My Dear Mr. Harper

I am a good deal puzzled with regard to the selection of subjects for my course of lectures in Chicago, but I have finally decided upon the following :

- I Literature as a Personal Resource
- II ~~Gothic's Maxims~~ Literary Criticism in America
- III A Familiar Talk about the Art of Writing
- IV Nature and Culture
- V Culture for To-day

If you wanted a general title, these might be called "Aspects of Culture." They are the very best things, in my judgment, that I have done, and I am selecting them for that reason. I am questioning a little whether I would not better substitute for the last lecture one on "The Creative Element in Life;" an address which I have given on various occasions at educational conventions, and which has seemed to be specially helpful to teachers. Perhaps you can give me a hint on that point. Will you, at your leisure, send me the time and place of the delivery of the lectures ?

Yours very truly,

Hamilton W. Mabie

P.S.--I am glad to see that I shall probably meet you at the University Convocation at Albany.

Open Lecture
My dear Dr. Harper:

With the present amount of material, it is impossible for me to make very much headway with the Open Lecture program. We are very much in need of some strong men in English Literature. I trust that you can arrange with Mr. Bliss Perry to spend at least a week with us. I indicated on his recent note to you definite dates on which we can utilize him.

We need one or more good men in Literature, but I am somewhat at a loss to know whom to suggest, Cable, Griggs and Mabie having all declined. Perhaps we could get Professor Harry Thurston Peck of Columbia. I know nothing of him as a lecturer. If you have opportunity to confer with him while you are in New York, it might be well to do so.

We are getting along fairly well with our Science group. Who is conducting the correspondence with, and can give me the data concerning, Mr. Perry of England? You also stated in our conference that we were to have with us a Professor Rahsel. Who has the data concerning him?

May I arrange with Mr. Taft for a series of from twelve to twenty lectures on Art? Not that he is to give all of them, but I would like to have him assist me in planning the course and to suggest men for various subjects.

Will you kindly write a note to each of the following, inviting them to give a series of from four to eight lectures each,

Summer Quarter

For the President
Fall
Ward Moulton?

A great point to my mind is the method of utilising credit courses for 'open lectures'. Desirable, not only for the outside public, but especially for other university students who will take them, but not for credit. This is part of the problem of interesting specialists in other specialties.

2. I did this with my Milton course. Experience suggests the importance in this case of a printed syllabus: if numbers run to 300 or 400 conditions are unfavourable for note-taking, though in every other respect the union of students with a large audience is good for the students.

3. The plan of the above course was, first hour public, second hour students only. — Another time I should like to try 3 (single) hours a week for the public, 1 for students [devoted to discussion of written work].

4. An important point is the grouping of courses, as in the Biblical group this summer. It might be possible to see how far this operated, if the Dean's office could supply information:

How many students taking either 1 or 2 of Dept. XVI [President Harker's or Prof. G. A. Smith's] took also 3, 4, 5 or one or them.

A great deal to my mind in the matter of extending the course for "open lecture" because, not only for the outside public, but especially for other university students who will take them, but not for credit. There is a great number of interesting material in other specialties.

2. I do this with my other course experience and great importance in this case of a private syllabus of number one to 500 or 400. There are important also for not taking. Though in every other respect the same of the best with a large audience is good for the students.

3. The plan of the above course was, first, to have public, second, to have student only. A matter that I should like to say 3 (single) have a seat for the public, 1 for student [direct] to the university of which work.

4. A very important point in the spreading of science, as in the latest great lecture series. It might be possible to see how for the character of the lecture officer could supply information.

How many students taking either 1 or 2 of Sept. 17th President Harkness on Sept. 17th took also 3, 4, 5 or one or two.

Handwritten notes and signatures in the right margin, including a large signature that appears to read "J. H. Harkness".

The essential point seems to be a To aim at special subjects distinguishing each summer. [No objection to more than one special subject.]

b The determination of the special subject depends mainly on the men we can secure, both of our own professors, and outsiders.

