Chicago, Dec. 14, 1900.

President William R. Harper,
The University of Chicago,
Chicago, Illinois.

My Dear President Harper:-

Your letter of the 12th inst., appointing me a University Marshall, was received this morning. For the honor thus conferred, you have my most sincere thanks. I believe that I appreciate to a considerable extent the responsibility of the position, and that I realize that the office is worthy of the best effort and truest dignity of any Marshall. I hope that my service as a Marshall and my character and effort as a man, and as a son of our beloved University, may be such that I shall never prove unworthy of the office. In this spirit I gratefully accept the appointment.

Very respectfully yours,

 Charles J. Webb.

My Dear President Harper:-

Your letter of the 12th inst., appointing me a University Marshall, was received this morning. For the honor thus conferred, you have my most sincere thanks.
I believe that I appreciate to a considerable extent the responsibility of the position, and that I realize that the ment.

Very respectfully yours,

March 10th, 1908.

My dear President Judson:

The plan of selecting marshals and aides has undergone many changes during the past few years. At present, so far as I know, ~~no definite~~ well understood plan of procedure is in force. In order to systematize the administration of this important matter, I beg to submit the following suggestion:

A. Number of marshals and aides. Experience goes to show that the size of the staff should be approximately as follows: a) 12 marshals; b) 10 aides.

B. Method of selection. While this body is maintained by appointment by the President, it should be in some sense self perpetuating, that is, nominations made by the marshals and aides in residence should have weight in determining the final selection.

C. Points to be considered in making nominations and appointments: a) Personal character, general usefulness and prominence in student activities; b) scholarship; c) number of university credits. Ideally the student should be selected at such period in their course that they can be in the position to serve from three to five Convocations. This would mean that the largest this important matter, I set to work on the following suggestions:

1. Number of materials and slides. Experience shows to show that the size of the staff should be approximately as follows: a) 10 materials; b) 10 slides.

2. Method of collection. While this body is maintained by appointment by the President, it should be in some sense self-perpetuating. That is, nominations made by the materials and slides in research should have weight in determining the final collection.

3. Policy to be maintained in making collections and expenditures. a) General character, quality, and quantity and preservation in proper condition; b) general kind of material of scientific character. Ideally the collections should be added at such times as they are found they can be of use to the institution. This would have the effect number of appointments in a given year could best be made in the spring quarter. d) These students should be selected so as to represent as far as circumstances would permit, all phases of student activity, that is, intellectual, social, literary, athletic, religious, clubs, fraternities, etc.

D. Methods of nomination. a) College marshal will consult with marshals and aides and make list which is submitted to the Congregation marshal.

If Miss Talbot's recent experience
b) The congregation marshal 1) gets scholastic record from Bureau of Records, 2) consults the respective deans, 3) puts material in shape and submits to President for final consideration and action.

E. Having followed essentially the plan outlined above I wish to submit the following recommendations to you for your consideration in preparation for the coming Convocation.

There are at present in residence six aides. I wish to nominate the following six from whom four might be selected to bring the total number up to ten.

III. Marshals and Aides.

A. Qualification and Appointment.

Before we proceed farther with the exercises of Convocation week an explanation of the work of marshals and aides is in order. There are faculty marshals to the number of twelve and student aides to the number of six. The number of marshals and aides in residence at any one time may fall below this. The faculty marshals including the marshals of the Congregation are appointed by the Congregation. The student marshals and aides are appointed by the President. In practice nominations are made by the Secretary to the President who confers as a rule with the Marshal of the Congregation.* In making selections for student marshals and aides the aim is to name students who have creditable records in their courses and who are leaders in some field or other. It is usually wise to appoint students with not more than twenty-seven and not less than fifteen majors of credit in order that on the one hand marshals may be upper-class-men and on the other hand serve long enough to become experienced. Summonses for service in the case of both faculty marshals and of student marshals and aides are sent in the name of the President or the Secretary to the President but specific directions concerning participation in exercises are issued by the Marshal of the Congregation.

