Persian Democracy.

Understand

In 1910 Nassirulmulk, Regent of Persia, following the policy "Divide et impera" suggested that in Persian Parliament, like in other Parliaments of the world, right and left hand must be distinguished. On this suggestion reactionary elements went to the right, founding the so-called Conservative or Moderate Party; progressist and liberal elements who personified the Persian Nation formed the left. ^{or Democratic Party.} The Cons. Party had numerical superiority in Parliament, while the Dem. always formed Opposition.

After the fall of Czarism the Cons. Party

NOTICE.

After careful consideration of the food situation in and about Teheran the American-Persian Relief Commission and the Persian Relief Committee have decided that they will not this year purchase any food stuffs such as wheat, barley or rice. They have arrived at this decision because of the splendid plans of the Government in connection with the food control which entirely cover the needs of the situation. The prices offered by the Food-Controller are sufficiently high to warrant ample deliveries of grain and if the owners do not deliver the same to the Food-Controller at these prices they need not expect any sales to the American Commission. Land owners must therefore realize that on them alone would lie the responsibility of any recurrence of famine conditions during the coming winter.
