~~My~~ My Dear Dr Jackson.

Now that Mrs Henderson has mentioned in her Will the bequest my brother left for a scholarship in the University, to become yours at the death of Ma Divers, May I mention

a subject which Charles and I had spoken of in connection with this intention, ^{but it was not expected,} It is, that in establishing such a scholarship, a provision may be made for the descendants of Albert Henderson and Jm H. Levering, having the preference in using the benefit of the Charles B. Anderson scholarship, this would benefit any great grand nieces or nephews of either my brother or his wife and might be of great service in some vicissitudes of life. I only make it as a suggestion and mention it to you now to be entered as a minute, as I shall not outline my sister Mrs. Dyer and one must speak in time.

There may be some of these little children who would appreciate it very much in years to come, no one can say.
As long as my sister in law

have no more note attention to any and of course the

Thank you very much

Dear Mrs. Levering:

of my best friends
always wished that one in the University or one of his devoted students with a real literary touch might be encouraged to write the Record of a Useful Life, which would do justice to his great energy for betterment of all, good, all culture and at the same time be an incentive to others. Thanking you for this bit of your time, with sincere wishes for the University, I am,
Yours truly, Oliver H. Levering

Dear Mrs. Levering:

Thank you very much for yours of the 4th instant. I am interested in what you say about the family and of course the University would always give special attention to any such applicants. I will preserve your note among our archives with that in view.

I think it would be very much worth while to have a sketch of Dr. Henderson's life. There was a person who set out to do it some time ago, but I never felt that he was just the right one. I hope it may be taken up later and shall be on the watch for the proper person.

Very truly yours,

Dear President Judson:--

I send you the budget of the School of Civics by Mr. Barnes ^a merely as a memorandum. ~~They~~ may be taken in connection with what Professors Laughlin and Merriam have told you.

Professor Laughlin has made a suggestion in regard to releasing a part of our force at the University to teach downtown. I do not know but it would be wise for me and my assistant to extend my courses in Charities and Corrections and in Social Organizations for Health, and give some of this work in connection with this school downtown. I believe that I could thus reach a larger number of competent students, many of them graduate students, and that this work might count for University work. This is only a hint to be thought over and discussed. It would have the advantage of permitting me to specialize somewhat more ~~than~~ there is a demand for in University classes.

Yours Sincerely,

C. R. Judson

The University of Chicago

Dear President Judson:

Your note on Dr. Perry's letter and a letter from Dr. H. Mac Donald (which you will also have) raise a large question, - much larger than either man has any idea of. They ask for a reasonable thing, but neither of them has any conception of what it means in a university. Society does need fundamental scientific study of the Causes of defect in human beings.

In brief outline I propose

1. A Council of Investigators of Causes of defect and of methods of education and care of defectives (abnormal, defective and delinquents), in our University. This Council would bring together specialists in various fields. +*+
2. This Council would be composed of professors of anatomy, physiology, neurology, pathology, psychology, anthropology, education and social technology.

Dear President Jackson:

Enclosed are a group letter and a letter from Dr. H. H. Wood (which you will also have) which is a large question, - must be larger than either was the any other of the nature of the responsible thing, but which is serious has very important. I think it is in a university. I think it is fundamental scientific study of the causes of defect in human beings.

I wish within 3 months
1. A Council of investigation of causes of defect and of methods of education and one of defect (abnormal, defective and delinquent), in our University, this Council would bring together specialists in various fields.

2. This Council would be composed of persons of anatomy, physiology, psychology, pathology,
pathology, psychology, anthropology,
education and social sciences.

Coordination of plans would be secured by
The University of Chicago
census agreements.

3. Materials would be furnished by hospitals, private practice, schools and State institutions. Work already done by board of education and psychopathic people would be coordinated with ours.

4. The two aspects of investigation would be (1) physical and social causes of defect; (2) scientific testing of methods and results of social treatment.

I should like to have a talk with you on the whole problem, and I wish us might lead.

Yours cordially,

C. R. Henderson

Contribution of them and to secure a
The University of Chicago
common agreement.

3. Materials will be furnished by hospitals, private practice, schools and that institutions. Work already done & board of directors and pay attention to public and to contribute with care.

4. On the subject of investigation would be (1) physical and social courses of report; (2) scientific training of students and research
social treatment.

Dear President Judson:

I have just received notice by cablegram from Washington that I have been appointed U.S. Commissioner on the International Prison Commission to succeed my dear friend Dr. S. J. Berdson who died April 21. This naturally means that the Commission will elect me its President and I shall ^{in that case} preside at the International Congress which meets in Washington. I was already Chairman of the Committee on Preparations appointed by the American Prison Association.

It is fortunate that I am in Europe as the Commission will meet in Paris about July 2 for final arrangements and the Secretary, Dr. Guillaume, of Berne, tells me they will expect me to take charge of things then. I go at once to Berne for a day to consult him.

P.S. Curiously enough Dr. Barrows told his wife and they both told me, several months ago, that if he died he wanted the President to appoint me as his successor. And Mr. J. Mc Glenn, Director of the Russell Sage Foundation called and wrote me the very moment after he died that I must be ready to accept the responsibility. Naturally I made no efforts as a Candidate. Indeed Dr. Williamson, a very intimate friend of Dr. Barrows, took up the matter and pushed it by cable, as he thought it was essential to have a President immediately and he knew the preference of Dr. Barrows for Mrs. Barrows. I tell you this so you can know the facts in the situation. I never moved a finger.

Please show this letter to Dean Small and Dean Matthews, as they have the most direct interest in this matter.

Mrs. H. joins with me in cordial message to Mrs. Judson.

Our hand in Spain was exceedingly fruitful, I succeeded in a week in securing information which I have sought for years in vain by correspondence, and I made acquaintances which will help me in the future. In a subject like mine, where it is necessary to be up to date, these connections are absolutely essential for the University, and the new appointment, although it carries no salary and merely pays expenses, will be a still further help, as it will keep me in correspondence with government officers all over the world.

I shall need very clerical help more than ever, you see, & I thank you for securing it for me.

Yours cordially,
C. H. Spurgeon

My dear Dr. Henderson:-

Your favor of the 28th of May was duly received. It gives me great pleasure to know of your appointment as Commissioner to succeed Dr. Barrows. No better appointment could have been made. Dr. Small and Dr. Mathews have both read your letter, and are gratified. I am interested in your sketch of what you have been doing since you have been gone.

