My dear Miss Dudley:

In reply to your letter of March 13
I shall be glad to approve a requisition on the account of the Department of Physical Culture for the expenses of Miss Burns in attending the meeting at New Haven if the expenses do not exceed the amount you mention, $135. I think it is very fortunate that you can arrange to have Miss Burns present.

My dear Mr. Woodward:

Miss Margaret Burns, Assistant Professor in our department, is a member of the National Rating Committee of the Woman's Basket Ball Rules Committee. They are holding their annual meeting in New Haven in April in connection with the American Physical Education Association meeting. There is, at that time a good deal of work to be done by the Rules and Rating Committee, and I feel that the University of Chicago has a contribution to make to these deliberations.

I cannot, however, ask Miss Burns to pay her own expenses. Could the University meet this expense? The fare from Chicago to New Haven, including berth, is $44.19. She would presumably have to be two nights in New Haven. I should think her expenses would easily come under $135. The other members of our staff would be very willing to carry the extra teaching during her absence.

I should be glad to hear from you about this as soon as possible as they are now trying to arrange the hour and day of meeting.

Sincerely,

Evelyn Dudley

My dear Mr. Stevens:

A letter comes this morning from Dr. Gertrude Moulton of Oberlin, asking if it would be possible to have the spring meeting of the Mid-West Directors of Physical Education for Women in Universities and Colleges held at the University. Is there any objection to our inviting them to hold their conference here? The exact date I cannot tell you. The meetings could easily be cared for in Ida Noyes Hall. There is an approximate membership of fifty, I believe. Thank you.

While figures for only one year can hardly be called statistics, I thought you might be interested in the enclosed tabulation. These figures are compiled from the information given by students on the Health Blanks which they fill in at the time of their physical examination.

No graduate students are included in these figures, but they do include all freshmen and sophomores who entered this fall and as many of the entering juniors and seniors as desired to register in our department.

My dear President Mason:

A request has come from John L. Griffith, Commissioner of Athletics, for Chicago to name her representative for the Conference Medal, which is given for high athletic merit and good scholarship. I am submitting the names of outstanding men athletically and scholastically:

Theodore Oscar Zimmerman, winner of the "C" in Basket Ball, 1926, 1927, and 1928, and probable winner of the "C" in Baseball 1928. Mr. Zimmerman's work on the Basket Ball team has been consistently good, but not exceptional. His work as a pitcher on the baseball team this year has been consistently good. According to the Bureau of Records, Mr. Zimmerman has an average of 4.29 grade points per major taken.

John Kyle Anderson, winner of the "C" in Baseball, 1926, 1927, and probably in 1928, Captain 1928. Winner of the "C" in football 1926, and 1927. Mr. Anderson has been an outstanding player during his three years of baseball. In college baseball his work would be regarded as exceptional for his all-around ability. Mr. Anderson's playing in football has ranked high in skill, cleverness, and quick thinking. According to the Bureau of Records, Mr. Anderson has an average of 2.87 grade points per major taken.

Lawrence Edward Apitz, winner of the "C" in football, 1926, and 1927. Probable winner of the "C" in Track 1928. Mr. Apitz was a good reliable but not exceptional football player. He is running the quarter mile this Spring and shows good but not exceptional ability. According to the Bureau of Records, Mr. Apitz has an average of 4.5 grade points per major taken.

John Joseph McDonough, winner of the "C" in Basket Ball, 1926, 1927, and 1928. Winner of the "C" in Football 1926, and 1927. Recently appointed a Rhodes scholar. Mr. McDonough has been an excellent player in Basket Ball and also in Football, but in my judgment has ranked just below being consistently exceptional. He has ranked high in character, in loyalty, and in cooperative spirit. According to the Bureau of Records, Mr. McDonough has an average of 4.61 grade points per major taken.

Kenneth Allan Rouse, winner of the "C" in Football, 1925, 1926, and 1927, ^{being judged} Captain 1927. He was the recipient of the Chicago Tribune trophy for the most valuable player to his team in the Western Conference. Mr. Rouse has been an outstanding football player in the line during the past three years, and in 1926 and in 1927 ^{was} ~~has been~~ exceptional. His manhood, his sense of duty, his spirit of loyalty, and his leadership have been commanding and remarkable. According to the Bureau of Records, Mr. Rouse has an average of 4.36 grade points per major taken.