6. Our plans for the summer ought to be matured much earlier.

President William R. Harper,

My dear President Harper:

I myself arranged with Drs. Lawrence, Stephens and Stetson for Open Lectures. I am surprised that there are no others.

Inclosed you will find the copy of a letter I have just sent Payne. Burton is quite willing to give four or eight lectures on the Sermon on the Mount - a course he gave last Winter at Rochester.

Jones drew out a scheme of five lectures on the History of Music - the Ambrosian and Gregorian chants, etc., - to be in some measure vocally illustrated. I understood that this material was to go to Payne.

When Last Summer ~~when~~ Dr. Johnson gave his illustrated course on Christian Art he had a few students who did earnest, required work and received credit. There were, however, many constant visitors. Why could not the two classes of students be easily provided for in that course, thus making it an Open Lecture?

Mathews is always ready to talk, and I think Willett is never averse. I heard from Brewster two or three Summers ago several most interesting, illustrated lectures in the manner in which the Pyramids were constructed and on other Egyptian topics.

I think it is too late to go hunting for outside lecturers. I already have considerable demand for the printed programs.

Lawrence arranged with you to subscribe his honorarium to our building fund. I distinctly informed Stephens and Stetson that they were not to receive compensation.

Open Lectures

Adopted by the University Senate December 7, 1907, with amendments.

To the Senate:

Your Committee appointed to inquire into the system pursued by the University with reference to Open Lectures, has considered the subject and reports as follows:-

A distinction should be made between three classes of lectures:

1. Lectures arranged for by one particular department, instructor, or club, for the members of that department, of some one class, or club, to which other members of the University may or may not be admitted.
2. Lectures arranged for by the University Extension Department to be held during the summer quarter. (To be known hereafter as "University Public Lectures.")
3. All other open lectures - to be known hereafter as Public Lectures.

In the opinion of your Committee no action is required with regard to the first two classes of lectures, except that the first class should be designated as departmental rather than as Open Lectures. The departmental lecture should be in the nature of a more or less informal class talk for which the department or instructor concerned alone assumes responsibility. The Open Lectures of the Summer Quarter arranged for by the Extension Department seem to have been eminently successful in securing attendance and the Committee sees no occasion for disturbing the present system.

With regard to the third class of lectures, there is at present no system whatever, and the lack of system is felt in lack of coordination, publicity, and interest taken by the members of the University.

The Committee believes that the University should assume, with regard to these lectures a more definite responsibility, and with that end in view, it recommends that, in the future, all open University lectures (other than those planned by the University Extension Department, and not including Departmental Lectures or lectures delivered before clubs) be arranged for through the President's office and with the sanction of the President of the University.

By this means it will be possible to make adequate provision in the matter of hours and rooms, to adopt more effectual methods of bringing lectures to the notice of the members of the University and of outsiders, and generally to emphasize the fact that an Open Lecture (now "Public Lecture") is a University affair involving certain obligations both to the Lecturer and to the University.

It would fall to the duty of the President's office to devise proper means and methods which would be flexible and guided by experience, and the Committee therefore refrains from making more specific recommendations.

UNIVERSITY PUBLIC LECTURES.

Report to the President of the University:

I herewith submit my report on the University public lectures for the Summer Quarter 1918. The policy

The policy governing the program for the season was embodied in the introductory material printed on page three of the circular, as follows:

"An alert student finds residence at the University of Chicago important, not only because it permits concentration on a small number of subjects of special value to him, but because it allows an opportunity for at least general acquaintance with progress in other fields which interest him but which in his limited time cannot be intensively studied. Registration for classes in the several curricula supplies the first need; the University Public Lectures afford an aid to achieving the second aim. These lectures then are not merely "popular" but are addressed primarily to serious University students. The University is glad to share this opportunity, however, with those who, though not registered in the University, desire to keep in touch with recent progress in art, literature and science.