Everything is moving pleasantly here; there is nothing by way of special news. I am leaving at the end of this week for Portland, Oregon, to attend the Northern Baptist Convention. Prospects for the summer quarter are bright. Mrs. Judson joins me in sincere regards to yourself and your good wife, and best wishes for your health and prosperity while you are gone.

MEMORANDUM

Office of the President

Dear President Judson:-

To make sure that you understand, the talk about a reception for the artists and workmen on the Memorial Library was purely an incidental illustration in a five-minutes' chapel talk. I am not responsible of course for what the newspapers have said and the use they have made of it. In the prayer at the laying of the cornerstone I mentioned the workmen, and Professor Coulter's wife urged that we have some kind of a recognition service when the building was completed. This possibly suggested an illustration in my talk. While I have in no way committed the University or the teaching staff, I should be glad to join in a movement of that kind if approved by the authorities.

Yours sincerely,

Dear Dr. Henderson:-

Your memorandum received. Of course I understood that the newspapers worked up what they did on a very slender basis. I am only wondering whether it is advisable to make a suggestion of that sort in a public address. Perhaps this is getting it wrong end first, and of course does in a way publicly commit us to something which we might or might not wish to do. The building will not be completed for many months yet, and many workmen will be employed on different branches of it. As soon as one portion of it is completed the workmen on that portion scatter and another set take their place. It would look to me, therefore, rather difficult to get together any body which would be at all adequate. If I am wrong in this I shall be glad to be set right.

Dear Dr. Henderson:-

Herewith I am returning your card. Your name ought to appear with your official rank as Professor in the University of Chicago, I should think. Then very properly might follow your membership in various learned bodies.

By the way, we must take up at an early date the details of the plans for lectures on the other side. These things were carried out by Dr. Hall through some friends of his in the east, and I was not conversant with the matters. I daresay Mr. Burton could make suggestions that would be appropriate. Of course all the lectures should be arranged in advance. I know more or less communication was had with Dr. Hume, who was quite helpful. However, as I say, Mr. Burton can sketch the thing out for us.

Dear Mr. Robertson:

I return herewith the form which you have had printed. I am in rather grave doubts about printing such a notice. It is only occasionally that the disturbance from little children arises and quiet personal instruction from the head usher would be all that is necessary. This notice should be given very early in the service. I am afraid that a printed notification would be misinterpreted and misunderstood. Perhaps I am wrong.

QUESTION IN SOCIAL ETHICS.

Of late the newspapers have had much to say in praise of a Chicago professor who came to his death through fatigue caused by his devotion to general social service. This man was a teacher in the University of Chicago, and received a modest salary. He was the author of a number of books upon sociological subjects and economics. He spent practically all of his time in attempts to reform society in general and forward the uplift among his fellows.
He had evolved somewhat pretentious theories as to how other men should conduct themselves and what they should do for their families. In fact, he was a typical devotee of "social service" as it has come to be known in all of our large cities. But when this man of great ideas died, he left a large family destitute. He had spent so much thought and sacrifice upon other men and their dependent ones that he had neglected to provide for his own.

And this suggests a question of ethics that ought to be answered by some competent authority. Who is to care for the reformer's family?
The Chicago man was rather an extreme type, to be sure, but there are throughout the United States thousands of reformers like him. They spend their time and their talents in vague and oftentimes profitless sacrifices for society in general but do not have the time or the thought to see that their own families are provided for against want. Of course, the socialist will argue that this is noble and commendable sacrifice, and that if it were persisted in by a sufficiently large proportion of the people there would be no such thing as want and destitution. But that kind of reasoning does not fill the hungry mouths of the Chicago professor's offspring nor afford substantial consolation to his widow.

The country abounds in pale students who think they have solved the riddle of human society. There are scores of authorities on finance who haven't the price of their own funerals; preachers of sweetness and light who never reflect that their own

Dear Sir:-

At the request of President Harry Pratt Judson I am bringing to your attention a mis-statement of fact in your issue of April 4, 1915: "But when this man of great ideas died, he left a large family destitute. He had spent so much thought and sacrifice upon other men and their dependent ones that he had neglected to provide for his own."

Dr. Henderson left a widow amply provided for. Not only so, it is the policy of the University of Chicago to provide a widow's allowance under certain conditions. Mrs. Henderson will have this allowance in addition to her own income.

