Dear Mr. Judson:-

I am sending you, as a member of the Board of Directors of the Western Economic Society, a suggested program for the autumn conference. This is a mere tentative outline, and it is the wish of the Program Committee to receive your criticisms and suggestions on this program. We believe that the time is ripe to make a conference on this subject a real constructive force, and we are, therefore, very desirous of securing your cooperation, both with reference to topics and speakers.

Yours very sincerely,

Chicago, September 30, 1915

Dear Mr. Moulton:-

Yours of the 21st inst. with enclosure was received during my absence from the city. Since then the program has been received. I am sorry that I was not able to be of any service to you in the way of suggestions. On the program as it stands, to save my life I can't see why Dr. Jordan should have been allowed to absorb the eighth day with his paid propaganda. However, it is too late to consider any such thing at present.

Very truly yours,

Dear President Judson:-

At the July meeting of the Executive Committee of the Western Economic Society, it was voted that we hold our autumn conference on the Economic Outlook for the United States. At that meeting, the Committee discussed ways and means of accomplishing the following ends:

1. Effectively advertising the conference.
2. Securing a larger attendance of members and their friends.
3. Properly entertaining the visiting speakers.

It was voted by the Committee that early in November there should be a joint meeting of the Board of Directors and Executive Committee in order to discuss some important questions of policy in these regards. I am therefore calling this meeting for Friday, November 5, at the University Club, at one o'clock. At the request of the Executive Committee, I am urging you to attend this important meeting if possible. Please let me know as early as convenient whether you can be present.

We have secured as the leading speakers for the conference on November 26 and 27, Charles S. Hamlin, Governor of the Federal Reserve Board, and Ex-Senator Theodore Burton.

Yours very sincerely,

A. G. Moulton

Dear Sir:-

At a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Western Economic Society on February 4, it was decided that a new plan should be adopted for procuring additional members to the Society. Our experience has been that such an organization as the Western Economic Society can be promoted only through personal solicitation of the members. The Executive Committee therefore instructed the secretary to attempt to secure members in the following manner:

First, secure from present members a list of at least six names.

Second, write a letter, like the form enclosed, to the persons suggested, submitting the same to the nominating members for personal signature. In other words, to make the plan clear, the secretary will write this letter to the names suggested by you, sending the letter to you for signature. This plan would save you all effort in the matter except attaching your signature. It would, of course, be necessary for you to send to the secretary some of your own stationery, which we could use in writing the letters. You will readily see that it is necessary that the secretary should write the letters in order to check up duplicates and prevent the sending of the same invitation from several sources to the same individual.

I enclose a blank on which you may submit nominations. Please enclose with the nominations sufficient personal stationery for the purpose in hand.

The Executive Committee will very greatly appreciate your cooperation at this time.

Yours very sincerely,

H. G. Moulton

Secretary.

P.S. It was voted at the meeting on February 4 that the April conference be on the general subject of "International Relations".

February 10, 1916.

Dear Mr. :-

I wish to call to your attention the work of the Western Economic Society, and to invite you personally to enroll as a member.

The Society was organized in 1911 with the idea of affording an opportunity here in the Middle West for the scientific and impartial discussion of economic and social questions. There are clubs innumerable in Chicago, and no doubt you belong to several already, as who does not. But the usual society or club is seeking specific gains along some individual line, and its point of view is therefore more or less circumscribed. The Western Economic Society is unique in this regard, in that it is entirely non-propagandist; it merely seeks to promote full and fair discussions of all aspects of economic questions.

It appears to us that, after the war, the United States and the world in general will have to meet many new problems as well as old ones in a different guise, which will demand the best constructive efforts of the next generation. They are, moreover, problems that must be discussed from the broadest possible standpoint. This is the special function of the Western Economic Society.

New York has had such a society for many years, and its discussions are very largely attended by the strongest people in the East. It has long been recognized as one of the most potent forces for economic progress that we have. Chicago has thus far lagged behind New York in this respect. I hope you may feel inclined to join with us at this time in an endeavor to promote sound economic thinking.

