Dear Sirs:

Referring to your recent letter regarding the publication concerning Dr. H. B. Richards, we ask your attention to the enclosed letter to Dr. W. W. It seems that reporters are sometimes more careful than college presidents, as Dr. Daniel gave us this information as it was published.

U. OF C. PLANS TO IMPORT MONKEYS FOR EXPERIMENTS.

Professors in Physiology Department Will Use Simians in Place of Dogs in Their Work.

University of Chicago professors are going to study monkeys.

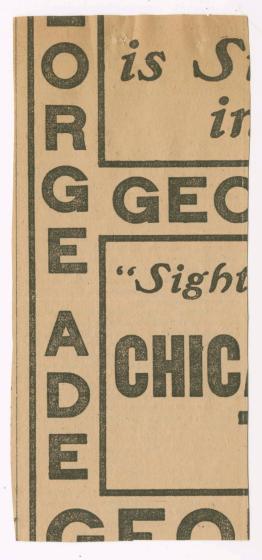

As soon as possible a large number of representative simians will be imported from Africa and shipped to the physiology building of the university, where quarters have been prepared for them. It is said that as many as 100 will be brought from the groves of the central parts of the dark continent.

Members of the faculty of the medical department of the university are interested keenly in the study of the development of the animals. It is the plan of the members of the physiology department to experiment upon them, using them to a certain extent in place of dogs, the animals now most used in research experiments.

Members of the physiology department are said to have been considering for some time the advisability of importing monkeys, but were able to come to no satisfactory decision regarding the enterprise until the results of the venture at Johns Mopkins proved successful. Johns Hopkins is said to be the only university in the world where monkeys are now used for experimental purposes.

A year ago members of the physiology department secured a monkey for experimental purposes. He was nourished and prepared for the first experiment, but on the way to the operating table the monkey became frightened, and before they could begin the tests the animal became afflicted with heart disease and died.

It is stated officially that the monkeys will not be used for experimenting purposes in the classroom or in the laboratory. They will be used only in research work.

Students Charge Cruelty to the Professor Who Operates in Vivisection Classes Without Use of Anaesthetics

COEDS WATCH AND SHUDDER

Dog's Brain Is Bared and Probed; Scalds Animal's Feet to Watch Effect on Nervous System

Charges that unnecessary cruelty is shown in vivisection experiments conducted by Assistant Professor A. J. Carlson of the physiology department of the University of Chicago are made by students who attend his classes. Three young women are among his pupils.

The instructor is accused of failing to use his pupils.

The instructor is accused of failing to use anaesthetics where the lack of them causes the subjects of experiment torture, which could be avoided at the cost of the few minutes of recitation time needed to apply the drugs. He is not credited with intentional cruelty, but accused of thoughtlessness. The young women of his classes are the loudest in complaints.

Cuts Spine with Chisel

An unusually painful operation was described by a medical student as having been performed on a cat. Dr. Carlson, in order to explain the reflex action of the nerves, severed the spinal cord at the neck, using a bone chisel for the operation. According to a member of the class no anaesthetics were used.

The spinal cord having been severed the cat was left to suffer throughout the hour of the recitation, in order that Dr. Carlson might demonstrate whether reflex action of the nerves can be obtained while the spinal cord is severed. While the animal lay in pain Dr. Carlson continued his lecture, though there was little attention from the medical students.

Co-Eds Watch Suffering Cat

Co-Eds Watch Suffering Cat

Co-Eds Watch Suffering Cat

The three young women pupils were compelled to watch the operation on the cat, in order that they might not miss any of the technical points of the effect on the cat's nervous system, as the knowledge is required for a degree. Throughout the hour the coeds sat shuddering.

Concerning this experiment, a medical student said:

"I am not opposed to vivisectional work when done with the use of anaesthetics. There is no use of making the operation brutal, however. A few minutes' work with ether would have removed the cat from all pain, but this point seems to have been overlooked. I do not believe that Dr. Carlson is intentionally brutal; it is simply his enthusiasm for his subject that carries him away. He is one of the greatest physiologists in the country and his whole life seems to be wrapped up in his work."