There have been other excellent athletes like Floyd Hill Davidson, James Flexner, and Robert Leon Wolff, but I do not think that the combination of their athletic ability and scholarship would rank possibly as high as the above mentioned.

Summary of Longevity of College Athletes

The problem of the effect of college athletics on the longevity of the individual has been brought nearer solution in the preliminary report on an investigation presented by Dr. Louis I. Dublin, Statistician of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, at the dinner meeting of the American Student Health Association last evening. This investigation was begun nearly two years ago by the Presidents' Committee of Fifty on College Hygiene and its constituent organizations, the American Student Health Association, The National Collegiate Athletic Association and the Society of Directors of Physical Education in Colleges. The Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching has also given valuable aid and support to the project. These groups have been assisted in collecting and tabulating material by the Statistical Bureau of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company.

The report contains the experience on the lives of nearly 5,000 athletes, who competed in various sports on the teams of ten colleges. The men included are the older athletes, men of classes 1905 and prior. These men have been traced from the year of their graduation to the anniversary in 1925. The colleges whose athletes are included are Amherst, Brown, Cornell, Dartmouth, Harvard, Massachusetts Agricultural, Tulane, Wesleyan, Wisconsin and Yale.

The mortality of these men was compared, for want of better measures, with two standard insurance tables, the Medico-Actuarial Investigation, which covers the experience of the large legal reserve life insurance companies from 1885 to 1909 and with the American Men Table, which is based on the experience of the large companies from 1900 to 1915.

The athletes show a better mortality throughout the life span than men accepted for insurance by the companies. There were only 93.4 deaths per 100 expected on the basis of the Medico-Actuarial Table, and 91.6 per 100 expected by the American Men Table.

As a whole, the table shows lower death rates for the men of later classes than for earlier. The showing for the latest classes, graduating in years 1900 to 1905 is exceptionally good; for this group there were 73.2 deaths per 100 expected. This compares with 94.7 deaths per 100 expected for the earliest group of men of classes prior to 1880. Obviously, the later athletes have shared in the improvement in health and mortality conditions that has been going on in the general population in the last fifty years, and this result is in no way surprising.

To determine the long-time effect of athletics on the longevity of the men, the experience before age 45 and after age 45 has been studied separately. Taken as a whole, there is no essential difference between the older and younger men on the basis of the Medico-Actuarial Table; on the basis of the American Men Table, however, there is a difference of nine percent in favor of the older men. If, moreover, men of the four groups of classes into which our material has been divided, namely men of classes prior to 1880, 1880 to 1889, 1890 to 1899 and 1900 to 1905, there is by either standard table a decided differential in favor of the men at more advanced ages.

Summary of Longevity of College Athletes

The problem of the effect of college athletics on the longevity of the individual has been brought under serious consideration in the preliminary report on an investigation presented by Dr. Louis I. This investigation was begun nearly two years ago by the President's Committee of Fifty on College Hygiene and its constituent organizations, the American Student Health Association, The National College Athletic Association and the Society of Directors of Physical Education in Colleges. The Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching has also given valuable aid and support to the project. These groups have been assisted in collecting and tabulating material by the Statistical Bureau of the National Health Insurance Company.

This report contains the experience on the lives of nearly 8,000 athletes who competed in various sports on the teams of ten colleges. The men included are the older athletes, men of classes 1908 and prior. These men have been traced from the year of their graduation to the anniversary in 1935. The colleges whose athletes are included are Harvard, Brown, Cornell, Dartmouth, Harvard, Massachusetts Agricultural, Tulane, Wesleyan, Wisconsin and Yale.

The mortality of these men was compared, for want of better measures, with two standard insurance tables, the Medical-Actuarial Investigation, which covers the experience of the large legal reserve life insurance companies from 1880 to 1908 and with the American Men Table, which is based on the experience of the large companies from 1900 to 1915.

As a whole, the table shows lower death rates for the men of later classes than for earlier. The showing for the latest classes, graduating in years 1900 to 1903 is exceptionally good; for this group there were 85.2 deaths per 100 expected. This compares with 94.7 deaths per 100 expected for the earliest group of men of classes prior to 1880. Obviously, the later athletes have shared in the improvement in health and mortality conditions that has been going on in the general population in the last fifty years, and this result is in no way surprising.