"Because every American student is now chiefly interested in the Great War the principal sequence of lectures is related to phases of this conflict. Throughout the quarter war lectures will be given. Through the courtesy of the Director of the Speaking Division of the Committee on Public Information special lectures will be given from time to time as prominent representatives of our Allies find it possible to visit the University.

"Recent Progress in the Arts, Literature, and Science' is the subject of another series. In each of these lectures reports from the frontiers of science will be presented by experts for the information of those who may have been unable to keep abreast with progress in the field and who as a matter of general culture wish to become informed. At the same time each of these lectures will afford to the advanced student an opportunity for a survey and co-ordination of his own special studies.

UNIVERSITY PUBLIC LECTURES.

Report to the President of the University.

I herewith submit my report on the University Public lectures for the Summer Quarter 1918.

The policy governing the program for the season was embodied in the introductory material printed on page three of the circular, as follows:

"An alert student finds residence at the University of Chicago important, not only because it permits concentration on a small number of subjects of special value to him, but because it allows an opportunity for acquaintance with persons in other fields which interest him but which in his limited time cannot be intensively studied. Registration for classes in the several curricula supplies the first need; the University Public Lectures afford an aid to achieving the second aim. These lectures then are not merely 'popular' but are addressed primarily to serious University students. The University is glad to share this opportunity, however, with those who, though not registered in the University, desire to keep in touch with recent progress in art, literature and science.

"Because every American student is now chiefly interested in the Great War the principal sequence of lectures is related to phases of this conflict. Throughout the quarter war lectures will be given. Through the courtesy of the Director of the Speaking Division of the Committee on Public Information special lectures will be given from time to time as prominent representatives of our allies find it possible to visit the University.

"Recent progress in the arts, literature, and science, is the subject of another series. In each of these lectures reports from the frontiers of science will be presented by experts for the information of those who may have been unable to keep abreast with progress in the field and who as a matter of general interest wish to become informed. At the same time each of these lectures will afford to the advanced student an opportunity for a survey and co-ordination of his own special studies.

"During the Summer Quarter more teachers engaged in college, high-school, and elementary-school work are in residence than at any other time. These teachers as alert Americans are interested in the foregoing subjects, but experience shows that they are likewise eager for conferences which have direct bearing on their advancement in proficiency in their own profession. Educational conferences have therefore been arranged. Teachers and prospective teachers are advised to attend the first meetings and to assist in the organization of groups which will continue the discussions as they may see fit. Kindergarten teachers will be particularly interested in the meetings of the International Kindergarten Union. For superintendents and principals there will be a series of special addresses during the week of July 15.

"Religion, always important in the curriculum of the University, has been made increasingly so by the seriousness of the world-conflict. In addition, therefore, to the University Religious Services in Leon Mandel Assembly Hall on Sunday mornings there will be lectures on religious aspects of contemporary thought, especially as affected by the war.

"At the end of each week of study there is a demand for a more general program which shall be at once of intellectual worth and recreational value. To satisfy this desire, a special series of Friday evening lectures has been arranged. Suggest

"Suggestions and criticisms will be welcomed by the Director of University Public Lectures, PROFESSOR DAVID ALLAN ROBERTSON."

In arranging lectures for the summer the Director not only attempted to carry out the foregoing program with regard to the topics of the lectures, but attempted to reduce the number and at the same time raise the quality of them.

During the quarter 108 lectures were given by sixty-seven lecturers. The total attendance at lectures for the year was 27,679. The average attendance was 255. The following comparative statement may be of interest:

The lectures on Friday evening were organized as a separate series. Members of the University were charged $1.00 for the series of ten lectures and recitals. Others were charged $2.00.