I am enclosing a short printed folder showing the constructive work that has been done by the Society in the past, as well as a statement of the general nature of the organization. If you desire to become a member, you may send your check directly to me and I will see that it is forwarded to the Secretary of the Society.

Yours very sincerely,

Dear Mr. Moulton:-

Your note of the 11th inst. is received. The plan strikes me as a very good one. I never like, however, to ask people to join anything, and on the whole would rather not at this time. I am sure that you will have a large addition in the way you have chosen.

With best wishes, I am,

January 30, 1917

My dear President Judson:

For some time a joint committee representing the Union League Club, the City Club of Chicago, the University of Chicago, Northwestern University, and the Western Economic Society has been engaged in working out a general program for a national conference on the subject "~~The United States and World Problems; America's Interests, Duties, and Responsibilities in International Affairs, Now and in the Future.~~" It is the purpose of the conference to provide a forum here in Chicago for a thorough-going discussion of America's interests and responsibilities in the political and economic future of the world. To this end, we plan to bring before the conference the very best thought of the country.

The plan agreed upon by the general committee is that the organization of the conference can best be carried out by the Western Economic Society working in cooperation with a committee appointed by the Union League Club, the City Club of Chicago, the University of Chicago, and Northwestern University. The executive committee of the Western Economic Society has approved the general plan of the conference, and has instructed me to extend an earnest invitation to the University of Chicago to join with us in the work of the conference and to appoint immediately a committee of cooperation. The executive committee of the Western Economic Society has also asked me to request a contribution from the University of Chicago of from one hundred to five hundred dollars. The Western Economic Society will endeavor to raise the remaining portion of the five thousand dollars deemed necessary for the holding of the conference.

I am enclosing a copy of the general plan of organization of the conference and a topical outline of the program as worked out by the general committee.

Yours very respectfully,

R. S. Walston
Secretary

President Harry Pratt Judson
The University of Chicago

GENERAL PLAN for a NATIONAL CONFERENCE
on the Subject
THE UNITED STATES AND WORLD PROBLEMS:
AMERICA'S INTERESTS, DUTIES AND RESPONSIBILITIES IN INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS, NOW AND IN THE FUTURE

A conference on the above subject will be held by THE WESTERN ECONOMIC SOCIETY acting in co-operation with a committee of fifteen persons made up by the appointment of three each from the Union League Club of Chicago, the Commercial Club of Chicago, the City Club of Chicago, the University of Chicago and Northwestern University.

The place of meeting will be Chicago.

The time of meeting will be in April, May or June, 1917.

The personnel or membership of the conference will be made as representative as possible. It is proposed for example that the governors of all the states be invited to attend in person or to send a representative, that the presidents of a large number of Colleges and Universities throughout the country be invited to attend in person or to send a representative, that such organizations as the National Chamber of Commerce, other local chambers of commerce, the American Federation of Labor, the Pan American Union, The National Academy of Sciences, The American Philosophical Society, The Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, The League to Enforce Peace, and other important organizations and societies be asked each to appoint one or more members.

The discussion of the conference will be preceded in all important subjects by the reading of papers which will be carefully prepared in advance by men whose familiarity with the subject makes them competent to present the important facts and the important issues involved and to lead in the discussion of new policies.

It is probable that a conference beginning with a large meeting on a Thursday evening and lasting throughout Friday and Saturday will be as long a conference as can successfully be held; and it is the present plan to hold the conference on these days beginning with the large public meeting, to be held in some audience room in the downtown district, and ending with a dinner on Saturday night. The plan is that the evening meetings will be devoted to the discussion of general questions and that the more technical matters be presented and discussed at the morning and afternoon sessions. The program of the subject matter for discussion is as follows:

NORTH AND SOUTH AMERICA

1. Historical survey of the principal facts in the development of American policies; including the Monroe Doctrine, the expansion of commerce and acquisition of territory, the development of the Panama Canal Zone, our relations with Canada, the West Indies, etc.

II. America's interests, duties and responsibilities in North and South America now and hereafter:

This discussion will relate to the following or similar topics:

- (1) The United States and Canada
- (2) The Monroe Doctrine and the Latin American Powers
- (3) Protection of small nations
- (4) Commercial concessions and extension of trade

ASIA

I. Historical survey of the principal facts in the development of American policies in the far east to the present time; including the expansion of commerce across the Pacific, the acquisition of Hawaii and the Philippines, the opening of Japan to trade, the origin of the Open Door, the relation of the United States to the Russo-Japanese War, etc.