Taken as a whole, there is no essential difference between the older and younger men on the basis of the Medical-Actuarial Table; on the basis of the American Men Table, however, there is a difference of nine percent in favor of the older men. If, moreover, men of the four groups of classes into which our material has been divided, namely men of classes prior to 1880, 1880 to 1899, 1900 to 1909 and 1910 to 1919, there is by either standard table a decided differential in favor of the men of more advanced ages.

The results of the analysis of the material by sports are very surprising. Contrary to expectation, the highest mortality is shown by men who played baseball. They have a mortality higher than average in earlier and later classes, and at the younger and older ages.

The crew men show the next highest mortality rates. It is to be noted, too, that the mortality of this group has not improved in more recent years; the highest rates are recorded for classes 1890 to 1905, the mortality in this period being 15 to 25 percent above that for insured lives, and 30 to 50 percent above the average for all athletes. These facts are true for both younger and older men, but the situation is particularly bad among the younger lives.

Track athletes are the next in order of mortality. Altogether, they are about average in this respect, compared with other athletes. They are somewhat better than average at the older ages. In only one group is there an exceptionally heavy mortality, the men under age 45 of classes 1880 to 1889; it was 80 percent more than the expected by the American Men Table, and 70 percent higher than all athletes combined.

Football men furnished one of the surprises of the study, in that they show consistently favorable mortality ratios. They are not only better than average of all athletes, but show large savings over the mortality table used. There is, however, one feature of this experience that is not at all assuring and that is the fact that this mortality saving is confined to the younger men, particularly of later classes and to the older men of the earliest classes. The men of classes 1880 to 1899, who are past 45, show rates higher than the average for all athletes and come very close to the full mortality of the less favorable of the two standard tables used for comparison.

The men who won letters in two or more sports have been segregated and studied separately. Again, contrary to expectation, these men are distinctly better as regards mortality than other athletes and with but one exception consistently better than insured lives.

The mortality of the athletes of each college has been studied and compared with the insurance tables. Before judging the facts shown by the analysis, it must be remembered that the relative number of men engaged in each sport varies from college to college and from period to period, so that differences in the mortality ratios may be only reflections of these differences. Altogether, Dartmouth men show the highest mortality, not only for all classes combined, but in every class group, it is either highest or appreciably above the average. With this one exception, the men from smaller colleges do better than those from the larger. It is interesting to note that Yale men make a more favorable showing than Harvard men. These differences between these two, however, are not consistent, Harvard men of classes 1890 to 1899 doing appreciably better than Yale men of the same period.

These facts are true for both younger and older men, but the situation is particularly bad among the younger lives.

Track athletes are the next in order of mortality. Altogether, they are about average in this respect, compared with other athletes. They are somewhat better than average at the older ages. In only one group in their experience, namely heavy mortals, the men under age 45 of classes 1890 to 1893, is the mortality more than the expected by the American Men Table, and 70 percent higher than all athletes combined.

Dear Dr. Woodward,

We were surprised to learn from your letter of January 9 that you had not heard of the document entitled "Alibi." Unfortunately, the copy which we have seen belongs to the Carnegie Corporation offices and, therefore, we are not at liberty to lend it. I am enclosing a copy of the title page and, in fact, the first three or four pages to give you an idea of the tone of the essay.

We appreciate the trouble you have gone to in securing the lists of scholarships and other information regarding financial assistance to needy athletes.

Very sincerely yours,

Receipt of your letter of January 4 is acknowledged. I now have a list of scholarships awarded to athletes, but the matter of tuition remissions has required more work and the report has not yet come to my desk. As soon as this comes in I shall send you both lists.

I never heard of the document entitled "Alibi" to which you refer, and inquiry in the office indicates that no one here has seen it. I doubt very much if Mr. Stagg himself wrote it, since he is not given to humorous composition. I should like very much to see a copy, and if you will send one to me I may be able to throw some light on its origin.

Dear Professor Woodward,

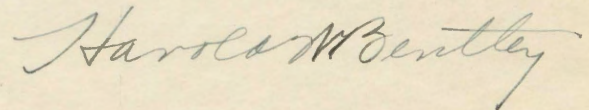

Some time ago a certain document in mimeograph form entitled "Alibi" came to the offices of the Corporation. You no doubt have seen the document in question and are fully aware of its contents. Inasmuch as it came in an official University of Chicago envelope, some conjectures have arisen as to the authorship of the document. No letter of explanation accompanied the treatise.

