Dear Sir:

Since the last report, November 1, 1917, of the Executive Committee of the Mational Committee of Representatives of Educational, Charitable and Religious Institution in re Tax Exemption of Bequests and Legacies for Philanthropy, it has kept itself informed as to the action of Congress through the Committee on Ways and Means in the House and the Finance Committee of the Senate, upon the proposed changes in the Income Tax Law, with the purpose, at the proper moment, of bringing further influence to bear toward having charitable becuests exempted from taxation, or if that should not prove feasible, having the Law changed so as to exempt a substantial percentage of decedent's estates from taxation, provided the same were left for charitable purposes.

For the past two months the matter has been pending before the Finance Committee of the Senate, which has been fully informed as to the position of this Committee by the campaign conducted last year and which has been kept further informed by the activities of the Committee on War, Charity and Social Work, of which Samuel McCune findsay of Columbia University, is Chairman.

The members of the Finance Committee were found to be possessed of extremely divers views on the subject from a desire for a complete exemption of charitable gifts to a strenuous insistence that there should be no exemption at all.

The Finance Committee has finally reached a tentative agreement exempting, not exceeding 15% of the total estate of a decedent given to charity, from Inheritance (not Succession) Tax. The Com-mittee has not reported out a bill as yet, but is expected to do so next week. If this bill meets the approval of the Senate, the matter will then go to Conference Committee, and in the debates in the Senate and the sessions of the Conference Com-mittee, considerable light will be thrown on the attitude of the various members of the House and Senate, from which your Committee expects to profit largely in determining on its future course of ac-tion. This will be especially the case if report of the Senate Finance Committee meets with serious opposition in the Senate. Discussion will make plain the real attitude of members of the Senate toward this question. When this Committee was first organized, it was hoped that Congress might be induced to pass a Statute exempting all charitable becuests from taxation. It was soon apparent, that in view of the enormous sums necessary to be raised by taxation and the very hostile attitude of many members of Congress to the exemption of any sum whatever, that such a result could not be secured.