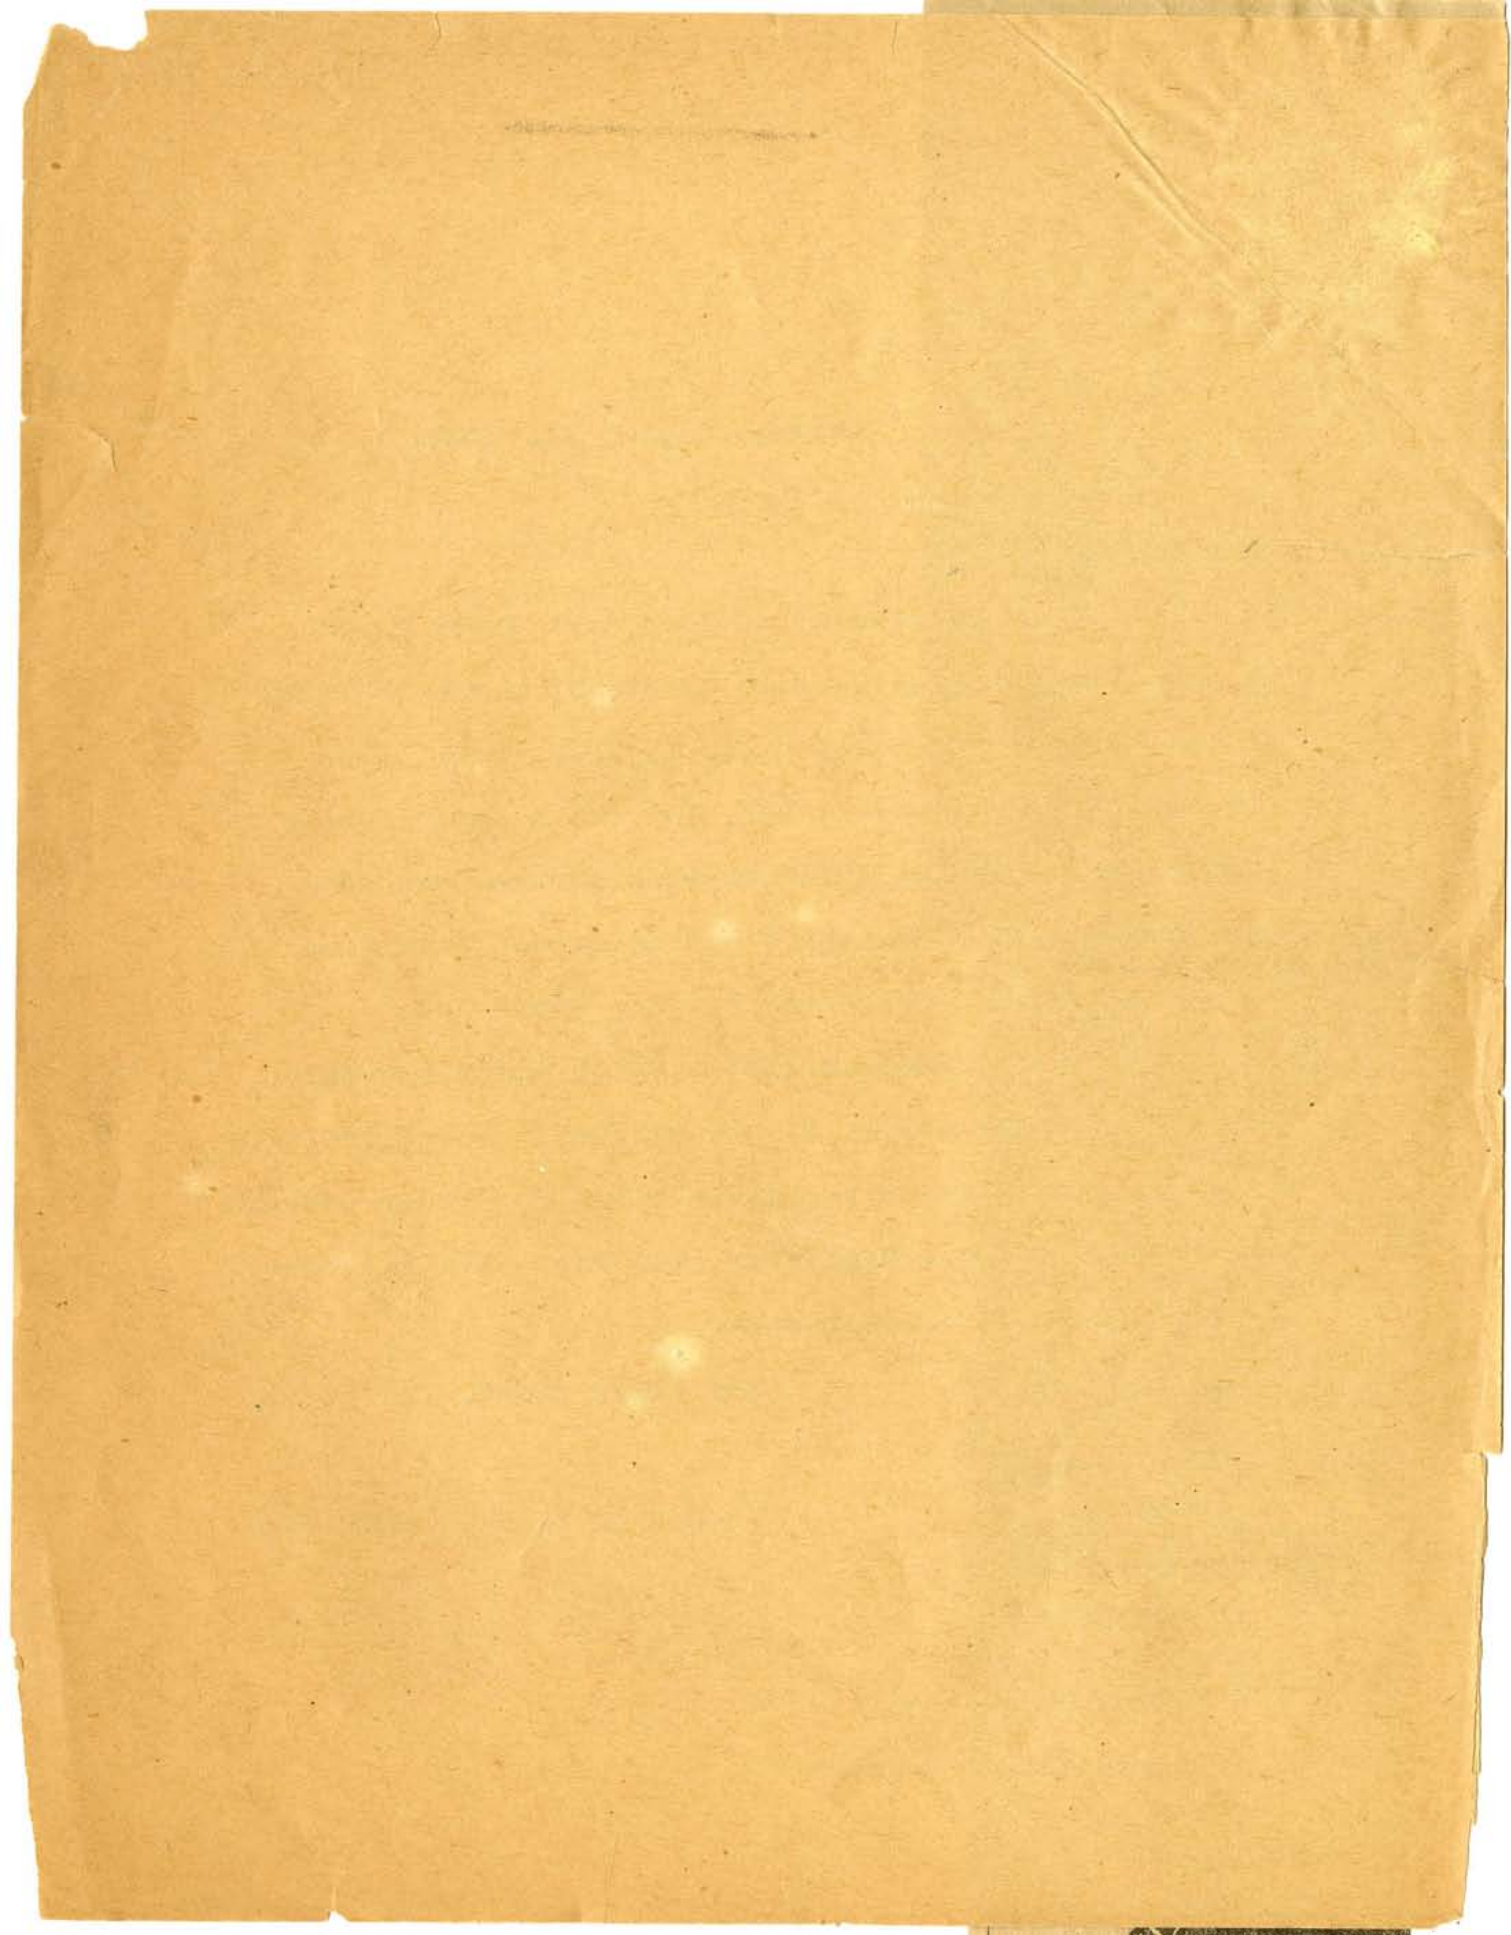

Very truly yours,

Secretary to the President.