* It is the custom in the nomination of aides for the Secretary to the President to consult with Miss Talbot.

B. Duties.

The duties of marshals and aides are to direct action at public exercises, the receptions, the entertainment of guests, and Convocations. Specific assignments are made by the Marshal of the Congregation.

2. Duties.

The duties of marshals and aides are to direct action at public exercises, the reception, the entertainment of guests, and Convocations. Specific assignments are made by the Marshal of the Congregation.

C. Duties of the Head Marshal.

The duties of the Head Marshal are more definite. They include, first the direction of public exercises, supreme for the occasion. The Marshal of the Congregation forms his plans in consultation with the President and the President's Secretary, but all orders issue from him at the time of execution and he is in charge. Second, as incident to the power of direction, the preparation of instructions for the exercises of Convocation week to the faculties, to candidates (these instructions prepared by the Marshal of the Congregation are printed under request and order of the Secretary to the President), marshals, the Superintendent of Buildings and Grounds concerning arrangements in buildings, the Steward of the Reynolds Club concerning the disposition of the Club, the Director of the Choir, and the Director of the Band concerning music, the Manager of the Information Office concerning ushers at the Convocation, and the Deans concerning the presentation of their candidates for degrees. Typical instructions to candidates and the faculties are herewith appended. All these instructions except those to the faculties and candidates are usually typewritten under the direction of the Congregation Marshal, but they may in an emergency be given to this office for the clerical work involved.

U. Duties of the Head Marshal.

The duties of the Head Marshal are more definite than those of the other Marshals. They include, first, the direction of public order and decorum for the occasion. The Marshal of the Convention takes his place in consultation with the President and the President's Secretary, but all orders issued from him at the time of execution and he is in charge. Second, as incident to the power of direction, the preparation of the program for the exercises of Convention week to the Marshal of the Convention are printed under request and order of the Secretary to the President. Third, the Superintendent of Buildings and Grounds, concerning arrangements in buildings, the Steward of the Reynolds Club concerning the disposition of the Club, the Director of the Choir, and the Director of the Band concerning music, the Manager of the Information Office concerning matters of the Convention, and the Organ concerning the presentation of their candidates for delegates. Fourth, the Marshal of the Convention is responsible for the execution of the program and the Marshal of the Convention is responsible for the execution of the program. All these instructions are usually prepared under the direction of the Convention Marshal, but they may be an emergency be given to other officers for the special work involved.

Although specific instructions for the Band are issued by the Congregation Marshal, the Secretary to the President is accustomed, some two weeks in advance of Convocation, to give the Director of the Band a list of the occasions at which the services of the Band will be required. It may be said in this connection that the Band is always under the direction of the President through the Secretary to the President and that it is not expected to play without the approval of this office.

The division of power in the matter of arrangements for Convocation exercises is practically this: Physical arrangements within the power of regular University employes not involving additional outlay are in the main directed by the Marshal and covered by the instructions to which reference has been made. Arrangements involving outlay, as that for refreshments and otherwise, are ordered by the Secretary to the President. ~~It is the case~~
~~that the nomination of the aides for the Secretary to~~ ~~the President is made with Miss Talbot.~~

Although specific instructions for the fund are issued by the Corporation Marshal, the Secretary to the President is authorized, when two weeks in advance of Convention, to give the Director of the Fund a list of the occasions at which the services of the Fund will be required.
It may be said in this connection that the Fund is always under the direction of the President through the Secretary to the President and that it is not expected to play without the approval of this office.
The division of power in the matter of arrangements for Convention exercises is practically equal. Physical arrangements within the power of regular University employees not involving additional outlay are in the main directed by the Marshal and covered by the instructions to which reference has been made. Arrangements involving outlay, as that for refreshments and otherwise, are ordered by the Secretary to the President. Expenses are for the benefit of the University and are not to be considered as a fund for the benefit of the Corporation.

