Mrs. Charles R. Crane,

Fine Arts Building, Chicago.

My dear Mr. Crane:-

I am wondering whether you would allow me to send to you a stenographer who would take down from your lips a few expressions in reference to Russia and the Russian situation, the same to be carefully revised by yourself and published in "The World To-day"? I am having a copy of the "World To-day" sent to you with this. I would regard it as a great personal favor.

We are trying to make "The World To-day" a strong Chicago magazine, representing Chicago and Chicago interests, literary and otherwise. Will you not help?

Yours very truly,

H. O. Z.

My dear Mr. Crane:

Dr. Billings is just going to California for a much needed change. He has had a serious attack of pneumonia, but has rallied, and is slowly getting his strength. Yesterday he handed me this letter from your brother, which will explain itself. $150,000 will carry us out of the woods.

I remember with great pleasure my visit to your apartment. I have just had a visit from Mr. Dutton, asking me to become a member of the American Committee for Armenian and Syrian Relief. I am very much interested in the matter, and should like to join with those who are carrying on this excellent work. As I am a member of the Rockefeller Foundation, however, I thought it best not to join in various beneficent activities to which subscriptions are made by the Foundation. Please give my cordial regards to the good lady, and believe me,

Very truly yours,

Dear President Judson

This is a little note of greeting to you and the pretty lady. Before it arrives you will probably see Mrs Crane and get all of our gossip. I am writing particularly now to suggest that you bear in mind our former Ambassador to England,

John W. Davis, for some of your larger functions - I doubt if there is a finer speaker in the English language and that was the estimate Herbert C. Fisher made of him to me last year after hearing him and seeing him at the first banquet given him on his arrival in England - I understand also that his address at Oxford on the United States as a Treaty-making Power was fine - He is a man of rare distinction and should be carried along - affectionate family greetings

THE UNIVERSITY OF CHICAGO
FOUNDED BY JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER
OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT

My dear Mr. Crane:

I am writing to send best wishes at the moment of your sailing from our shores. Your undertaking is a large one, of course, but must be one of absorbing interest to anyone who has given any amount of attention to the situation in the far East. Nothing, to me, in the history of the world has been more thrilling than this age-long contest between the ideas of Asia and the ideas of Europe. For many years it was a question of commerce, a question of political and social development, and a question of physical force. At times it seemed as if the military power of Asia would dominate Europe, at times it seemed as if the military power of Europe would dominate Asia. Japan has found a wise solution of the struggle, in the adoption of the best ideas from both the Orient and the Occident.

On the same line would lie the wisest future for China. If she can hold fast the best that has been taught by her ancient and splendid culture, and at the same time avail herself of the best that can be learned from the progressive culture of Europe and America, she will not merely restore the ancient splendor of her empire, but, far more than that, will become once more a source of light to all the world.

I wish you, as an exponent of the best which America has to offer to the East, every possible success; and personally, yourself and family

My dear Mr. Crane:

I am writing to you at a moment of your waiting for our answer. Your undertaking is a large one, of course, but must be one of absorbing interest to anyone who has given any amount of attention to the situation in the Far East. Nothing so far, in the history of the world, has been more brilliant than this eye-long contest between the ideas of Asia and the ideas of Europe. For many years it was a question of commerce, a question of political and social development, and a question of physical force. At times it seemed as if the military power of Asia would dominate Europe, at times it seemed as if the military power of Europe would dominate Asia.