Thinking that during the N.C.A.A. convention I might have the opportunity of seeing someone from the University of Chicago, I have not written to you before of this matter. Not having seen anyone, however, and being desirous of not only knowing the authorship but also the portent of this document, I am writing you at this time.

Someone has suggested that the article might have been written in fun by Mr. Stagg himself. Others have expressed the opinion, on the other hand, that some enemy of Mr. Stagg with defamatory motives is responsible. If you can enlighten us on this, we shall be grateful.

We shall be interested in knowing whether you have been successful in securing the scholarship and loan information from the various individuals responsible for their administration.

Very truly yours,

Harold W. Bentley.

The development of intramural athletics during the last year is most encouraging. The plans for enlarging the work are going forward, and we hope eventually to have first-rate outdoor facilities for all the branches of intramural sports. We all believe that the University should stimulate athletic competition for all its students. The student body has shown its real interest in the plans of the intramural staff, and I am proud of the work of the students and faculty in coöperation for this fourth annual carnival.

I am enclosing herein a copy of last year's Carnival booklet, page two of which you will find the foreward which you secured for me last year. Although the program is to be more informal this year, being more of a magazine than an information book, I believe that something similar would again fill the bill.

It would be a great convenience to me if you could send this to me at the Intramural office. I thank you for your help in this matter.

Dear President Mason:

As a former Chicago student I just want to voice my appreciation of the service which Coach Stagg rendered our Association and our city this past week. At our invitation he addressed our Sunday Forum at Stambaugh Auditorium with approximately thirty-five hundred people in attendance and with at least fifty thousand receiving the address over the radio. His address, which was fine and clean and like a fresh breath of spring, was followed by a forum consisting of questions and answers at which Mr. Stagg did himself proud.

On Monday he spoke at the chapel service of Youngstown College which is a part of our work and followed at noon by speaking to three hundred business men at a luncheon. The previous week Dean Charles R. Brown of Yale addressed our Forum and the coming Sunday Robert E. Speer is our guest. Telling you this will give you some idea of the importance of the Forum and I want to say that no man ever made a more profound impression than Amos Alonzo Stagg made last week-end. I know Stagg would attempt to assassinate me if he knew I was writing this letter but I can't help doing it out of sheer appreciation for the service he rendered.

My dear Mr. Woodward:

Charles C. Erasmus, at the end of the Summer Quarter 1926, had credit on the books of the University for 34 majors, $113\frac{1}{2}$ grade points. He then entered the Law School, where he has been registered for four quarters. He completed in the Law School last year $6\frac{1}{2}$ majors with grades of C and B. The results of his registration for the past Autumn have not been reported. Two of the courses extend into the Winter Quarter.

Mr. Erasmus' sequences were designated as law (principal) and political science (secondary). He has not yet received his degree, because (1) he took English 103 in the Spring Quarter 1924, reported "E, no examination" (Mr. Erasmus says he was ill at the time), and as he has not repeated the course, it remains a specific requirement; and (2) he will not, until his law work for the current quarter is reported, have a full sequence of nine majors in law. Assuming, however, that he did three majors of satisfactory work the past Autumn, his credit at the present time would be $43\frac{1}{2}$ majors.

Mr. Erasmus is a member of the wrestling squad and accordingly a candidate for intercollegiate competition. Do you think we could certify him as eligible for intercollegiate competition without violating the spirit, if not the letter, of Eligibility Rule 2 (b) and (c), page 17 of the Rules and Regulations of the Intercollegiate Conference, revised and published in 1925?

Yours very truly,

Recorder and Examiner.

Am sorry to report to you that I shall probably be unable to resume my responsibilities by the 6th of June.

From some unknown source in England I picked up an infection of the neck glands. When I reached Chicago I came immediately to the hospital. The abscess was opened and while all seems to be going well the Doctor gives me no hope of being back at work before June 10th.

While I am sure Miss Burns will carry on and that the work will in no way suffer, I am sorry I will not be able to keep my agreement.

However, the gymnasium is one of the laboratories for health work and it is necessary that it be kept in condition to carry on that work with safety to the participants. A slippery floor is a dangerous surface for activity. May I ask you another question? From April 13th to the 16th the joint meeting of the Middle West Physical Education Association and the National Physical Education Association will be held in Des Moines. I had expected to attend this meeting but that is now impossible. I have always felt that at these Department conferences the Women's Division of the Department of Physical Education at the University of Chicago should be represented. I feel, however, that I cannot ask one of the members of my staff to go and pay her own expenses. If there, at present, some fund for meeting such expenditures? on the 10th or 11th of April, returning not later than June 8th.