I am sending you a copy of the resolution passed by the Senior College Council at a recent meeting. The President approves the resolution and has desired Mr. Johnson, Mr. Sheperdson, and me to take steps toward the appointment of representative women students to act in official capacity at the coming Convocation reception or possibly the Convocation itself. It has seemed best to us, inasmuch as the matter is one which concerns the women of the University almost entirely, to name a committee of women in the Faculty to recommend a course for us to follow, and we have unanimously agreed that Miss Talbot, Miss Wallace, Miss Reynolds, and Miss Dudley should constitute that committee. Therefore twelve seems not too high a number. Finally, it will probably be thought best to make the appointment of women in the capacity suggested, at first only tentative-that is to try their participation in the coming Convocation as an experiment. If it works well, the plan may be made permanent as the marshalship is permanent.

Marshalls and Aides

My dear President Harper:

Mr. Judson, Mr. Shepardson and I took up last Thursday the resolution of the Senior College Council in favor of the appointment of women to serve at Convocation, but agreed that before making any recommendation it would be well to ascertain the sentiment of the heads of the women's halls and Miss Dudley, who are in very close touch with the women of the University. We therefore asked Miss Talbot, Miss Reynolds, Miss Wallace, and Miss Dudley to form an informal committee to advise us on the points presented.

They recommend that if women are appointed (and I take it on that point they do not commit themselves, although from a conversation with Miss Talbot, I think she approves the idea) they serve principally at the Convocation reception and possibly assist women candidates for degrees and women who are members of the Faculty in the Convocation procession. Through them, for instance, we could tactfully carry out our wish of instructing women to remove their hats at the Convocation.

In the second place the Committee approve the term "aide" which has been suggested.

In the third place, they advise that the fact of membership or non-membership in separate clubs be ignored in the choice of aides and that the basis of representation instead be the official organizations among the women of the University, the five women's halls, Green, Beecher, Foster, Kelly, and Spellman House, the Woman's Club, The Young Women's Christian League, the Woman's Athletic Association, and possibly the Girls' Glee clubs.

If a regular committee is feasible and it is desired to have one or two aides at large to stand for girls who are not members of a particular organization, Miss Talbot said that the Committee would not oppose the addition of two members at large for the Senior College and one member from the Junior College. It seems to me that on the whole we can not improve very much upon the plan as the Committee has thus worked it out. I wonder if it will not be well to adopt it and proceed at once to put it into execution.

I wish to call your attention, in connection with the nominations for Aides, to the case of Frances Herrick. She has lost the sight of one eye, and is, I am told, obliged to wear colored glasses most of the time. This physical disfigurement is the principal reason for Miss Talbot's non-approval. Mr. Robertson and I both feel that, unless the physical disfigurement is particularly conspicuous, it is desirable to ignore it, everything else being equal, in making these appointments. I make this note so that you may have the matter in mind in considering these lists.

Dear Miss Talbot:-

The ushering at the Peace Meeting, December second, is a service which I think should be voluntary on the part of the aides. I have, therefore, written to Ruth Allen saying that although I do not wish to direct the aides to render this service, I think it entirely fitting that they should volunteer to represent the University on this occasion. I have also directed her to secure the co-operation of as many aides as possible, and to report to you.

President Harper, Shel

Dear Sir:-

Your very kind letter notifying me of my appointment as a University Marshal is at hand, and is greatly appreciated. It gives me much pleasure to accept it in the spirit in which it is tendered, and to assure you that in this as in every other capacity, I shall do my utmost to promote the interests of the University.

Respectfully yours,
Curtis R. Manning.