Scalds Subject's Feet

Scalds Subject's Feet

On another occasion Dr. Carlson scalded the feet of a cat to see what effect the scalds would have on the nerves of the animal. Another experiment was done with a dog, in which the skull of the canine was opened with the use of a bone chisel. The brain being laid bare, the professor probed the brain to see the effects of stimulants on the nervous system.

Medical students declare the experiments named are a few examples only of the work mental students declare the experiments named are a few examples only of the work being done in the laboratories. Other operations equally as brutal are carried on daily by other members of the physiology department.

Carlson Is Rising Genius

Dr. Carlson has been connected with the Dr. Carlson has been connected with the university but two years, during which time he has won a place among the foremost physiologists of the world, rising from the position of instructor to that of assistant professor. Last year he was offered the position of head of the physiology department of the University of Wisconsin and was retained at the University of Chicago with difficulty.

City with Ax Clears Walks - Obstructions in Wholesale District Are Battered Down or Ripped Up Till Mayor Halts Crusade

An army of wreckers, wielding axes, picks and bars, and under the guard of a detail of city policemen, made the first attack in the city's "skid" crusade early today when they swept down on the wholesale district. Great excitement was caused by the smashing and ripping of the timbers in the bulkheads as they were wrenched off the sidewalks, piled into wagons and impounded by the city officials in charge.

Incoming suburbanites, who poured from Illinois Central trains at Randolph street at the time the wrecking gang began prying out the skid supports belonging to Sprague, Warner & Co., congregated by thousands, and disturbance was only quelled by the police escort.

Employes of Sprague, Warner & Co. rushed from the building when the crashing and banging of timbers, the shouts of the onlookers, and the hoarse orders from the foremen of the wreckers were heard, and scores of them attempted to interfere with the city's crusade by forcibly pushing the workmen from their tasks. The police were again called into action and kept the clerks and employes back in the building.

Begin Work Early

Begin Work Early

Begin Work Early

The wreckers began their work just before 8 o'clock. The suburban trains were discharging their heaviest loads at the time, at the Randolph street Illinois Central station. The sight that greeted the early morning workers, as they came down the viaduct, caused them to hurry to the scene of an apparent conflict. Within fifteen minutes of the time of the attack the bulkheads had been removed from the Sprague, Warner & Co. front, and the wrecking gang had moved to the northward. Just as the excitement was at the highest and the Sprague bulkheads were being thrown into wagons by part of the crew, while others began the attack at the Hoyt building, a messenger dashed up to the superintendent of the work, who hurriedly scanned the written words, raised his hands, and dropped them as he shouted, "Stop!"

It was an order from Mayor Dunne staying the work until the owners could have a hearing before the commissioner of public works.

works.

The action of the city followed the city council order of late last fall giving formal notice to the owners of bulkheads on Michigan avenue sidewalks, between Jackson boulevard and the river, to have them

The first place attacked has been considered the worst offender of the district, and none of the owners of these bulkheads has been reported as having torn away the Supt. Michael English, acting upon the orders of Supt. Doherty of the city streets, who received his instructions from the commissioner of the board of public works, had charge of the work. He started out from the city hall with twenty-five laborers at 7 o'clock.

The laborers were armed with crowbars, pickaxes and axes, naildrawers, clawhammers and pike poles. They formed an imposing looking crusading party, and they marched with military precision to the spot where work began.

CHICAGO, Aug. 9.—That women of fast habits make "commonly good wives"; that most American women are merely "house cats" leading abnormal lives, reduced to a condition of parasitism, and that they have been driven to "trickery and hypocrisy"; are some of the startling statements made by Professor Wm. I. Thomas of Chicago University, socialist, which appear in an article on "The adventitious character of women." The article is in the American Journal of Sociology, issued today from the university press.

Prof. Thomas makes a vicious attack upon the social system of America, defends institutions not recognized by the moral code, and gives a physchological defense of the "social evil."

