CARNEGIE INSTITUTION OF WASHINGTON WASHINGTON.D.C.

OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT

January 29, 1915.

Dear President Judson:

Under a separate cover I am sending you by next mail a copy of the Report of the President of the Carnegie Institution of Washington for the year ending October 31, 1914, and I beg to invite your attention to the section on pages 8 to 10 of this report in which reference is made to the nature of the relations which ought to exist, apparently, between research establishments and colleges and universities.

If you care to express an opinion on this subject I shall esteem it a favor to learn whether you think the "relations of reciprocity" referred to are sufficient, if attainable, to meet the needs of the two classes of organizations interested in the enlargement and in the diffusion of knowledge.

Very truly yours,

Robert S. Woodwar

President Henry Pratt Judson,
The University of Chicago,
Chicago, Ill.

Julian St. 1916. resisting which cartist to extat, ordinating between research es-President Party Place Change, and Company, a

Chicago, February 4, 1915

My dear President Woodward: -

of January is at hand, and a copy of your Report has come since. I have been much interested in looking at the subject to which you call my attention. It seems to me that the relations of reciprocity to which you refer are attainable, and are sufficient to meet the needs of the two classes of organizations in question. I am sure that the faculty of the University of Chicago would agree as to this; indeed, we have already established relations of reciprocity with the Sprague Memorial Institute in Chicago. Such relations I think are mutually advantageous.

Very truly yours,

H.P.J. - L.

President Robert S. Woodward, Carnegie Institution of Washington, Washington, D. C. Chicago, February 4, 1915

My dear President Woodward:-

Mour favor of the 20th of January is at hand, and a copy of your Report has dome since. I have been much interested in locking at the subject to which you call my attention. It seems to me that the Telations of reciprocity" to which you refer are attainable, and are sufficient to meet the needs of the two classes of organizations in question. I am sure that the faculty of the Univercity of Chicago would agree as to this; indeed, we have already established relations of reciprocity with the Sprague Memorial Institute in Chicago. Such relations I think are mutually advantageous.

Yery truly years,

·正 · 李·生。至

President Robert B. Woodward, Carnegle Institution of Washington, Washington, D. C.