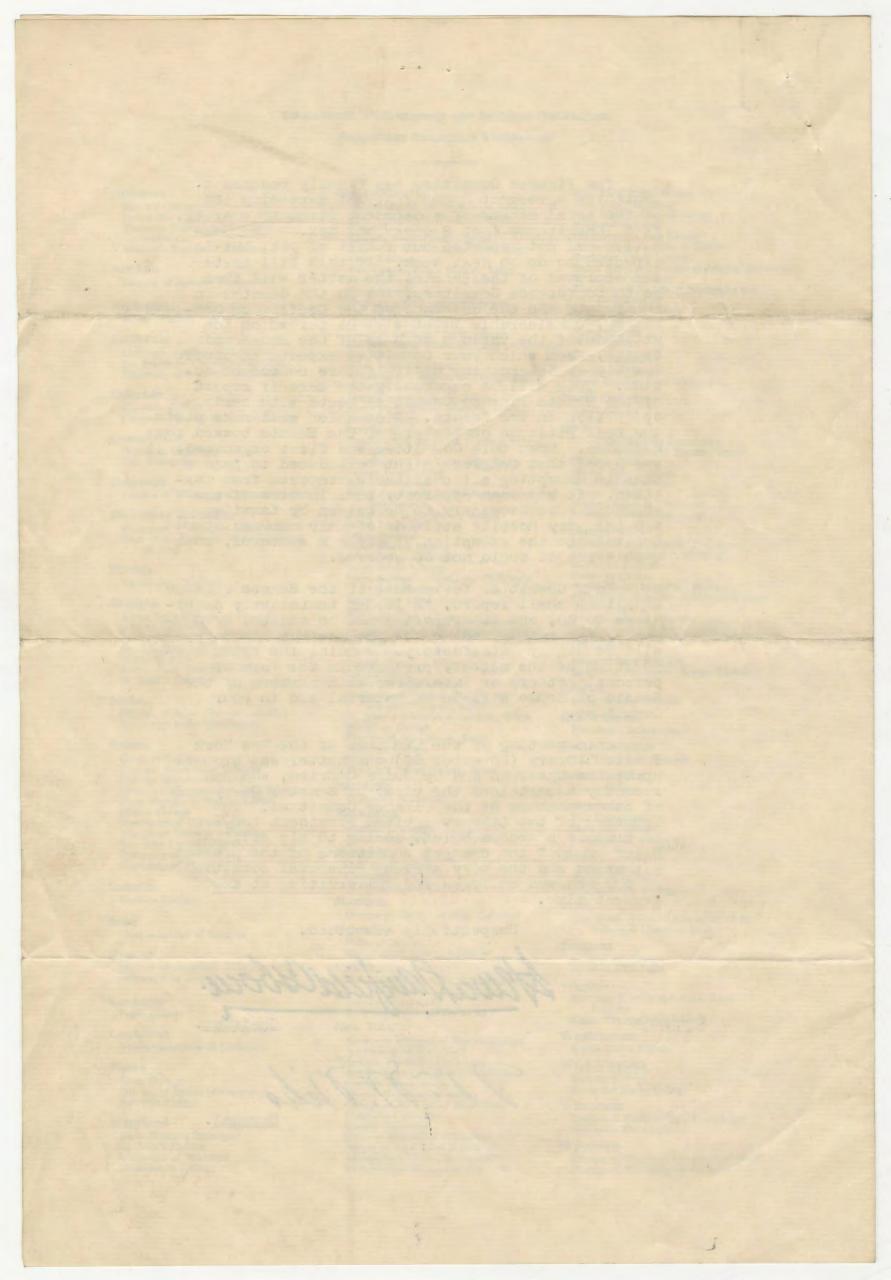

Your Committee feels that if the Senate Finance Committee shall report, as it has tentatively determined to do, and its report shall be adopted by Congress, the result, while not the maximum aimed at, will be highly satisfactory. Pending the final dis-position of the matter, pressure in the form of personal letters or interviews with members of the Senate or House will be of material aid to your Committee.

At a meeting of the Trustees of the New York Public Library (November 13) the matter was brought up by the Chairman and by Judge O'Brien, who had recently ascertained the views of Senator Gerry and of other members of the Finance Committee. The Trustees of the Library invited President Ledyard to prepare a second brief, adding to his original brief of 1917 the changed conditions of the present situation and the very serious financial condition of our endowed colleges and universities at the present time.

Respectfully submitted,

Muri Marifield Aborn. Chairman.

My dear President:

I am sending with this, a communication from the National Committee Representatives of Educational, Charitable and Religious Institutions in re Tax Exemption of Bequests and Legacies for Philanthropy.

I am not certain that activity in behalf of tax exemption on the part of the University of Chicago is advisable. Having had to go before the authorities of Wisconsin and before committees of the legislature of this state on behalf of the University and of the Art Institute, in connection with taxation matters, my observation is that there is coming to be quite a growing sentiment that all property should bear its proportion of taxation. This feeling is not confined, as might be supposed, to those who have received no benefit from such exemptions. Some legislators, deeply interested in very large institutions which enjoy such exemptions, have been found to oppose them from conscientious scruples, deeming them fundamentally inadvisable.

It is questionable, it seems to me, whether activity on the part of institutions, supposed to possess considerable means, would be particularly effective. It is conceivable that very much activity by such institutions might have a contrary effect from that desired. Since our state has a policy somewhat liberal in the way of exemptions to institutions such as ours, it has seemed fair and appropriate for us not to press for further exemptions. In those instances where our institution is not exempt, we very rarely object to assessments even though they at times seem disproportioned or unfair.

Acting on this general view, we have not, up to this time, taken any action in connection with the above mentioned committee.

Very truly yours,

WH:RA

Dear Sir:

Your favor of the 16th of November, 1918, I find on my return from an absence from the sity of some seven months. Careful attention has been given to the suggestion in the matter, and the University of Ghicago considers it inadvisable to join in the request for exemption. While it is quite true that the heavy taxation which might be incurred would to that extent lessen the ability of endowed institutions to carry out the purposes of their foundation, at the same time we feel that these matters should be left entirely to the discretion of the National Legislature, and that it is not advisable, so far as we are concerned, to make any requests.

Very truly yours,