There were ten Friday evening appointments with a total attendance of 7,820. Of the total receipts, $1,585.25 was received for the Friday lectures, as follows:

$739.25	received at door
514.00	received from sale of special ticket
104.00	estimated single ticket sale in office
228.00	half the sale for 10-admission tickets
$1585.25

Although the greatest part of the income for the summer was derived from the Friday lecture series, only $557.51 was expended on the Friday evening entertainments, as follows:

$395.00	Expended for Talent
162.51	Expended for placards, etc.

$ 557.51

I believe it to be important to increase the effectiveness of the Friday evening entertainments and to this end a freer expenditure for speakers, musicians, etc. is desirable. The table of attendance shows directly the effect of such expenditure during the past summer.

Office of the Director

My dear Mr. Robertson:

I believe that you have the official record of the number of persons in attendance at the public lectures. I will not attempt, therefore, to describe the number in attendance at the various lectures of Superintendents' Week. There were about twelve men whom Mr. Gray and I know personally who came here from outside of our regular circle. A number of these expressed very great appreciation of the project and said they would come another year if it were continued. I believe that our own students got a great deal out of it. I should like to organize it somewhat differently for next year. I should try to choose somewhat more popular topics for the afternoon. I noticed that there was a great fluctuation in the number of persons who attended the lectures. I should then ask each one of the speakers to say something in the evening by way of introducing the conference. In this way we should carry over the speaker with his more serious discussion to the smaller group in the evening. I may say that we had at the evening conferences between fifty and seventy-five persons each evening. The conferences were fair.

I should like to make the proposal at this time that a repetition of the program be considered. I do not want to urge it if in your judgment it is not worth while for the University, but I should, on the other hand, like to suggest it and carry forward the arrangement if it is possible to do so.

Very truly yours,

In explanation of the deficit it should be noted that the Director deliberately took the position that the public lecture program should be regarded not as an independent venture for which the best possible financial showing should be made, but should be regarded as a part of the program of the University as a whole and be made to serve the community just as the lecture program during the winter is made to serve. This led to the transferral of Professor Soare's lecture July 3 to the public University meeting July 4 with a consequent slight loss of income. It led also to the announcement of Lieutenant Rosselli's "Italy and the War" lecture July 24, (for which a fee of $75.00 was paid and at which attendance was 800) as a war meeting at which no charge of admission was made. It is to be noted also that the largest fee paid during the summer, $200 paid to J. L. Laughlin, was agreed upon in advance between the President and Professor Laughlin.

While the Director feels disappointed that the expense exceeded the income, he is convinced that the cost of the excess is directly due to the public service rendered and that the amount involved is notably less than would be regarded legitimate in any other quarter of the year.

It gives me pleasure to commend the hearty co-operation of the Superintendent of Buildings and Grounds and his assistants. Especially I commend the energy and efficiency of Miss V. V. Cates who has had full charge of the details connected with the lectures.

Respectfully submitted,

Director of Public Lectures.

In explanation of the deficit it should be noted that the Director deliberately took the position that the public lecture program should be regarded not as an independent venture for which the best possible financial showing should be made, but should be regarded as a part of the program of the University as a whole and be made to serve the community just as the lecture program during the winter is made to serve. This led to the transfer of Professor Moore's lecture July 3 to the Public University meeting July 4 with a consequent slight loss of income. It led also to the announcement of Lieutenant Rosselli's "Italy and the War" lecture July 24, (for which a fee of $75.00 was paid and at which attendance was 800) as a war meeting at which no charge of admission was made. It is to be noted also that the largest fee paid during the summer, $200 paid to J. L. Langhlin, was agreed upon in advance between the President and Professor Langhlin.

While the Director feels disappointed that the expense exceeded the income, he is convinced that the cost of the excess is directly due to the public service rendered and that the amount involved is notably less than would be regarded legitimate in any other quarter of the year.

It gives me pleasure to commend the hearty co-operation of the Superintendent of Buildings and Grounds and his assistants. Especially I commend the energy and efficiency of Miss V. V. Gates who has had full charge of the details connected with the lectures.