Inasmuch as with the Heads of the other women's halls you were good enough to consider the plan for the appointment of "Aides", I desire to lay before you the present status of the project. President Harper felt, in the first place, that the number of aides ought to be smaller than that originally proposed; in fact he set a limit of six. In the second place, although he appreciated the force of the suggestion that the members of the new body should represent the official organizations among the women of the University, he deemed it advisable to follow the same plan that prevails in the choice of marshals; that is, to select the six best candidates and to avoid confinement to any particular organizations. In accordance with this policy, the following persons have been named, Miss Helen A. Freeman, Miss Lillian Stephenson, Miss Clara Taylor, Miss Ethel Vaughn, Miss Anne Payne Wells, Miss Clara K. On the recommendation of the Senior College Council, it has been decided to appoint a group of girls to render assistance in connection with the coming Convocation on somewhat the same order as the work of the Marshalls. It is especially hoped that girls will be able to supplement in a tactful and effective way the assistance of the Marshalls at the Convocation reception. Whether or not participation in the exercises of Convocation itself will be advisable, is a question not yet decided, one which it is hoped can be worked out in consultation with the newly created officials themselves. I conferred with Dr.

Shepardson concerning the head marshalship. He agreed that Dr. Raycroft's nomination of Mr. John Fryer Moulds was a good one but thought that perhaps Mr. Harold H. Swift might be a better candidate in view of his election as president of the senior class and his general capability for such a position. I then referred the suggestion of Dr. Shepardson to Dr. Raycroft whose note appears on the accompanying letter. The difference in attitude is due to the fact that Dr. Raycroft is considering the head marshalship in its relation to the Convocation and seeking an efficient marshal without regard to the ordinary eligibility to honor. Dr. Shepardson considers the position rather as an honor to be awarded. The issue is joined in this way. Both men are eminently fitted for the position.

My dear Dr. Raycroft:-

I suggested to Mr.

Judson as candidate for the honor of Head Marshal among the undergraduates John Fryer Moulds. At his request I submitted the list of Marshals then to Dean Shepardson who was of the opinion that in view of the fact that Mr. Moulds had twenty-three majors at the end of the summer quarter and was a good man he would be certainly a candidate for the position. He suggested, however, that Mr. Harold H. Swift might be a better one. Mr. Swift, as you know, has been elected president of the senior class since our conversation concerning marshals. He is a man whose sense of form is just that which a marshal should have, and would make a desirable candidate. I think either of the men would be a good choice. Have you any further comment to make before I present the report to Mr. Judson?

My dear Mr. Judson:-

I have taken the advice of Dean Shepardson and Dean Vincent on the question of marshals for the coming year. I submitted the following list: Messrs. Buhlig, Harper, Harriman, Kramer, Gray, Hostetter, Lyon, Moulds, and Swift. Mr. Shepardson and Mr. Vincent unite in agreeing upon Hostetter, Lyon, Moulds, and Swift. Mr. Shepardson approved Mr. Gray and suggested Norman Barker. He would not appoint Harper at the present time believing it better for Paul not to be pushed ahead too rapidly. Mr. Vincent approved Kramer and Harper and suggested in addition Roney, Schlabach, Jordan, and Gunn. I do not think we can go far wrong if we appoint Messrs. Hostetter, Lyon, Moulds, Swift, Gray, Barker, Harper, Kramer, and Gunn. I append a table showing the number of majors credit of each of these men and their approximate grade in their studies. The table also indicates their fraternity.

It has been my idea, practically disregarding fraternity lines, to choose men who have shown capacity for leadership in one place or another.

I shall be glad to talk over the nominations with you at your convenience. There is no objection to any of the men whom I have named and on all of them at least two of us agree. I do not on the whole feel the force of Mr. Shepardson's suggestion regarding Paul Harper. He has fourteen majors of credit, a brilliant record in his courses, and has already been elected to office by the students: that is he is a member of the Student Council. Therefore it cannot be said that we are showing any partiality toward him. He is the kind of man who would make a good marshal no matter whose son he was.