Dear Mrs. Henderson:-

You will be interested in a paragraph of a letter which I have just received from Mr. R. M. Strong, now at the University of Mississippi, formerly of our Department of Zoology:

"The death of Dr. Henderson touched us of course as few such events could. The admiration which all had for that wonderful man has been expressed so many times and so well that I shall not presume to try to tell what we thought of him. As an illustration of the amazing scope of his interests I cannot refrain from mentioning his recommendation to students in your Mandel Hall chapel

vourse for the sake of the knowledge and interest in nature to be gained in that way. It was reported to me that he went on to tell of having himself been interested in studying birds."

Sincerely yours,

Dear Dr. Goodspeed:

My attention is called to the fact that in the History there are two references to Dr. Henderson. They in themselves are admirable. If it is possible in subsequent editions to add a further paragraph I think it might be desirable. What I mean is, there is nothing to show that Dr. Henderson was ever anything more than an Assistant Professor and Chaplain. In point of fact, of course, he was a full Professor and Head of a Department, besides being an eminent authority on his specialty.

Very truly yours,

Dr. Henderson

Dear Dr. Gilkey.

I am reading, with both interest and profit your series of lectures delivered on the Haskell Foundation entitled "Jesus and the Life of Today". But permit me to introduce myself by telling you that I am a graduate of the old University of Chicago of the class of '72. I was much interested by what you wrote about my boy friend, college chum and relative, Dr. Henderson.

There are a few incidents connected with his early life that are known only to me and which may be of interest to others who were his friends. I was his senior in age by only two months. His father removed to my home town, Lafayette, Indiana, ^{in 1864} and we became close friends at once.

The pastor of our church was Dr. Silas Bailey, president earlier in life, of both Granville and Franklin colleges. He both intended to go to college and that attracted us both to Dr. Bailey. He took a deep interest in both of us and had much influence in shaping our after lives.

He was ready for college earlier than I, and he selected Kalamazoo, whither Dr. Bailey had gone.

When I was ready to go in 1868 my father was anxious to have him go with me to Chicago. He said to him one day, "Charlie, some day Chicago will be one of the famous colleges of America, and you will be proud to have its degree." It finally we both went to Chicago he to enter "junior and D. Freshman. I think I am correct in writing that he passed an examination and entered Alabamago as a sophomore.

The first year he and I occupied the same room - No.
 26# in the old building. In 1870 the building which housed the old Baptist Union Theological Seminary was finished and he and Battel C. Smith of his class - '70, - were allowed to take a room there.

Later, when he was taking his theological course
 he was appointed to preach a sermon before his class
 for criticism. For several years it was our custom to take a walk after noon dinner. The day that he was so appointed he told me, and then he added that he intended to treat the class as a congregation and give the members a message and not to preach for criticism.

Forty years later, in 1911, when he was appointed to deliver the Haskell Lectures, he wrote and told me he was coming, and he added, "I have a message which I believe India needs."

(When he told me of the appointment to preach the sermon, his decision made no impression on me.

As my memory put the incident in evidence after his appointment to India, I saw it as an indication of character. He was a man with a message from the days of his youth. I suppose many talks that took place on those daily walks would be interesting
 now if they could be recalled - but memory fails me.

to have its degree. Officially and both went to Chicago to enter "Senior and Junior" members. I think I am correct in writing that he possessed an examination and entered the program as a sophomore.
The first year he and I occupied the same room - 10-12 22 in the old building. In 1870 the building which I shared the old Baptist Union Theological Seminary was finished and he and I left the building of his class - 10-12 ordered to take a room there.

Later, when he was taking his theological course
he was appointed to preach a sermon before his class
for criticism. For several years it was our custom to take a walk after our dinner. The day that he was appointed he told me, and then he added that he intended to treat the class as a congregation and give the members a message and not to preach for criticism.

Twenty years later, in 1911, when he was appointed to deliver the Whittell Lecture, he wrote and told me
he was coming, and he added, "I have a message which I believe God is sending."

(Then he told me of the appointment to preach the sermon, his decision made no impression on me.
He was necessary but the incident is evidence of his appointment to preach, I saw it as an indication of character. He was a man with a message from the days of his youth. I expressed many times that I was interested in those daily words, would be interesting
now if they could be recalled - but memory fails me

He were only two students taking a stroll for exercise and the conversations made even less impression than the physical exercise.

One day, before college days, we went into the store of one of the leading merchants in ^{our home} the city and the proprietor of the store said to us, "When are you boys going to stop studying?" Henderson replied, "When our hair is gray." He both made that statement correct, by studying till our heads had white crowns - and then kept on.

During his "junior year Prof. Stearns gave out an English exercise to be translated into Latin.

It was apparent that it was a translation from Latin into English, made from an author not easily obtainable. Babcock, a brilliant member of the class, now many years dead, succeeded in finding the Latin original. Prof. Stearns was surprised by receiving the most perfect set of Latin papers ever submitted to a teacher. Henderson joined in the fun, but with the condition that he must be allowed to submit his translation, which he did.

A second time Prof. Stearns submitted an exercise with the challenge to the class that it would be impossible to find the source from which that came.

Again Babcock ~~set~~ set his wits to work, and a second time perfect work went in. Henderson did his ~~own own~~ ~~trans~~ translating though he joined the class in the copy. Whether other men followed the same course he followed I have no means of knowing.

He never only two students taking a stroll for exercise and the conversation would even be inferior to them the physical exercise.

One day, before college days, we went into the store of one of the leading merchants in ^{our country} city and the proprietor of the store said to "us," "When you find boys going to stop studying? When do you stop?"
our hair is gray." He both made that statement correct by studying till our heads had white curls - and then he said, "I am your Prof. Thomas goes out on English exercises to be translated into Latin.
It was apparent that it was a translation from ceiving the most perfect set of Latin papers ever

A second time Prof. Thomas submitted an exercise sible to find the source from which that came.

them perfect work sent in. Thomas and his in the copy. Whether other men followed the same course or not, I have no means of knowing.

