UNIVERSITY PUBLIC LECTURES
1922-3

Pub 3

To the President of the University:

Sir: I submit my report as Director of Public Lectures for the year 1922-3.

Public lectures in the University of Chicago are described in the Annual Register p. 501: 1) Lectures arranged by a department, instructor or club for the members of that department or of some one class or club, to which other members of the University may or may not be admitted. The departmental lectures are in the nature of more or less informal class talks for which the department or instructor concerned assumes responsibility. 2) Lectures arranged for the Summer Quarter. 3) All other open lectures.

I.

During the year there have been some 287 lectures of the first group.

II.

The University Public Lectures, Summer 1922, were planned in accordance with a policy based upon experience of five years and approved by the President: reduction in number of lectures and increase in importance of each lecture. Such a program involved risk in reduction of receipts and in increase of expenses. The President instructed the Director to cover expenses but not to seek profit. The plan has resulted in decreased number of lectures, decreased total attendance, increased receipts, increased expenditures and a surplus of $3452.66.

The chief source of income in support of the University Public Lectures is the Friday evening series of lectures, recitals, plays and concerts. The number of seats in Leon Mandel Assembly Hall is 1098. Obviously the most expensive artists can be engaged only if the single admission fee is greatly increased. On the other hand only the most conspicuous artists draw in this community with its easy access to the notable entertainments in the city. Believing that the patrons of the Friday series would respond to a very high grade program and would willingly pay the increased cost of these more expensive artists, the Director engaged Reinald Werrenrath, Cyrena Van Gordon and others of similar rank and increased the admission charges as follows:

Friday Evenings

Single-admission ticket	$0.50
Ten-admission ticket (for members of the University only)	3.00

1922

Friday Evenings

Single-admission (except for June 23, July 7 and 14)	$0.75
Reserved seat tickets for June 23	$1.00, 1.25, 1.50
Reserved seat tickets for July 7	$1.00, 1.25, 1.50
Reserved seat tickets for July 14 (Candida)	$0.75, 1.00, 1.50
Special University ticket (for students and members of the University Faculties only)	$4.00
This ticket is good for seven Friday programs and entitles the holder to 50 cents reduction on prices quoted for June 23, July 7, 14, as long as tickets are available. Special ticket holders are advised to secure reserved seats for these dates as early as possible.
Special University ticket for one term only	$2.50

For Friday evenings during the first term 437 tickets were sold; for the second term 275. Single admission sales for Friday evenings amounted to $4912.25. The receipts for the course tickets amounted to $1640.00. The total receipts for the Friday evening series were $6552.25.

Receipts from the afternoon lectures--to which all registered students are admitted without fee--amounted to $426.00. The receipts for two additional plays by the Shakespeare Playhouse were $1534.25.

Total receipts from both groups of lectures amounted to $8512.50.

Expenses included outlay for lecturers and artists amounting to $3780.41 and administrative expenses including printing of circular of information, placards, tickets, service of department of buildings and grounds, ticket takers, ushers, newspaper advertising and all other expenses except the Director's fee amounted to $1279.43. The total expenditure amounted to $5059.84.

A comparative statement for the years 1914-22 is attached herewith.

Of course the test of success is not merely in the profit at the box office but in the superior grade of program. This is shown in the following list of engagements with attendance at each.