Of this list Mr Buhlig with his 22 majors and a record of A-, Mr. Felsenthal with 20 majors and a record of C+, and Mr. Schlabach with 18 1/2 majors and a record of C++ seem to be the most desirable persons. There are three vacancies at present in the list of marshals. In looking over the complete list of marshals at present serving and those to be nominated the Marshal of the Congregation and I have come to the conclusion that Mr. Moulds would be the most efficient Head Marshal to succeed Mr. Friend. The present list of matshals is as follows:

Chicago

Of this list Mr. Holmes with his 32 majors and a record of A-, Mr. Felsenbach with 30 majors and a record of C+, and Mr. Schlesinger with 18 1/2 majors and a record of C+ seem to be the most desirable persons. There are three vacancies at present in the list of marshals. In looking over the general list of marshals at present serving and those to be nominated the Marshal of the Congregation and I have come to the conclusion that Mr. Holmes would be the most efficient Marsh Marshal to succeed Mr. Friend. The present list of marshals is as follows:

- John Fryer Holmes
- Paul Bowley Fryer
- Neil Mackay Town
- Earl Robert Souter
- Alvin Frederick Brown
- Harold Avery Town
- Harold Haines Wells

Shall we announce in letters to these individuals the honor conferred on them at once? I have asked the four aides to report to Miss Talbot Monday for instructions concerning some work in connection with the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs. They have as yet, however, no knowledge of the honor conferred on them. The aides named, you will remember, are Margaret Spence, Helen Sunny, Stella Anderson, and Winifred Kelso.

President, The University of Chicago.

Head Marshall
Dear Sir;

You no doubt remember, that at the last Convocation, in a case of emergency, the honor of the office of Head Marshall was conferred upon me. After serious reflection I cannot but feel, for many reasons, that the office does not rightfully belong to me.

Mr. Walling, who was first nominated for this honor, lay claim to none of the preceding qualifications.

The part which I took in the ceremony of the last Convocation will be readily understood by all, and I shall not feel annoyed in the slightest to have Mr. Walling, or any one else, take that which seems to me to be his own.

Very respectfully
Charles Verner Drew

bring out of town, did not receive notification to be present at the Convocation. Mr. Ralph Hamill intended to receive the baton from you for Mr. Walling.

I believe that the office of Head Marshall should, by reason of its prominence, be filled by a regular Classified student, who is distinctly representative of The University in excellence as a student, an orator or an athlete. My duties in the Comptroller's office are comparatively arduous; my time and energy for other matters become consequently very limited, so that I can

It is a duty and a pleasure for me to call your attention to the admirable work done by the marshals and aides in maintaining order about the buildings and grounds on the days of registration. We registered nearly the entire under-graduate body of the colleges of Arts, Literature and Science on Friday and Saturday morning, September 29th and 30th. The ease and rapidity with which this was accomplished was in part due to the excellent conditions maintained in Cobb Hall. I have written to the Head Marshal, Mr. Hanisch, thanking him and his corps of aides and marshals on behalf of the Deans.

Very truly yours,

Vice-President J.H. Tufts

Dear Dr. Tufts:

I inclose herewith a request from the College Aides and Marshals for exemption from final examinations as a matter of general principle.

You will perhaps remember that last June we did exempt the newly appointed Aides and Marshals from examination, on the ground, which would of course recur every June, that the duties of the newly appointed members of the staff took so very much time that it was impossible for them rightly to prepare for examinations.

I think that we might well as a matter of principle exempt Aides and Marshals from final examinations in June; but I do not feel that they have an adequate basis for exemption in the Autumn and Winter Quarters.

You will note that they do not support their request by specific arguments.

I should be glad to have and to transmit your ruling in this matter.

Dear Dr. Brewster:

I enclose herewith a request from two ladies, Alice and Mary, for exemption from final examination as a matter of general principle.

You will perhaps remember that last June we did exempt the newly appointed Alice and Mary from examination on the ground which would of course exempt every one. The failure of the newly appointed members of the staff, took so very much time that it was impossible for them to prepare for examination.

I think that it might well be a matter of principle to exempt Alice and Mary from final examination in June, but I do not feel that they have an adequate basis for exemption in the August and Winter quarters.

You will note that they do not support their request by specific arguments.

I should be glad to have and to transmit your ruling in this matter.

Dear Sir,

The college aides and marshals take this means of presenting their request for exemption from the final examinations for this and the ensuing quarters. If it is too late for action to be taken upon the matter in time to have any effect upon the Autumn Quarter examinations, we wish to present our request for exemption to take effect beginning with the Winter Quarter, 1925.