The other members of the class knew at the time that he faithfully did his work and the survivors, of whom there may be two or three, may recollect it.

Mrs. Henderson's father was my father's twin brother and so I wrote that Dr. Henderson and I were relatives.

I confess to some feeling of loneliness yet when I think of him as gone from earth. But I look forward to meeting him again.

I have written you rather a long letter. For some time there has been to me an opinion that my memory ought not to be the sole custodian of especially the two experiences growing out of his college life.

They seem worth a better preservation.

Hoping they may prove interesting to you.

Dear Sir:

The late Prof. Henderson was for many years a close friend and associate of mine. This was while we both lived in Detroit. He suggested and I carried out a philanthropic enterprise. Some years after its establishment the people whom it benefited, knowing my relationship with Prof. Henderson, presented to me on Christmas a fine portrait of him in a gold frame. It is life size and suitable for adorning the walls of a large room. At the time this was given to me I had a large house and I could use it but I now live in Chicago in a small flat and I cannot use the picture, much to my regret. I wish to present it to the University if the gift is agreeable. Will you kindly advise me.

If you desire that some one see it before determining whether you want it, it can be seen at my home 2745 Hampden Ct. at any time. I prefer to know when it is desired to see it, that I may have it ready.

As to who I am you may confer with Mrs. Henderson or with Professors Shephardson, Castle, Chandler, Price, and I might give you other names, but this will be enough.

Mr. Charles L. Mr. Hutchinson would like to have in mind some definite amount that the trustee under the will, the Continental and Commercial Trust and Savings Bank of Chicago, will allow to be expended in the erection of the tablet. He has asked that some inquiry be made of the trustee so that he will have a money basis on which he can make his plans. I have thought perhaps you would prefer to have your office make this inquiry and if you do so wish to have the matter handled, inquiry should be made of Mr. William P. Mrs. William A. Willard, nee Anne Henderson,

Mrs. John L. Griffiths, nee Caroline Henderson,

Mrs. Nelson L. Robinson, nee Maudie Henderson.

FOURTH: It is my intention and wish to provide for and have placed in the New Chapel of The University of Chicago, or in any other building if the President and Trustees think best and as they shall deem mine, a bronze tablet in memory of my beloved husband, Charles Richmond Henderson, deceased. In the event this shall not have been done during my lifetime I desire and direct that the Trustees of my estate, after consulting with the President of said University as to style, inscription and proper placing, shall have such tablet

made and properly placed, and charge the cost and expense thereof to my estate; such tablet to be of first-class style and workmanship.

FIFTH: All the rest, residue and remainder of my estate, real, personal and mixed, of which I may die seized or possessed, or to which I may be or might have been at any time entitled, I give, devise and bequeath to CONTINENTAL AND COMMERCIAL TRUST AND SAVINGS BANK, an Illinois corporation, located at Chicago, Illinois, as Trustee, and to its successor or successors, IN TRUST, for and upon the following trust purposes, terms and conditions, to-wit:-

(a) To hold, manage, control, lease, care for, invest and reinvest from time to time the said trust property, as hereinafter provided.

(b) To pay to my dear sister, May Levering Diver, the net income from said trust estate in semi-annual installments during her lifetime.

(c) Upon the death of my said sister, May Levering Diver, the principal of said trust estate shall be paid out-right to The University of Chicago, Cook County, Illinois, Founded by John D. Rockefeller, for the purpose of establishing

(I) The principal of said fund is to be invested and kept invested in perpetuity, as part of the endowment of said University, the income only to be used for the following purposes and for no other, viz:-

To provide for Fellowships or Scholarships, both or either, at the discretion of the Board of Trustees of said University of Chicago, in the Departments of Arts, Literature, and the Social and Physical Sciences, as these Departments are now organized or may hereafter be organized in said University.

FIFTH: All the rest, residue and remainder of my estate, real, personal and mixed, of which I may die seized or possessed, or to which I may be or might have been at any time entitled, I give, devise and bequeath to CONTINENTAL AND COMMERCIAL TRUST AND SAVINGS BANK, an Illinois corporation, located at Chicago, Illinois, as Trustee, and to its successor or successors, IN TRUST, for and upon the following trust purposes, terms and conditions, to-wit:-

(a) To hold, manage, control, lease, care for, invest and reinvest from time to time the said trust property, as hereinafter provided.

(b) To pay to my dear sister, May Levering Diver, the net income from said trust estate in semi-annual installments during her lifetime.

(c) Upon the death of my said sister, May Levering Diver, the principal of said trust estate shall be paid out-right to The University of Chicago, Cook County, Illinois, Founded by John D. Rockefeller, for the purpose of establishing

(1) The principal of said fund is to be invested and kept invested in perpetuity, as part of the endowment of said University, the income only to be used for the following purposes and for no other, viz:-

To provide for Fellowships or Scholarships, both or either at the discretion of the Board of Trustees of said University of Chicago, in the Departments of Arts, Literature, and the Social and Physical Sciences, as these Departments are now organized or may hereafter be organized in said University.

(II) Inasmuch as the purpose of this bequest is to aid deserving students in securing the benefits of education, and inasmuch as the endowment of Fellowships and Scholarships may in the future be supplanted by some more effective means of securing the said purpose I hereby request and direct that if in future years in the opinion of the Board of Trustees or their successors at that time, there is a more suitable use for the annual income derived from said fund and better calculated to effect the object for which the fund was established, that the said Board of Trustees or their successors are at liberty to use said income for such method of attaining the purpose desired; though the principal shall forever be known as and called

FIFTH: In the administration and during the term of the trust created by this will, my said Trustee shall have full power to sell, convey, convert, dispose of, invest and reinvest any of said trust estate or the reinvestments during its term, whenever it shall deem it expedient or necessary. During the period of the trust my Trustee shall hold, manage, lease, care for and protect said estate and collect the income therefrom, all in accordance with its best judgment and discretion, and may retain as a portion of the trust estate any investments made by me in my lifetime. My said Trustee is hereby given full power to sell and assign any or all of the trust property or any reinvestments thereof from time to time for such prices and upon such terms as it shall see fit, and no purchaser shall be obliged to see to the application of the purchase money. Dear President Harper:

In response to your request of May 4 I suggest the following analysis of Report on Religious Work in the University. In your Report for 1897-8, p. 200 ff., we gave the facts up to that date; and in your Report of 1898-9 the further history was recited. I have followed the line of development here.

