My Dear President Judson:

We can offer you a lecture to your students on Taxation of Land Values, or Single Tax as commonly called. The young men and women of this country should consider this subject, since they will soon be new voters, and can help improve the present methods of taxation and can help establish economic justice.

These lectures have been given by our League at Columbia University, Barnard College, the University of the City of New York and Syracuse University, and in many other colleges.

This lecture would be free to your students and involve no expense to the college.

Believe me,

Very truly yours,

Mary Boies Ely

Dear Miss Ely:

Your favor of the 7th inst. was duly received. If you care to have one of your lecturers speak to the students in one of the classes in the Department of Political Economy that would be entirely welcome.

Probably some time early in March would be suitable for that purpose.

If that plan should meet your approval perhaps you might confer directly with Professor H. A. Millis, of the Department