I left in your charge the other day a sample baton and asked for an estimate as to cost. Your report over the telephone I have received and wish now to order the supply of which I spoke.

Please make two (2) batons the same size as the sample with ebony shaft and gold ferrule and head. Please make also ten batons the same size as the sample with mahogany or rose-wood shaft worked up as a dark maroon color. These instead of gold should have silver ferrules and heads. The finish of the silver I am a bit uncertain about. Should it be bright or a florentine gray in order to look well with the mahogany staff? The price of the silver batons you have already given me over the telephone. Please telephone me the price of the ebony and gold ones.

SELECTING MARSHALS AND AIDES

Selection of University Marshals and Aides will soon take place. Since the method of picking these high honor students is not generally understood, The Daily Maroon prints the following from Dr. E. J. Goodspeed, Secretary to the President, explaining the system:

The Marshals and Aides assist the Marshal of the University in the conduct of public functions of the University, such as Convocations, Convocation receptions, and Convocation religious services. They are chosen annually in the Spring quarter on the basis of scholarship, activity in undergraduate life, and general promise. A list of persons in the Senior college who have not more than 30 majors, and not less than 18 majors, with a scholastic record certainly not lower than "C," is first made up for the Marshal of the University.

That officer, in conference with the deans and others, checks the names of those who ought on any grounds to be considered. The Marshal of the University then takes up the list as checked with the existing body of Marshals and Aides. He hands to the Head Marshal the list of checked names, perhaps 40 or more, asking him to confer with the Marshals and to report back a list of approximately 20 of the most desirable men, with the grounds for their recommendation.

One of the Aides receives a similar list of women, with similar instructions. The Head Marshal prepares on a card the college record of each of the candidates the Marshals desire to report back. The card shows the standing in scholarship, relations to student activities, etc. At a meeting of the Marshals, each Marshal arranges the list of 20 in the order of his preference. The Aides similarly express their individual preferences as to the 20 names they report.

These lists of preferences are then tabulated by the University Marshal, and the resulting lists, arranged in the order arrived at by the vote of the Marshals and of the Aides, are again submitted to the deans principally concerned. The preferences of these officers are recorded by the Marshal. The Marshal and the Secretary to the President then present the list to the President with the cards containing the individual records. The President then, with the full record before him of each candidate in scholarship and in college activities chooses ten Marshals and ten Aides from the names reported, designating one of the Marshals as Head Marshal.

Harold Fletcher, general chairman, yesterday, "the commission will need more cooperation in the matter of housing, rushing, providing of automobiles, and so forth. With these important matters on the calendar for the meeting, it is necessary that all members of the commission be present."

Cook County Schools Enter

The latest batch of entries received includes three Cook county schools which are expected to be among the tournament point winners: Hyde Park, University, and Oak Park high schools. Hyde Park especially enters the meet with a good reputation, as its team outpointed all city and county schools in the indoor tournament held in Bartlett gymnasium in the early spring. U. High won laurels in the Drake relays by winning two third places. Oak Park has a strong team, with Captain Crawford, all-around track star, among its representatives.

REGISTRATION FOR ADVANCED JUNIORS CONTINUES TODAY

Registration in the colleges of Arts, Literature, and Science is proceeding steadily under the new three-quarter system, inaugurated last month. Registration for members of the Junior class, or those with 24 or more majors began yesterday. Last week was given over to registering members of the Senior class.

The graphic record sheets indicating the quality and departmental distribution of the student's work will be in use when members of the Junior college begin registration Wednesday. All registration has been conducted according to the new three-quarter system, and time schedules for the Autumn, Winter, and Spring are available. Registration for the Summer quarter will take place later. Time schedules for the Summer quarter have not yet been issued.

The dates for registration are: May 16, students with 21 or more majors credited; May 17, eighteen or more; May 19, fifteen or more; May 22, twelve or more; May 23, nine or more; May 24, six or more; May 25, six or more; May 26, three or more.