The startling declaration of the professor has caused a sensation second to none that have been aired of late at the university. IN REPLYING QUOTE INITIALS

In a recent paper published at my home, White Hall, Ill., appeared an article which was decidedly uncomplimentary to my Alma Mater, the University of Chicago. Loyal son that I am of the U. of C. I do not propose to let the statement contained in this paper go unchallenged, so am writing to you for some data concerning the University. One of the quarters preceding my graduation in September 1903, President Harper delivered a lecture to the graduates-elect telling considerable of the business management and affairs of the University. It is some of these facts that I want.

- 1. What is the total endowment of the University?
- 2. Of this amount how much has been given by John D. Rocke-feller?
- 3. From what sources did the remainder come?
- 4. How many buildings are on the campus now?
- 5. Of these how many were erected by Mr. Rockefeller.
- 6. How much did the buildings cost that have been erected by Mr. Rockefeller?

The inquiry you made as to Emma Goldman I have followed up. Of course, she is not going to speak at the University of Chicago. My Secretary tells to her in connection with the University. We never pay any attention to anything we see in the Chicago Journal. So far as this particular thing is concerned, there is nothing in it.

Very truly yours,

17 Frace avenue! Ho Salewood: O. Many H: 1901. my dear sir: Mour note of the 1th instant, has just been received: it suggests to me the idea that I should tell you why I opined this correspondence, recently, with you , over my life studies of the fur- seed herd Last summer, a bout paper carried a despatch which announced the quechase of the albany collection of fossils made by James Hall, for the University of Chicago: Mr. Kockefeller paid more than 1,00,000 for it, etc. That caused me to think of offering my collection, as I have: but Then, S. Harpeis successor had not been named, and no one seemed to know who he would be: therefore, I let my desire in the matter sest until your selection was aunowed.

Jame sure - very sure that if you see my water color life atudies of this once mighty head on the Pribylov Is- lands, you will not give the Hall palaentalized collection a higher credit mark.

Very Sincerely yours Denry M. Elliott.

My dear President Judson:

The Tribune of May 17 contained what purported to be an announcement of the Academy minstrel show and the Tribune and Record Herald of May 18 contained what purported to be a statement of the occurrences at the show. There was no foundation, in fact, for any statement in any one of these reports. The song said to have been sung about Mr. Rockefeller was not sung; the joke quoted as having been given was not given; and no one of the epithets said to have been applied to Mr. Rockefeller was so applied. In fact, there was nothing whatever connected with the evening's entertainment that was discreditable. One of the hardest things I have had to contend with is the evident feeling of the public that resentment over the closing of the Academy should cause our students to commit acts of excessive disorder. In view of the announcement of the Tribune the day before the minstrel show, it seems to me remarkable that the boys did not do something which we should regret. The fact is that the conduct of the boys this Spring has been better than usual. This is remarkable considering the unusual conditions under which the year is closing. We shall endeavor to secure this good conduct until the very close of the school.

Yours very truly,

you say about the report of your address. It is after the manner of modern journalism. Several papers called me up on the telephone asking me to express an opinion on the subject, but I inevitably declined. It is one of my rules never to express an opinion on things which people are alleged to have said.

FRIENDS' PRESS ASSOCIATION of BALTIMORE YEARLY MEETING

PARK AVENUE

Baltimore, 2nd mo. 29" 1908.

To the President and Faculty of University of Chicago.

ESTEEMED FRIEND:

For eighteen years we have been writing to editors throughout the United States asking them to eliminate the sensational and harmful from their columns, by so doing giving a higher tone to the papers of our Country. It is conceded by the thinking men and women of the age that there is no power equal to the press for influencing public thought. As people grow to realize this fact every individual should endeavor to direct this power towards high and noble purposes. The pen is limitless in the great moral and effective influence it exerts and through it the press becomes a force which rules the minds and hearts of thousands of our young citizens. This being true it is imperative that the press discard all which is not conducive to brain and character building. Being convinced that editors have to cater to public sentiment in order to earn a livelihood through their papers, we desire that the people be taught their responsibility, and we are now appealing to you who have the care of the young, advising that you teach those over whose lives you have assumed guardianship to shun papers that are sent out with immoral items and improper advertisements.

Feeling assured of your cooperation we enclose our report of our work of last year with the request that we may hear from you.