Respectfully submitted,

Director of Public Lectures.

Thursday Evening Band Concerts and Sings

UNIVERSITY PUBLIC LECTURES

THE PROGRAM

An alert student finds residence at the University of Chicago important, not only because it permits concentration on a small number of subjects of special value to him, but because it allows an opportunity for at least general acquaintance with progress in other fields which interest him but which in his limited time cannot be intensively studied. Registration for classes in the several curricula supplies the first need; the University Public Lectures afford an aid to achieving the second aim. These lectures then are not merely "popular" but are addressed primarily to serious University students. The University is glad to share this opportunity, however, with those who, though not registered in the University, desire to keep in touch with recent progress in art, literature, and science.

Because every American student is now chiefly interested in the Great War the principal sequence of lectures is related to phases of this conflict. Throughout the quarter war lectures will be given. Through the courtesy of the Director of the Speaking Division of the Committee on Public Information special lectures will be given from time to time as prominent representatives of our Allies find it possible to visit the University.

"Recent Progress in the Arts, Literature, and Science" is the subject of another series. In each of these lectures reports from the frontiers of science will be presented by experts for the information of those who may have been unable to keep abreast with progress in the field and who as a matter of general culture wish to become informed. At the same time each of these lectures will afford to the advanced student an opportunity for a survey and co-ordination of his own special studies.

During the Summer Quarter more teachers engaged in college, high-school, and elementary-school work are in residence than at any other time. These teachers as alert Americans are interested in the foregoing subjects, but experience shows that they are likewise eager for conferences which have direct bearing on their advancement in proficiency in their own profession. Educational conferences have therefore been arranged. Teachers and prospective teachers are advised to attend the first meetings and to assist in the organization of groups which will continue the discussions as they may see fit. Kindergarten teachers will be particularly interested in the meetings of the International Kindergarten Union. For superintendents and principals there will be a series of special addresses during the week of July 15.

Religion, always important in the curriculum of the University, has been made increasingly so by the seriousness of the world-conflict. In addition, therefore, to the University Religious Services in Leon Mandel Assembly Hall on Sunday mornings there will be lectures on religious aspects of contemporary thought, especially as affected by the war.

At the end of each week of study there is a demand for a more general program which shall be at once of intellectual worth and recreational value. To satisfy this desire, a special series of Friday evening lectures has been arranged.

Suggestions and criticisms will be welcomed by the Director of University Public Lectures, PROFESSOR DAVID ALLAN ROBERTSON.

FINAL ANNOUNCEMENTS

The University reserves the privilege of making necessary changes in this program. Complete final announcements are made from week to week in the Weekly Calendar, published at the University Press every Saturday during the University year. This publication is available to the general public as well as to members of the University, and subscriptions will be received at $1.00 per year. Address The University of Chicago Press.

Tickets.—Each student registered during the Quarter will receive a student's ticket but only upon presentation of his receipt from the Cashier. All students are especially requested to secure the lecture tickets as soon as possible after the payment of tuition. This ticket will admit to all University Public Lectures (except Friday evening special lectures and recitals), and is not transferable. The attention of students is called to the fact that lecture tickets will not be replaced if lost. For Friday evenings a special ticket will be required (single admission, $0.35; ten admissions, $1.00).

Persons not members of the University may secure tickets for the lectures (including Friday evening special lectures and recitals) at the following rates:

Single-admission ticket	$0.35
Ten-admission ticket	2.00

Membership tickets in the University Lecture Association will admit to all Public Lectures (except Friday evening special lectures and recitals).

Tickets can be secured at Room 11A, Cobb Lecture Hall, daily except Saturday, 9:00 a.m.—12:00 m., and 2:00 p.m.—4:00 p.m.

Seats not occupied by season-ticket holders fifteen minutes before the hour set for the lecture will be sold to those desiring single admission.
