My dear Mr. Read:-

towards the usual dates for college and university festivities, I am more apt to be free. Could we prevail upon you to accept an invitation for June seventeenth? This is our most important date in the entire year. At this time the students who come to us for the Summer Quarter, from every state in the Union, are in residence. Can you not say something at a time when I am fortunate enough to have something to say, and the time to say it?

With renewed thanks, come to us on this important occasion?

Thanking you for your kind reception of our invitation, I remain

Dr. Wm. R. Harper,
President Chicago University,
Chicago, Ill.

Dear Dr. Harper:-

You do not need to be told that your renewal of the invitation for an address at your approaching Convocation was flattering, or that I should have been delighted to accept if I could. I am especially sorry because my absence for a few days seems to have unduly delayed the response. Now I find that other engagements here have so tied me up for the middle of December that I could not undertake the little trip to Chicago even if I were myself satisfied that anything I could ^{so hurriedly} prepare would be worthy of the audience you offer.

Believe me with renewed thanks and regrets,

Very sincerely yours,

John H. Hild