May I ask you another question? From April
1st to the 10th the joint meeting of the Middle West
Physical Education Association and the National Physical Education Association will be held in Des Moines. I had expected to attend this meeting but that is now impossible. I have always felt that at these Department conferences the Women's Division of the Department of Physical Education at the University of Chicago should be represented. I feel, however, that I cannot ask one of the members of my staff to go and pay her own expenses. If there, at present, some fund for meeting such expenditures? I know that at least twice in former years such expenses have been authorized by the President's office. Is that still possible?

The University of Chicago

The expenses will be approximately $75.00 perhaps less if the numbers attending are sufficient to obtain one and a half rates on the railroad.

I should be glad if possible to send two members of the staff. Could that be arranged?

Sincerely,

My dear Miss Dudley:

In answer to your letter of March 8, I believe there is no arrangement by which persons who are not registered in the University may be admitted to a particular course by the payment of a special fee. There are many courses, I suppose, which attract in greater or less degree the interest of outsiders, and I do not see at present any reason for treating the course for Camp Councilors as an exception to the rule.

Yours sincerely,

We are offering, in our Department, this quarter a course for Camp Councilors. There seems to be considerable interest in this course by people not now in the University. Is there any arrangement for such a person not registered for academic courses to pay a fee and be admitted to this course?

Thank you.

My dear Mr. Woodward:

One of the things I had planned to talk about with you when I saw you recently, but which we didn't have time for, was the question you raised of not making a charge for lockers. Dr. Reed and I have talked it over and we cannot see how it can be easily done in the Men's Department, simply because we haven't enough lockers, and if we bought enough additional lockers to give each student one, we wouldn't have anywhere near enough space in Bartlett to place them.

Regarding free tennis, something over two thousand students are entitled to it by reason of buying the athletic books. The plan of making a small charge enables us to keep a man to control the courts, which, unless under some control, would be over-run by outsiders.

As you know it has been decided to install a comprehensive student health service at the beginning of the Summer Quarter, 1927, and the tuition fees have been raised $10.00 in order to take care of this service and also to make up for the abolition of laboratory fees.

In view of this action a question has been raised as to whether we should continue to make charges for lockers in the Gymnasium and the use of tennis courts. I should like to have your opinion in the matter.

My dear Mr. Woodward:

I note that despite our "inclusive fee" covering all educational services, library, laboratory, etc., announcement is still made that "in courses requiring the use of a microscope a rental fee, varying with the type of instrument, is charged." Would not the gain to the University by eliminating such petty charges more than off-set the financial return?

If our inclusive fee is to cover an improved health service, can we appropriately make a charge for lockers in the gymnasium and the use of tennis courts?

Yours very truly,

The organization of Camp Fire Girls seems very anxious to give what they call a "training course" in Camp Fire Work. They would like to secure a group of students for four lectures some time in March. This will be without cost either to the University or the students. While this limited number of lectures seems to me a very inadequate time in which to give students much idea of the work, I should be glad for the students to have an opportunity to register for such a course if it would meet with your approval.

May I know your opinion regarding this?

Dear Mr. Steere:

This morning I talked with Miss Margaret Burns, one of the instructors in physical education, regarding possible club quarters for women on the University faculty. There are about forty women in the organization and they are ready to put in some money in order to have a place of meeting similar to the Quadrangle Club.

My reason to write to you is that I think it a fair proposal for them to make to our real estate department that a building having one or two parlors and some dormitory facilities be set aside. If we have any houses within a short distance of Ida Noyes Hall, I should like to have these women considered as occupants on the usual rental program.

I think too that they would be glad to have a chance to start operations in any vacant apartments in any of the buildings across from Ida Noyes Hall on the Midway.

Sincerely yours,

You will recall that at the Conference held at your home at which Mr. Swift was present, I told you that we were indebted to the Walter Camp Memorial Fund in the neighborhood of $4000. The amount proves to be $4500. I stated that in order to meet the University's allotment, I had raised the price of tickets to the Purdue game from $2 to $2.50, increasing Chicago's share of receipts by approximately $10,000. My sole purpose in raising the cost of the tickets was to meet our allotment to the Walter Camp Memorial Fund.

You asked me to send a statement of this by letter with an order for payment and you would endorse the same and turn it over. This I am now doing.