II. America's interests, duties and responsibilities in Asia now and hereafter:

This discussion will relate to the following or similar topics:

- (1) Our Services to China
- (2) The Open Door in China
- (3) Our policy in the Philippines
- (4) Our relations with Japan
- (5) Oriental immigration to the United States.

EUROPE

I. Historical statement of our relations with Europe with reference to the problems involved in the great war; including a review of our important European treaties, our part in the Hague Conference, etc.

II. America's interests, duties and responsibilities in the principles governing the re-adjustment of Europe:

This discussion will relate to the following or similar topics:

- (1) The problem of the small nations and incorporated races
- (2) The problem of Turkey
- (3) What militarism means to America
- (4) European colonial policy
- (5) America's interest in the terms of peace

FUTURE INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS

The discussion will relate to the following or similar topics:

- (1) National and international economic organization
- (2) The problem of disarmament
- (3) The law of the sea
- (4) Plans for the development of international law
- (5) Plans for the establishment and maintenance of international justice
- (6) Agencies for the cultivation of international good will.

Chicago, February 2, 1917

Dear Mr. Moulton:

Your favor of the 30th inst. with enclosure is received. The plan commends itself to me, and I shall be glad to see that a committee is appointed to represent the University in the matter. I will also see what the University can do toward a contribution in aid of expenses.

Very truly yours,

THE WESTERN ECONOMIC SOCIETY

¶ The Western Economic Society attempts a unique service for Chicago and the Middle West. It aims through its conferences to discuss important economic and social questions, presenting all shades of opinion—radical, conservative, critical, and constructive. To this end it brings together from all parts of the country those best qualified to participate in such discussions.

¶ The advantages of membership in the Society may be summarized as follows:

It furnishes a forum for non-partisan and expert discussion of all aspects of economic and social questions.

It affords to the busy man of affairs a certain and time-saving means of acquainting himself with both sides of controverted economic and social questions.

It brings together for mutual benefit men of different professions, interests, and views.

It aims to influence thinking, not only in the city, but in the great area reached by the press of Chicago.

It constructively helps to mold public opinion and national legislation on vital problems.

¶ The Society was organized in 1911, and each year has held conferences that have played an important rôle in shaping public opinion. The first conference on Canadian Reciprocity, which was addressed by the leading students of the question in the country, including President Taft, is generally conceded to have marked the turning-point in the controversy. Two conferences on Currency and Banking Reform have been of great practical importance. The first, on the Aldrich plan, went far toward crystallizing public sentiment with reference to that measure, while the second, held shortly after the passage of the Federal Reserve act, was the first attempt in the country at a constructive analysis of the changes in banking practice and organization that result from the new law. The conference on Scientific Management in 1913 attracted nationwide attention and was of decided influence in giving a sense of balance and proportion to a movement that was in danger of running away with itself. Three conferences, on Industrial Combinations, Railway Transportation, and Water Transportation, have been held at times when important legislation was pending, and there is evidence that the results of these discussions have been felt in a large, constructive way. Finally, a comprehensive conference on Commercial and Industrial Education has materially helped to mold the character of educational development along these lines the country over.

¶ The next conference will be held in April on the subject: International Commercial Relations. Other conferences already being planned are: The Relation of the State to Industry; and Taxation Reform in Illinois.

¶ All the leading papers are published in the official organ of the Society, the Journal of Political Economy, and are thus given a wide audience and a permanent place in economic literature. This Journal, published monthly except in August and September, comprises roughly one thousand pages annually and contains, in addition to the papers presented at the conferences of the Society, articles upon various practical topics by the leading writers of the day, and an expert digest of important economic news from Washington.

¶ The Society exists for no other purposes than those above indicated. Its officers serve without pay. It carries no salary list of any kind. All dues from members are turned directly into the work. Invitation to membership is an invitation to service in the interests of open discussion at this crucial time when opinions are in the making.