1. The theory of the University in regard to the religious life: provisions of the Charter; wishes of the founders; guarantees of freedom, sincerity, and earnestness; relation of the Divinity School to the University.
2. The organization of the University in relation to religious life.
 - A. Historical sketch up to May 1901;
 - (a) Official: Chaplain; Chapel Assembly; Vespers.
 - (b) Semi-official: the Christian Union.
 - (c) Voluntary associations; Y. M. C. A. etc.
 - (d) Coördination of all these.

Tables.

B. Proposed improvements.

- a) Official organization: the Administration Board of the Religious Life.
- b) The Board of University Preachers.
- c) The new hall.

Dear President Harper;

I have composed this prayer about a central theme, - A World's Prayer to the God of Worlds.

The theme is carried through in the language of the "Lord's Prayer."

The variations are composed of elements selected from a wide range, - ancient India, Jew, Greek Church, Latin Church, Anglican Church, Liberal Christian, with a return at the close through a prayer taken from the liturgy before the division of Christendom, and the familiar doxology and Amen.

Your very encouraging letter is gratefully

In respect to the University lectures for first Term of Summer Quarter, I must take four or five days to

I hope to have the matter clear for a proposition.

P. S.

I have the material of Senate, Council, Faculty of Arts, and some other bodies ready for the "Code." I find it necessary to read every report of meetings, omit "dead letter" matter, piece together disjointed actions, and so reach the forms which are still in force. It is necessary that one person should do it all for the first draft because constant comparisons must be made. I hope in the course of a few weeks to be ready for a report. I will ask the other members of the Committee to examine and criticize, then ask Mr.
Johnson to look it over, and then show you the result in the best form possible.

Allen

Dear President Harper:

I will arrange with Miss Cobb to see you at your earliest convenience.

Meanwhile a few suggestions on the points raised.

1. I cannot think it was a mistake for Mr Sayford to speak. It was no serious interruption to Dr Hirsch; it was not women only;
it helped to build up a service which had been discontinued by the Bible Com.; and it gave me of the most earnest and pointed addresses we have had; and it encouraged the most active Christian workers in the University. The result was not disastrous but helpful. Dr Hirsch stopped at the command of his physician.
2. Yesterday afternoon the audience was small, but the address was excellent. This hot weather people are dropping off every engagement they can, and they begin with people whom they can hear any time.
3. I think it possible that the "new feature" of addresses at 7 o'clock may be objectionable. As a matter of fact it only extended what they had all the time. But it does not interfere with an afternoon meeting. We give up the 8 o'clock meeting because no one had the courage to speak to so few persons. We can change this if it is thought best.
4. As to the absence of the choir: - I presume Mr Williams thought that a solo would be an acceptable change.
5. As to the success of the U. M. C. A. and Y. M. C. A. being a cause for discouragement, that depends on the point of view.
In my judgment their meetings are the hope of real devotional life in the University. The Chapel service, the Christian Union, and nearly every form of religious activity find in these persons who believe in the M. C. S. the most patient and zealous workers. Instead of discouraging them I believe we should do all in our power to cheer them.

No one feels more keenly than I the difficulties of the position. But if you compare Continental or even English conditions with ours I think ours are more cheerful. We have the hardest task of any institution of our denomination and the best opportunity.

But if there is any instance in which any body of persons beside the disliked "Evangelicals" have succeeded in organizing a vital religious movement I have yet to discover it. Certainly we have done more than give liberty here, - we have urged it. There is no power of cohesion outside those who are cutain bound by "Evangelical" means. This does not mean that we should cease to build up the Christian Union, but it does mean that the others should not be discouraged. I am ready to utter a hearty word from any one, no matter how far he may be from my own beliefs.

Pardon length. I thought best to say this for fear the points might pass from my mind.

Yours sincerely,

C. R. Henderson.

Anderson

Council

Chaplain

Dear President Harper;

As required by the statute relating to the duties of the chaplain I here set down for your consideration some reflections upon the chapel service.

My judgment has been somewhat modified by observation, inquiry and experience.

My objections to compulsory attendance at chapel were:

- (1) that it was unnecessary; that the churches find attractive means to induce the young to attend, and that we could do as well. It is evident to me now that the conditions are so different that we cannot reason from one to the other.
- (2) Compulsory attendance would produce hypocrisy and create a prejudice against religion.
- (3) That a large attendance secured by compulsion would be a sham and deception. I still fear these results, but think that a way may be found to reduce the danger to a minimum.

I believe that something radical should be tried. The present effect of chapel service seems to me on the whole of doubtful good; the attendance is discouragingly small; the reports of meagre attendance are injuring the University in various parts of the country; we are humiliated before ourselves; our students and visitors from abroad; we are deepening the impression that very few people, even of the religious leaders, care for devotional life.

We have tried every legitimate means of making the service attractive. Sensational methods ought not to be thought of.

So far as I can learn there is not an institution in the country which enjoys a large attendance of students without requiring it.

Two courses seem open to us: (1) To abolish the service and turn the strength and time devoted to this service into students' meetings and important public services on Sunday; (2) To require attendance of undergraduates under proper regulations.

If we adopt the latter plan I should be inclined to defend it on these grounds: (1) That the University stands to minors in a quasi-parental relation. They are still in the educational stage and the college is their home. Religious parents require their children to attend worship as part of family order. (2) The fundamental distinction of a Christian college is that it proclaims religion to be an essential element of culture, the only subject common to all disciplines.

To avoid the evils and inconveniences connected with this policy I am inclined to recommend: (1) That separate services be provided for undergraduate students, apart from those of graduate and divinity students; (2) Undergraduates should be expected to attend chapel service, - with the provision that they could be excused by the President or Deans, on the written declarations

I believe that something radical should be tried. The present effect of chapel service seems to me on the whole of doubtful good; the attendance is disproportionately small; the reports of message attendance are injuring the University in various parts of the country;
we are humiliated before ourselves, our students and visitors from abroad; we are deepening the impression that very few subject common to all disciplines.

To avoid the evils and inconveniences connected with this policy I am inclined to recommend: (1) That separate services be provided for undergraduate students, apart from those of graduate and divinity students; (2) Undergraduates should be expected to attend chapel service, with the provision that they could be excused by the President or Deans, on the written decisions that they had conscientious objections, or on the written request of parents or guardians. The student should report absences from chapel to the leader of his division once a month, but should not suffer any penalty for absence. (3) Divinity students should be expected to attend their own service, but without penalty. (4) Graduate students should be invited to attend a service, either by themselves or with some other body, but no record of absences should be kept. (5) If the chapel room is too small for all, then the Junior College students could meet on two days of the week and the Senior College students on other two days of the week.

