POUGHKEEPSIE, N.Y.

PRESIDENT'S OFFICE

Dear Sirs:

On behalf of Vassar College I desire to express the very deep and sincere sympathy which is universally felt in the loss which you have suffered. Dr. Burton's place in the world of education was a distinguished and honored one, and his achievements were wider in significance than the boundaries of his own institution.

While I join with Vassar College in mourning the death of an eminent educator, I am conscious also of the loss of an esteemed friend and fellow-worker in a well-loved cause.

Faithfully yours,

The Vice-Presidents,
The University of Chicago,
Chicago, Illinois.

EVANSTON, ILLINOIS

By formal action, the Board of Trustees of Northwestern University authorized the sending to the Board of Trustees of the University of Chicago the following tribute to the memory of president Ernest DeWitt Burton:

The Trustees of Northwestern University desire to express to the Trustees of the University of Chicago their profound sympathy in the irreparable loss sustained in the death of President Ernest DeWitt Burton.

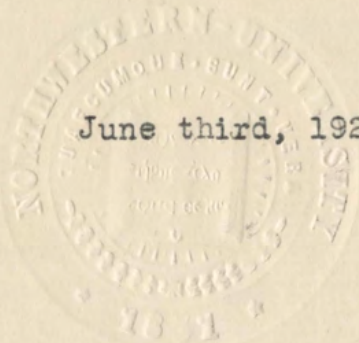

President Burton, in the capacity of President of the University of Chicago, has won the confidence and admiration of the entire community. With a modesty so characteristic of the truly great, he strove always earnestly, kindly, and unsparingly, for the accomplishment of all that promotes public welfare, and his success was manifest.

He was at once a great scholar and a great administrator. He recognized the importance of the achievements of the past, of recent discoveries, and of future progress. For him learning and culture were not things apart, but were forces intended in the providence of God to promote the Kingdom of God on earth.

You and we unite in mourning the loss of one who was a great leader in the work which we share in common.

Dear Doctor Tufts:

Iowa State College grieves with the University of Chicago. President Burton was well known and much loved on this campus. In a recent year he delivered our baccalaureate sermon and on other occasions he has been here and more often he has extended aid and courtesies to our representatives visiting your university.

The University of Chicago suffers a great loss, higher education suffers a great loss, and the world loses much in the death of such a man.

Very truly yours,

It was a great shock to learn of the death of President Burton, even though Dr. Soares when he was at Wellesley on May 24th told me of the serious nature of his illness. Speaking for Wellesley College, I offer my sincere sympathy. Not only has the University of Chicago suffered a great loss but also the whole educational world. I myself have referred to President Burton more than once for advice and I am sure that others have done the same. Had it not been that the announcement came on the eve of our Semi-Centennial celebration, this letter would have gone forward to you earlier.

OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT

2 June 1925

The University of Chicago,

Attention: James Hayden Tufts
Trevor Arnett
Vice-Presidents.

At a meeting of the Faculty of the University of Arizona, held on May twenty-seventh, the members of our staff who are alumni of the University of Chicago, at the request of the general faculty, presented the following resolutions which were adopted:

" On Tuesday, May 26th, there passed away Ernest DeWitt Burton, President of the University of Chicago. His long service in that University not only had established his reputation as a great teacher but also had made him beloved as a friend by the many with whom he came in contact. At a time in life when many men seek release from severe labor, he undertook a new and difficult task as the President of his University. In the short space of two years he formulated, and to a degree put into operation, policies of development which are certain to place the University in a position to do the great educational work rightly demanded of it.

June 2

The influence of the work done by President Burton during these two years, and of his earlier work as well, is certain to be felt in every university of the land. Because of this it is fitting that we, the members of the Faculty of the University of Arizona, should at this time express our recognition of the value of President Burton's labors, our sorrow at the loss of a great man, teacher and executive, and our sympathy for all those closely associated with him, and particularly our sympathy for Mrs. Burton, his bereaved wife."

These resolutions are forwarded that they may be presented to Mrs. Burton and to the Faculty of the University of Chicago.

Yours very sincerely,

Cloyd H. Marvin,
President.
