A Golden Harrest then the Farmer
May reap, and in his purse grow warmer;
The Tallow-Chandler's wick burn brighter;
The Miller's heart be ten pounds lighter;
The Cobbler from his stall translated,
To Fortune's height be elevated!
The Tailor never look cross-grain;
A golden pill the Doctor gain;
In short all parties highly pleas'd,
Of all their cares and sorrows eas'd,
Will own that BISH's plan is wise,
By Ways and Means to raise supplies,
Which Fortune's Budget soon dispenses,
When This Month's Lottery commences.

A DIALOGUE.

---

Q. WELL, Richard, and what brings you to town?

A. Why, I'd a wee bit business to do for mysen, and the like for your honour's lady, and so I've kill'd two birds with one stone, you see.

Q. Well, well, sit down and rest yourself a bit. You seem tired?

A. A small matter, your honour, 'case, d'ye see, I walked all the way up.

Q. The devil you did?—Why didn't you ride old Dobbin?

A. I couldn't, your honour, 'case he's dead.

Q. Dead! and how came that about?

A. 'T were my own fault, poor beast!—I rode so hard from Doncaster, to tell Dame Bridget, our Housekeeper, the good news.

Q. What news?

A. Why, that she'd got a Share of a Capital in the Lottery.

Q. And how came she to buy Lottery Tickets?

A. Oh, bless you, mun! she didn't buy it at all.

Q. Didn't buy it?—Why how then?

A. Why, Mistress guv'd it to her, like.

Q. She'd better have sav'd the Money to pay off the Mortgage.

A. Oh, that's all settled.

Q. Settled?

A. Yes; she paid all off on the same day.

Q. What day?

A. Why, the day they paid her the Money.

Q. What Money?—and who?

A. Why, the Lottery Money, from t' Office.

Q. I thought you said, just now, that Bridget had got the Prize?—Your head's wool gathering.

A. So she did, but Mistress got one too.

Q. And it was drawn a. . . . .

A. Prize of Twenty Thousand!—and now your honour knows all about it.

---

TWO Prizes of £20,200, besides 3,000 other Prizes, will all be decided 14th JUNE.—No Classes!—Every Ticket drawn out singly, each deciding its own fate and no other.

A RECIPE For Low Spirits

AS Low Spirits are a nervous complaint, often arising from a consumption of the pocket, those who are afflicted with this malady, and are too wise to decline good advice, are recommended to make use of the following prescription. (N. B. Probatum est).

Take a grain of common sense, and one drachm of resolution, mix them well together, and swallow them. After which, if in London, take a walk down the Poultry, Cornhill, or Aldgate; or if you live at the West End, go to Holborn, Oxford-Street, Charing-Cross, or Piccadilly, step into one of the Lottery Offices, or if in the Country, go to the first Lottery Agent, and by the production of a small piece of paper, called a Bank Note, you will receive another small piece of paper, called a Lottery Chance. When you reach home, take a draught of the cordial of hope, and in a few days there will be great reason to expect a lasting cure; particularly if a certain thing called a Register Letter should reach you, stating that your Number was drawn one of the Prizes of £20,200, which, with all the other Capitals, must be drawn the 14th of JUNE.

TWO Prizes of £20,200, besides 3,000 other Prizes, will all be decided 14th of JUNE.—No Classes!—Every Ticket drawn out singly, each deciding its own fate and no other.

Ticket and Share Chances are selling at all the Offices in London; and by all their Agents in the Country.

A RECIPÉ For Low Spirits

As Low Spirits are a nervous complaint, often arising from a consumption of the pocket, those who are afflicted with this malady, and are too wise to decline good advice, are recommended to make use of the following prescription. (N. B. Fraudulent est.)

Take a grain of common sense, and one drachm of resolution, mix them well together, and swallow them. After which, if in London, take a walk down the Poultry, to Lambeth, or Aldgate; or if you live at the West End, go to Holborn, Oxford-Street, Charing-Cross, or Piccadilly; step into one of the Lottery Offices, or if in the Country, go to the first Lottery Agent, and by the production of a small piece of paper, called a Bank Note, you will receive another small piece of paper, called a Lottery Chance. When you reach home, take a draught of the cordial of hope, and in a few days there will be great reason to expect a lasting cure; particularly if a certain thing called a Lottery Letter should reach you, stating that your Number was drawn one of the Prizes of £20,000, which, with all the other Capitals, must be drawn the 14th of JUNE.

TWO Prizes of £20,000, besides 2,000 other Prizes, will all be decided 14th of JUNE.—No Chance—Every Ticket drawn out singly, each deciding its own fate and no other.
That; and Share Chances are selling at all the Offices in London; and by all their Agents in the Country.

FIVE TICKETS OF ONE NUMBER.

There are only 4,000 Numbers, with more £20,000 Prizes than were ever before contained in One Lottery, and Not Three Blanks to a Prize. Besides these Advantages, the Prices of Tickets and Shares are lower than in the last Lottery ; but those who may wish to adventure will lose this Benefit, should they delay their Purchases much longer, as the quick Demand will fully authorise an Advance of Price.