If absences were reported regularly to parents or guardians our responsibility would then be shifted to them and our full duty be done.

Yours sincerely,

J. L. Henderson

It occurs to me that on Monday the President of the University might with wisdom and justice say something like this, - and it could come from no one else so well:

1. That this University is pledged, in accordance with the expressed conditions and wishes of its founders, and the principles of its Charter, to stand for a Catholic and positive Christian life;
2. That the administration is ^{morally} bound by the public understanding to give effect to this conviction;

Dear President Harper:

I do not understand that you have given your "support and approval" to the Salvation Army, beyond a sympathetic hearing of both sides.
Even if you had done so, or chose to do so, I believe you are safe, within certain limits.

The Salvation Army can reach a certain class of the "submerged tenth", but not all.
The despotic organization is objectionable, but will care itself, and some people can work best that way. The Army contains my devoted and able people.

I would not commit money to them for endowments, because I do not think their organization can be or ought to be perpetuated.
I believe funds used by them should be for local, temporary and specific uses only; and ought to be controlled by a committee ^{which represents the donors.} for the self-respecting wage-earners the Army is of no use, save in rare instances. In spite of them as a rule.

What I have said applies with much force to the Volunteers also.

WOULD CHANGE CHAPEL SERVICE

University of Chicago Weekly Pleads for More Religion.

The undergraduate publication, The Weekly, of the University of Chicago, to-day, in an editorial, objected to the present system of chapel exercises and demanded services of a more religious nature.

It is said the preachings of John R. Mott have aroused students to make an urgent demand for more serious religion. The editorial says: "We, frankly state that a change in the present system of chapel services is needed. The present plan of conducting services consists of a short prayer, a chant by the choir, the dean's announcement and an entertaining talk by a faculty professor on some question having no bearing whatever upon religion."

"There wasn't much hazing at the naval academy when I was there," said Capt. Carpenter of the marine corps, "although once in awhile some funny thing was done. I remember one night when all the men in our dormitory were called out into an upper corridor to see what the announcer said was to be 'the grand prize.'"

"Four big plebes were led out, on their hands and knees and stark naked except for towels laid across their backs for saddles. They were the thoroughbred horses," quotes the New York World. "Then came four small plebes, dressed in undershirts, drawers and caps and wearing bright ribbon sashes. These were the jockeys. Each had a hairbrush for a whip. Then came four upper classmen as owners and four more as trainers. The little plebes were mounted on the big plebes and all the preliminaries of a running horse race were gone through. The owners instructed the jockeys to use the whips liberally and go out to win, and the trainers forced the horses to act up at the post. Finally the race was started and the four big plebes scrambled down the Actuated by no cavilling or hypercritical spirit, we desire to state frankly, basing our remarks upon a feeling among the students as well as upon our individual opinion, that a change in the present system of chapel exercises is needed. The exercises, as held at present, consist of a short prayer, a chant by the choir, the dean's announcements for the week, and an entertaining address by some professor, upon a topic with little bearing upon religion. From beginning to end the services occupy only thirty minutes.

We believe that the time set apart for chapel assembly is too limited and that the exercises fail to fulfill their purpose. The attitude of reverence with which the average student listens to the opening prayer fades away when the speaker takes the floor. Before the address is finished he has entirely forgotten that he is attending a religious service. He is in a lecture room again, and listening to a lecture, attention to which is not imperative; consequently he slips into indifference, and generally, before the next day, has forgotten the very title of the address.

Every student, no matter of what denomination, no matter how agnostical or atheistical, will be raised to a higher moral plane by attending, once each week, chapel exercises of an entirely religious nature; and will welcome an opportunity to put aside everything for an hour that he may listen, in a simple-hearted way, to the teachings of earnest men.

We are aware that chapel exercises conducted before the entire student body are impossible under the present conditions; that lack of room in the chapel compels the present system of different hours for different colleges; and that the real University chapel is still an architect's dream. Consequently, these changes which we have advocated are a trifle Utopian. A full hour devoted to chapel exercises three or four times a week would make too great a demand upon the time of the University chaplain, the speakers, and the choir. Nevertheless, we repeat that in our belief the majority of students desire a chapel assembly of longer duration, attended by the entire student body, or at least by all undergraduates, and especially, exercises completely religious in character.

Next Saturday afternoon at the "gym" occurs our first indoor meet this season with outside athletes. And although the occasion will not perhaps interest so many of us as if none but picked teams were to compete, or as if our opponent

The University of Georgia.

Few people are aware of the fact that the University of Georgia is one of the largest educational institutions in the United States. This University was chartered by the general assembly of the State of Georgia, January 29, 1785, but the college was not formally opened to the students till July 6, 1801. For the first half of the century the curriculum provided only for the single collegiate degree of "Bachelor of Arts;" but such a college could not keep pace with the progress of the nineteenth century, and so, immediately after the war the Board of Trustees, using the public lands donated by Congress, established the "Georgia State College of Agriculture and the Mechanic Arts." Since that time have been added a Law School, a Medical College, a School of Technology, the Georgia Normal, and Industrial college for girls, the Georgia State Normal School, the North, Middle and South Georgia Military and Agricultural colleges, the Georgia State Industrial college for colored youths, and four branch colleges for elementary and preparatory training.

The University grounds proper, which cover an area of thirty-seven acres, are located in the City of Athens, and furnish sites for twelve buildings. The other colleges, (ten in all) of the University are located in different parts of the state. None of the colleges are co-educational, and in five of them military science and practice is a required part of the curriculum. No tuition fees are charged except in the Law and Medical departments, the expenses of the institution being defrayed by the state.

William Ellison Boggs D. D., L.L. D. is the head of the University and is known as the Chancellor. Each one of the branch colleges has a president, but is under the control of the central department at Athens.

Discipline is strict. The students are allowed only thirty "cuts," and anyone who incurs more than that number is liable to expulsion from the University. No student may be absent from the city without permission from the Chancellor, nor attend any convention, fair, or public assembly of any kind except upon written application from his parents. Students are required to attend some one of the city churches on Sunday morning, and no student may change his boarding house without first notifying the Chancellor of his desire to do so. Proper scholarship standing is required of all candidates for the athletic teams.

There are now more than three thousand students in attendance at the various colleges of the University, all but about twenty-five of whom are residents of the state of Georgia. It can be seen that the University of Georgia is, pre-eminently, a state school, and the worth and effectiveness of the institution is proven by the fact that most all of Georgia's eminent men have been educated there, and by the wonderful agricultural, and commercial development which has taken place in the state during the last twenty-five years.

