Office of the President

Chicago, November 9th, 1905.

My dear Dr. Goodspeed:-

I am obliged to you for the fuller interpretation you have given me of matters relating to the Manual Training School. I propose that we go forward to prepare the report and get it into shape as early as possible. As soon as it is ready let us call a meeting of the Board of Trustees and elect officers and submit the report. Then let this board call a meeting of the Association for the election of new members of the board. The meeting of the association can be held before or after some meeting of the Board of Trustees of the University. If this meets your approval will you kindly carry out the plan at as early a date as seems possible in order that we may feel that everything is in a cleaned-up condition.

Yours very truly,

Some facts for report on the Chicago Man. Tr. School, 1903-4, 1904-5.

The building on the northwest corner of Michigan Avenue and Twelfth Street, was erected by the Chicago Manual Training Association in the years 1883 and 1884, the corner stone having been laid September 24th, 1883.

The work of the school was begun in the unfinished building February 4th, 1884, and was continued till June 1903.

During the occupancy of the building, seventeen classes, numbering in all 872 boys, were graduated. The largest class was that of 1893, eighty-seven in number.

The new buildings on Scammon Court were sufficiently near completion October 1, 1903, for recitations and lectures. A few weeks later the shops and drawing rooms were occupied, and the full work of the school was resumed.

Prior to the beginning of the school year 1903-04 the Manual Training School had been united with the South Side Academy, to form THE University High School.

While the organization of the Manual Training School has been to a certain extent preserved, the pupils of the united schools have had the same instructors in their academic work.

An effort has been made to continue the shopwork and drawing on the same lines and with the same success as under preceeding conditions. A great assistance in this endeavor has been the fact that ~~the~~ ten teachers of the old school were members of the faculty of the University High School during the year 1903-04. Prior to the beginning of the school year 1903-04 the Manual Training School had been united with the South Side Academy, to form The University High School. the two drawing and the three shop teachers, four academic teachers, and the Director (now ^athe Dean). The wood-working teacher left the school in June, 1904, to accept in a State Normal School a much higher salary than he was receiving here. This was a serious loss, since good drawing and shop teachers are very difficult to find. In fact shop teachers must be trained in the school, and a change from a trained to an untrained teacher is necessarily accompanied with injury to the school. But this danger is always imminent as long as the school pays lower salaries than other institutions offer. The demand for shop teachers is greater than the supply; and school superintendents and other officials are constantly looking for men who have made a success in this line.

I may say here that Mr. G. Willis Ritchey, for years the mechanician of Yerkes Observatory, was taken from our shops by Profesor Hale.

During the summer quarters of 1904 and 1905 the drawing rooms and shops were in operation with a small number of students. This is an entirely new departure: and it is believed that as the fact that summer courses are offered, becomes known, the number of drawing and shop students in those courses will increase.

The number of University students, especially in the College of Teachers, who are taking drawing and shopwork is increasing.

I append the enrollment and the names of teachers for the two academic years 1903-04, 05.

The number of boys who received the Manual Training School diploma during the past two years is as follows:
June, 1904, 31: June 1905, 29.

My dear Dr. Goodspeed:-

I am writing to ask you to gather together material to be incorporated in the report of the trustees to the Manual Training School Trustees. Mr. Belfield will gather the material relating to the educational side. I want to ask you to gather the material relating to the financial side and to the trustees. Perhaps you and he will consult together for the material of the two of you will constitute the report. I have asked him to have his material in shape in two weeks. Of course in your work you will consult with Mr. Arnett.

There are two points in your letter which are not clear to me- 1) the number of persons on the Board of Trustees of the Manual Training School. According to your statement there are now only six. How many vacancies will this make? 2) The interpretation of the last phrase- "meetings can be called only by the Board". Does that mean the chairman of the Board, the president, who? In any case let us be sure that we have a quorum in order that we can fill the vacancies and elect officers. At this meeting should be presented