At a Sophomore meeting held last Friday, it was voted that caps similar to those given to the class football team be given to members of the relay team. The challenge of the Freshmen for a full track meet to be held in February was accepted, and Ferd Horton was elected captain of the Sophomore team. Several other important questions have been discussed among members of the class, but were not brought before the meeting because of lack of time. One was that the editors of the Cap and Gown be consulted, and if they proved favorable to the idea, that the class teams have their pictures taken and inserted in the Cap and Gown for 1901. These various marks of honor by the class to its most active members should prove a great stimulus to class spirit.

It was further proposed that all '03 men who have won their 'C's be permitted to wear the numerals. These questions will probably be decided at the next meeting of the class.

Miss Grace Darlington and Miss Edith Schafer are wearing the pledge colors of the Mortar Board.

The new Yale dining hall, now in process of erection, is to be 200 feet long, 60 feet wide and 60 feet high. It will have cost when completed, $300,000, and will have a seating capacity of approximately 4000. An administration building, a dormitory and a new home for the law school are also being built.

Dear President Johnson:

I thank you for letting me see the letter from Prof. Matthews; it is very encouraging.

I note the alleged report of my sermon in the Tribune. I have asked them to publish my denial of the foolish sentences ascribed to me. Ask Prof. Moulton; he was there. The two sentences marked I did not utter; the rest is commonplace to any reading man. I believe any one who heard me well that day it was a downright earnest plea for the value and eternal power of God's life in ~~man~~ man.

Mr. C. L. Hitchcock;

My dear Sir:

It was very kind of you to send me the beautiful service book: The New Altar. I shall use it for family devotions occasionally to secure freshness of expression, and I shall call attention to it at the next meeting of the Committee of the Family Department (Religious Education Association).

It is compact, excellent in form, and the addition of hymns makes it valuable for the family circle
as well as for the Sunday School.

The prayers are earnest, simple,
spirited.

In lectures for the Religious Education Association I am urging the improvement of domestic worship and the need of helps.
I think this collection comes nearest of anything I know to supplying the want.

We also need corresponding collections of classic expressions of Religion to read along with the Scriptural selections, - stories, proverbs, poems, etc. If you have any suggestions for us on this point also they will be carefully considered.

Yours sincerely,

Dear President Judson:

I present herewith my report of work done by means of the grant of $180 for clerical aid and $420 for an assistant July 1 1907 to June 30, 1908; this preliminary report covering clerical aid for six months ($90) and work of assistant, Dr. H. P. Selinger, for three months, autumn quarter of 1907.

For stenographic and copying work 287 $\frac{3}{4}$ hours, an average of about 31.2 cents per hour. In addition to this one excellent student clerk worked for me 133 ^{hours} on a report for the American Prison Association, paid by the Charities & Commons (Sage Fund), at 25 cents per hour.

I forward herewith my report of work done by means of the grant of $100 for clinical aid and $250 for an assistant July 1, 1907 to Jan. 30, 1908.

The preliminary report covering the first six months (1907) and the second six months (1908) of the work of the assistant, Dr. G. B. Johnson, for the first six months, and the second six months, are herewith.

In stereotyping and copying work 287th hours, or amounting to about 21.5 cents per hour. It is an excellent thing that I have worked for me 183rd hours, or amounting to about 21.5 cents per hour. The American Prison Association, for the first six months, at 22 cents per hour.

The Governor has just appointed me a Trustee of the Industrial Training School for Girls at Geneva and the quarterly meeting occurs October 1st. This will require that I have a representation in my room on that day to aid students with information and advice. As they are graduates this is not serious. We return on Tuesday after a month in a delightful locality with the finest golf links I ever saw. I have made good use of them, written several articles, completed "Social Duties" and nearly completed another book, besides considerable reading.

Ready for a new year in fine health and hope.
God grant you a prosperous year,

Yours cordially,
C. B. Judson

Dear President Jackson:

The Government has just appointed me a trustee of the Industrial Training School for Girls at Boston and the Boston I.

Quantum meeting occurs
this will require that I have a representative in my room in that day to all students with information and advice.
As they are graduates this is not serious.
In return or traveling after a month in a highly talented society with the first of all I have seen. I have made good work of them, written several articles, completed another book, books considerable reading.
Thank for a new year in
for health and life.

Yours cordially,
C. Johnson

I know of no other student now abroad, but I think that correspondence with some of the persons I have mentioned will help to secure the name of some local person who can speak English. I may add the name of Dr. Max Lederer of the K. K. Landesgerichte, Prague, Bohemia. On the spur of the moment I can make some suggestions. He speaks English and knows America. Professor E. von Philippovich in Vienna, once a guest of our University, speaks English and can be in London Mr. Foster should see Honorable Percy Alden, M. P., of great service. Dr. W. D. P. Bliss, 44 E. 23rd St., Chicago, may and Mr. C. S. Loch, the Secretary of the Charity Organization Society, also be a good person to write to. In Liverpool, Hon. John L. Griffiths, United States Consul, my brother-in-law, in case he is at home. He is now in this country, and will be until after the election. In Liverpool he might also see the City Surveyor, who will show him the new dwellings erected by the city and the clean spaces between them. In Paris my friends, Professor Felix Klein, Bellevue (S. et O.), and Mr. P. E. Lefébure, 14 bis Avenue du Trocadéro, and Mr. Felix Dupres de la Tour, 33 Boulevard Raspail. In Leipzig I can recommend Dr. J. Plenge, Decent in the University, and Vice-Consul Nachod, a banker in Brühlstrasse. All of these persons are my friends, and he can use my name. One of my students, Mr. Hildebrandt, is now studying in Berlin University, and is very competent. Reverend Dr. Crosser has recently gone to Berlin as pastor of the British-American Church. Mr. Howard Woodhead, Ph. D., Ellis Avenue, Chicago, can make suggestions of value. He has studied German cities with great care.

My dear Dr. Henderson:-

I am somewhat surprised at receiving from Governor Deneen notification of my appointment as a delegate to the American Prison Association. You of course will be there. While I am interested greatly in the subject, at the same time I am far from being a specialist in this matter, and feel that your own presence will be entirely adequate to represent the University. Would it be better for me to decline the appointment, so that somebody else might be appointed who would be able to go?

Very truly yours,

H. P. Freedom

Dr. C. R. Henderson,
The University of Chicago.

Dear President Freedom
It is a mark of respect.
I would simply thank him for the courtesy & say that Henderson will represent the University at this meeting. It is not necessary to decline. He likes to make good appointments.
Yours cordially,
C. R. Henderson
